STEVENS LABELS AS 'LIE' CHARGE HE TRIED TO DIVERT INQUIRY TO NAVY, AIR FORCE

DENIES EFFORTS TO END M'CARTHY INVESTIGATION OF REDS IN ARMY

Secretary Admits He Objected to Damaging Publicity From Senator's Inquiry at Fort Monmouth.

By EDWARD F. WOODS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 26 — Secretary of the Army Robert T. B. Stevens said under oath today that the allegation that he tried to divert the McCarthy Investigation subcommittee last fall from the Army to the Air Force and Navy is "an unequivocal lie."

The Secretary was under intense and at times argumentative cross examination by Ray Jenkins, special counsel to the Senate Investigating subcommittee trying to determine who is lying in the fight between Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (Rep.), Wisconsin, and the Army, when Jenkins inquired if it were not true that he had "offered up" the Navy and the Air Force to McCarthy's committee and tried to divert the committee from the Army.

Nearly Shouts Reply.

Secretary Stevens nearly shouted the reply: "It's an unequivocal lie."

Senator McCarthy, who only last week, repeated the charge against Stevens in a bill of particulars submitted to the subcommittee, heard the secretary's words without any noticeable reaction.

Secretary Stevens, replying to Jenkin's persistent cross fire of questions with composure and apparent self-confidence, likewise denied any other attempts to keep McCarthy from investigating the Army and the alleged Communist infiltration thereof, though he repeated what he had said before, that he objected to the damaging publicity which accompanied McCarthy's inquiry about Fort Monmouth, N.J.

Cites Efforts for Schine.

At the morning session, Stevens had testified that on "several occasions" after Schine was drafted, Senator McCarthy was "quite insistent" that Schine be assigned to the New York City area.

On one of these occasions, Stevens said, McCarthy "suggested that Schine might be useful in checking on West Point textbooks as to Communist propaganda.

Stevens resumed his testimony this morning where he left off last Friday.

Criticizes Cohn.

Secretary Stevens told the investigating Senators also that it was his impression that Roy M. Cohn, regular counsel to the McCarthy subcommittee, was "tremendously interested in special treatment for Schine" and that in his overtures to Stevens to obtain such special treatment Cohn was acting, not as an individual, but as a person with the powerful position of counsel to the subcommittee,

TRANSIT FARE RISE IN EFFECT, CAUSES LITTLE CONFUSION

Higher rates for weekly permits, express fares and tokens were charged today on streetcars and busses with a minimum of confusion, a Public Service Co. spokesman reported.

"Supervisors said it looked like any normal Monday morning," the spokesman said in a report on the first business day application of the new fare structure, which went into effect yesterday. The reason the change in rates was effected without delay in service was that it embodied no change in procedure or method of payment, the company official said.

The new rates, expected to add $650,000 to gross annual revenue, were authorized by the Missouri Public Service Commission. Weekly permits on local lines now cost 75 cents, an increase of 10 cents. Cash payment for each ride on the permit remains a dime. Express weekly permits cost $1, instead of 85 cents, and there is a rise of 2 cents in both the adult and child's cash fares on express routes to 25 cents.

Tokens, which the company sought to abolish, sell at four for 75 cents instead of five for 90 cents, an increase of ¾ cents per token. The 20-cent cash fare on local lines and the 90-cent student weekly pass remain unchanged.

POLICE QUICKLY PUT SHIRT SLEEVES ORDER IN EFFECT

Several hundred policemen thankfully stripped to trousers and shirts yesterday at 2:15 p.m. after Chief of Police Jeremiah O'Connell notified the department by teletype it was all right to shuck off the uniform blouses and shoulder belts.

With thermometers registering 85 degrees at the time, officers on duty in station houses acted immediately. Word was passed as quickly as possible to beat men and officers riding squad cars.

The Board of Police Commissioners, doing everything possible to keep their men from getting hot under the collar, several months ago adopted summer uniform trousers of 10-ounce tropical worsted, a welcome change from the old 14-ounce serge.

RADFORD CONFERS WITH CHURCHILL ON INDOCHINA

LONDON, April 26 (UP)—Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the American Joint Chiefs of Staff, conferred tonight with Prime Minister Churchill on the military crisis in Indichina.

The United States embassy announced that the two met after conferences earlier in the day between Radford and British service chiefs.

The embassy spokesman said Radford would fly to Washington tonight for emergency consultations in Washington on the situation in Indochina.

EISENHOWER BACK IN CAPITAL, SEES CONGRESS LEADERS

WASHINGTON, April 26 (AP)—Back from an extended Easter holiday at Augusta, Ga., President Eisenhower returned to work today with a full schedule starting off with a talk with congressional leaders.

The President and Mrs. Eisenhower and their party returned to Washington by plane last night. They had been at Augusta since April 13, except for a trip to Washington, New York and Kentucky which the President made last Thursday.

Eisenhower got in a final round of golf before leaving Augusta yesterday. A big crowd lined the route from the Little White House as the Eisenhowers drove to the Augusta airport.

$1,206,348,500 CUT IN MILITARY FUNDS APPROVED BY HOUSE GROUP

WASHINGTON, April 26 (UP) — The House Appropriations Committee today approved $28,680,706,500 for President Eisenhower's "new look" military program—a cut of $1,206,348,500 from his request.

The appropriations are for the fiscal year beginning July 1. The funds are $5,632,614,500 less than appropriations voted for this fiscal year ending June 30.

However, the committee said the armed services have an estimated 48 billions left over from previously appropriated funds which, with the new money, will make $76,874,000,000 available for spending in the new fiscal year.

The committee said the new military appropriations are based on long-range planning with emphasis on "improved weapons and a greater reliance on expanded air power."

Reason for Decrease.

Cuts were possible, the committee reported, because of the end of the Korean fighting, the build-up of NATO in Europe and the development of Republic of Korea forces.

The bill provides for:

1.—". . . The greatest Army ever maintained by this nation on a full year basis in the absence of actual warware."

2.—Construction of a fourth supercarrier of the Forrestal class and a third atomic-powered submarine. "The fleet will continue to grow in combat power. . . ." the committee said.

4—Over-all military manpower of 3,200,900 during fiscal 1955, 202,000 less than on Dec. 31, 1953, but more than double pre-Korea.

A summary of the bill by services:

Army—Gets $7,615,523,000, a cut of $595,477,000 in the President's request, and $5,321,883,000 below appropriations for current year. Average manpower for fiscal 1955 will be 1,308,600. Army gets $345,000,000 for research and development—"with new weapons and devices of literally unthought-of possibilities, the maintenance of a sizable research structure is of primary importance."

Navy—Gets $9,705,818,500, a cut of $209,181,500 in the President's request. None of the cuts will reduce size or "adversely affect the capability of the Navy or Marines Corps. Bill provides for operation of 1080 ships in the active fleet, a cut of 46 from 1954 due to end of Korean operations where escort carriers and other auxilitry ships no longer needed. Construction program includes 30 new ships including a fourth Forrestal-class carrier and a third atomic submarine. Mothball fleet to be maintained with about 1400 ships. Bill provides also for present strength of 9941 "operating aircraft" with continued delivery of more modern planes. Average Navy manpower for 1955 will be 712,400.

Marine Corps — Gets $612,180,600 included in Navy funds, a cut of $1,819,400 from President's request. Marines to remain at three combat divisions and three combat air wings at

BILL TO RE-ENACT EARNINGS TAX IS INTRODUCED IN CITY BOARD

Mayor Pleads for Prompt Action by Aldermen to Provide Adequate Income for Vital Services.

A bill to re-enact the St. Louis earnings tax was introduced in the Board of Aldermen this afternoon by Majority Floor Leader Louis G. Berra. Duplicating the ordinance which expired April 1, it called for a levy of one half of 1 per cent on the gross earnings of individuals and on the net profits of businesses.

Mayor Raymond R. Tucker, in summoning the aldermen to a special session at noon, asked them to meet daily to rush enactment of the important revenue measure.

Before the bill was introduced, Board President Charles Albanese read to the aldermen a letter in which the Mayor urged speedy enactment of the measure.

"I am confident that each of you is fully aware of the need of the city for an adequate income to permit it to carry on vitally needed services to the people of this community," the letter stated.

"Without the prompt enactment of this legislation permitting collection of an earnings tax, the services provided by this municipality must be immediately and drastically reduced.

"It is my hope that you will act as expeditiously as possible on this matter in order to assure the future of St. Louis and to maintain the health and welfare of our community."

Passage of a bill requires consideration at three separate meetings of the board. Given its first reading today, the earnings tax measure could be read again and be referred to a committee tomorrow. On Wednesday it could be reported out of committee for its final reading and could be passed then under suspension of rules.

Following introduction of the bill, the aldermanic session was recessed until noon tomorrow. It is expected that the measure will be referred to the Ways and Means Committee. Alderman Berra, who is chairman, said the committee on receiving the bill would meet immediately to consider it, clearing the way for a favorable report and passage Wednesday.

The measure drafted by the city counselor's office carried an emergency clause which would eliminate the usual 30-day wait and make the ordinance effective immediately it was signed by the Mayor. It is proposed to reinstate the tax Saturday.

The earnings tax has been bringing in about $8,000,000 a year. With the city losing revenue at the rate of $22,000 a day since the old tax expired, Tucker was anxious to lose no time in restoring the levy.

The State Legislature has authorized St. Louis to levy an earnings tax without voter approval only until next April 15. If the city submits the tax ordinance to a vote of the people between now and April 15, and the voters approve the levy, the tax may be contnued until April 15. 1957.

If the ordinance is disapproved at the polls, the tax still could be continued until April 15, 1956, or for one more year. Failure to hold a referendum would mean termination of the tax next April.

If it chooses, the city also could submit the earnings tax question to the voters in the form of a charter amendment or as a part of a new city charter before April 15, 1957. If either charter proposal carried, the city's authority to tax earnings would become permanent.

Mayor Tucker has not yet decided which course to follow to extend the city's taxing authority beyond the limited period.

HUNDREDS IN ITALY MUST GO BACK TO PRISON, COURT SAYS

ROME, April 26 (UP)—Hundreds of political prisoners freed last year under an amnesty law must go back to jail, the Italian high court has ruled.

Some 500 persons sentenced to life imprisonment for political crimes had their terms commuted to five years and eight months. Most of them were released since they had been in jail longer than that.

The Court of Cassation held, however, that the amnesty applied only to those who have been pardoned formally by relatives of their victims or who have paid damages to the relatives. The rest will have to go back to jail, it ruled.

GENEVA CONFEREES AGREE TO TACKLE KOREA PEACE; GOOD START, DULLES SAYS

As Geneva Conference Opened

QUICK DECISION ON PROCEDURE; RED CHINA ROLE NOT MENTIONED

By EDDY GILMORE.

GENEVA, April 26 (AP)—The East and the West quickly disposed of procedural questions at the opening o fthe Geneva conference on Asia today and agreed to plunge into the task of trying to make a permanent peace in Korea.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, Anthony Eden, Britain's foreign secretary and a spokesman for Russia agreed after the brief opening meeting that the 19 nations got off to a good start.

The foreign minister of South Korea, Pyun Yung Tai, is expected to be the first speaker at tomorrow's session and the Russians said a North Korean, probably Foreign Minister Nam Il, would speak for North Korea.

After a brief discussion before the opening of the conference, representatives of the 16 nations that fought on the Allied side in Korea and the Russians, agreed that Prince Wan Waithayakon, foreign minister of Thailand, would be the first chairman and that he would be followed on subsequent days by Russia's V. M. Molotov and Eden, the chair then reverting back to Prince Wan and so on in the same order.

Red China Sits In.

The question of Red China's role at Geneva did not come up at the opening meeting—devoted to procedure—but Chou En-lai, the Communist Premier and foreign minister sat at the conference with the other representatives of the other 18 nations.

Prince Wan called the conference to order in the council chamber of the United Nations headquarters, formerly the League of Nations building, Palace of Nations.

Final peace in Korea and an end to the bloodshed in Indochina were the momentous issues before the conference, but grave and bitter differences were still to be settled in preliminary debate.

Dulles Threatens Walkout.

Dulles has threatened to walk out of the conference rather than accept Red China as a nation of equal status with the Big Four, who called the Geneva parley as a result of last winter's Berlin conference.

(The United Press pointed out that the decision on who was to preside at conference sessions settled at least one question in regard to Communist China. Had the Peiping government been accepted as one of the sponsoring powers at the conference, its delegate might have been entitled to preside at some sessions, along with those of the Big Four.)

Prince Wan, delegate to the United Nations for several years, was delayed in calling the historic meeting to order. France's Foreign Minister Georges Bidault was late in arriving and photographers were allowed in the chamber to record the opening.

Dulles Arrives Early.

Not since the depressing days of 1939 has such a high-level diplomatic meeting been held in the building. Many of the between-the-wars hopes for peace in Europe lay slumbering there.

Secretary Dulles was the first of the Big Four ministers to arrive.

Molotov walked into the chamber, where the council of the old League of Nations condemned his nation for making war on Finland, with Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko at his side. Molotov's face was expressionless.

Eden laughed and chatted with his companion, Lord Reading, Under Secretary of State in the British Foreign office. Eden had been in the chamber many times during the days of the league.

Dulles, asked if he was satisfied with the opening, replied:

Prince Wan said the conference had done nothing beyond ratifying the Big Four decision on the chairmanship question. There was no discussion of voting procedure or of the status of any participating nation, he said. This was a reference to the fight over the role of Red China.

Molotov Finds Solution.

MALENKOV SAYS ATOM ATTACK WOULD BE REPAID

Asserts Any Such Aggressor Against Russia Would Be Crushed by Same Weapon.

MOSCOW, April 26 (UP)—Premier Malenkov said today that if the west should attack Russia with atom bombs "the aggressor would be crushed by the same weapon."

In a speech before one chamber of the Supreme Soviet, Malenkov warned:

"If the aggressive circles, banking on the atomic weapon, should resort to madness and should want to test the strength and might of the Soviet Union, the aggressor would be crushed by the same weapon and such an adventure would inevitably lead to the ruin of the capitalistic social system."

Charges Provocations.

Malenkov then accused the west of provoking the extension of the Indochina war and of setting up new military bases and blocs.

"The enemies of the strengthening of the peace," he said, "have not given up aggressive aspirations and are continuing the arms drive, provoking the extension of war in Indochina, and are setting up new military bases and blocs."

The Communist party and government, Malenkov said, "are showing unabated care for a further strengthening of the defensive capacity of the Soviet Union."

Russia's military services, he assured the Council of Nationalities, "have at their disposal everything that is necessary to carry out their lofty mission . . . to be ready always to deliver a crushing rebuff to any aggressor.

"The ever growing application of atomic energy, both in the interests of safeguarding the the security of our motherland as well as for peaceful industrial purposes is a great merit of Soviet scientists," he said.

Tempers His Warning.

The Soviet Premier tempered his warning to possible aggressors with a restatement of Russia's desire to join the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, under certain circumstances, and said Russia wants to cooperate with all nations.

He told the delegates that capitalism and socialism can coexist, while competing in the field of economics. It was his first major appearance before the current sessions of the Supreme Soviet.

The Premier said Russia attached great importance to the development of trade with all countries and said Russia's foreign trade increased two and one-half times in the past two years. He said Russia has commercial transactions with 50 foreign countries in spite of the "discriminatory policies of certain American ruling circles."

EXPRESS HIGHWAY CLOSED

The Express Highway was closed at 10:30 a.m. today for repairs and maintenance work. It will be reopened some time this afternoon before the evening rush hour, police said.

Red City Gets Blue Name.

TOKYO, April 26 (AP)—The capital city of Inner Mongolia has changed names. The Peiping radio said today the old name, Kweisui, was too remindful of its days under the rule of the Chinese Nationalists. The city is now called Huhehota, Mongolian for "Blue City."

BIDAULT MAKES PLEA FOR TRUCE TO EVACUATE DIEN BIEN PHU WOUNDED

GENEVA, April 26 (UP). FRENCH Foreign Minister Georges Bidault appealed today for a truce to allow evacuation of 1000 French wounded in besieged Dien Bien Phu in Indochina.

In an "appeal to the conscience of the civilized world" issued after the opening meeting of Geneva conference, Bidault declared:

"It would be inconceivable that a conference meeting in Geneva should not open with a gesture to save from the hazards of combat the men who no longer can take part in it because they already have shed their blood. May my appeal, issued from this high place of peace, be heard."

Bidault recalled that France had agreed to a Vietminh truce request for removal of wounded but said that all of France's appeals had been ignored by the Communists, in violation of "the laws of war."

MOSCOW RUNNING INDOCHINA REDS NOW, 'VOICE' SAYS

TOKYO, April 26 (UP)—The Communist army in Indochina now is being directed by Moscow through a Chinese headquarters near the Indochina border, the American radio Voice of the U.N. Command charged tonight.

It suggested that Red China's Gen. Lin Piao may be commanding the Communist assault on Dien Bien Phu.

The United States psychological warfare agency based its charge on the fact that a long distance carrier wave telephone service between Nanning, southern China, and Moscow opened Feb. 15.

The Chinese and Korean language broadcast quoted the Feb. 11 issue of the Nanning newspaper Kwangsi Jih Pao which announced opening of the telephone circuit "to cope with the present needs of industrial development." The broadcast ridiculed this assertion, pointing out that Nanning is a farming center more than 4000 miles from Moscow but only 85 miles from the Indochinese border.

The broadcast suggested the new telephone line is being used by Moscow to "give orders and co-ordinate activities with a Communist high command veteran, Lin Piao."

JENKINS CALLS STEVENS 'SENATOR' AND GETS LAUGH

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 26 —Senate committee hearings on the McCarthy-Army controversy had a laugh today when committee Counsel Ray Jenkins addressed Secretary of the Army Robert T. B. Stevens as "Senator."

Stevens, Jenkins, Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (Rep.), Wisconsin, and the audience all broke out in laughter. "I don't know whether that's a promotion or not," Jenkins quipped.

FRENCH DELIVER HEAVY BOMBER BLOWS AT REDS

American-Supplied Corsairs in Action First Time at Beleaguered Dien Bien Phu.

HANOI, Indochina, April 26 (AP) — French fighters and bombers—with newly arrived, American-supplied Corsairs in action for the first time—today laid down the heaviest air strikes of the entire Indochinese war against Communist-led Vietminh troops who threaten to smash into the French Union fortress at Dien Bien Phu.

The French high command, announcing this tonight, did not disclose the number of sorties but said they were far in excess of the previous one day's record of 136 missions early this year. The warplanes dropped hundreds of tons of 500, 1000- and 2000-pound bombs on rebel troops concentrated in the hills surrounding the fortress.

Reds Peppered From Planes.

Vietminh entrenched along the fringes of the bastion also were heavily hit by bombers and for hours were peppered with thousands of machinegun bullets from low-flying fighter planes.

The tightly-packed French Union defenders, driven into a cluster of fortifications less than a mile and a quarter across, were in an "extremely serious but not desperate" position, the French reported last night. Today they said the situation was "unchanged."

Informants in radio contact with the isolated, encircled plain said the morale of the garrison troops was "sky high" as they braced themselves for a renewal of hand-to-hand fighting.

Troops Parachuted to Fort.

(The United Press reports that an undisclosed number of French Union volunteers were parachuted into Dien Bien Phu today. It said the men jumped from low-flying transport planes in an early-morning mist which concealed them from Communist gunners.

(The parachutists were believed to number less than 100 men, the U.P. said, but military observers pointed out it was a daring move to attempt to parachute even one man onto the constricted battleground. A spokesman disclosed that another reinforcement unit of 90 men had been parachuted to Dien Bien Phu Friday.)

The Reds turned their heaviest mortar and artillery fire on the northwestern corner of the shrunken Dien Bien Phu redoubt. This was an attempt to rip bigger holes in the crumbling defenses in the northwest, opening a path for the masses of Vietminh infantrymen wait-

Rash of Lucky-Number Contests Piles Up Social Security Expense

WASHINGTON, April 26 (UP—The Social Security Administration wishes that promoters of lucky number contests would please not use Social Security numbers.

"Social Security is important and ought not to be made a play toy," a spokesman for the old-age insurance agency said today.

Besides, he said, such contests cause the Government trouble and expense.

The contests usually work this way: A number or series of numbers is published or broadcast. Anyone who has a social security card with a matching number gets a prize sometimes in cash.

The spokesman said there was a rash of such contests on radio stations around the country a few years ago. There was an appreciable spurt in applications for Social Security cards in localities where the contests were conducted, the spokesman said. That is what caused the trouble and expense to the Government.

Housewives and others who had no intention of joining the working force got Social Security cards so they would have a chance at winning. And, the spokesman said, he suspects some workers with a card obtained another under a different name so they would have two chances.

Why Eisenhower Quit Smoking: His Cigarettes Got to Be 'Props'

WASHINGTON, April 26 (UP) —President Eisenhower, waiting to do his recent telecast about world tensions, confessed that for a long time he didn't know quite how to occupy his hands when he was speaking.

He told people in the studio where he used for the first time his casual stance against his desk with arms folded, that one reason he quit smoking was that he found himself using cigarettes as props when he was in a conference.

"I'd find myself with five or six cigarettes going when I was talking in a meeting or thinking about what I was going to say," said Mr. Eisenhower. "So that was one reason I gave up smoking."

PLEA BY FRENCH FOR DIRECT U.S. MILITARY AID TURNED DOWN

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS

(Copyright, 1954, Pulitzer Publishing Co.)

GENEVA, April 26—Nothing that is said or done at this conference between East and West is likely to touch the drama of the series of meetings that took place in Paris and London just before the foreign ministers of the Western powers were to sit down across from the Communists. While it is a dream that may still end in stark tragedy for the West, hopes have begun to rise a little from the low point of the weekend.

The sequence of events turned around the fateful course of the war in Indochina, with the French insisting that only massive intervention by the United States could prevent a rout that might compel French troops to pull out entirely. The belief is growing that the situation in Indochina has been painted in colors darker than justified, by the Laniel government in Paris, because of the dubious status of that government. Admittedly this is based not so much on first-hand facts as on the need to sustain some resolution and hope in the moment of meeting with the Russians and the Chinese.

Emergency Pact Now Aim.

It is still hoped a southeast Asian defense structure can be put together not through the lengthy process of diplomatic negotiation and treaty but on an emergency basis. Congress would be asked in a joint resolution to approve such an organization, with stress by President Eisenhower on the speediest possible action.

It is believed a Congressional resolution would be a sanction under the Constitution for the use of American forces in a joint action just as American adherence to the United Nations Charter was used by President Truman as authority for committing American troops to repel the North Korean Communists.

As the British well know such action entails great risks since it might bring direct Chinese intervention and full-scale war in Asia. The alternative is to hope that the French are wrong and, second, if they are right in their dire prophecies, that the consequences will be less disastrous than they believe.

Eisenhower Plan Reported.

The United Press in a Geneva dispatch, quoted authoritative American sources as saying President Eisenhower may ask Congress "in the very near future" to approve armed United States intervention in the Indochinese war if necessary to prevent military disaster.

(In Washington, Representative Bentley, (Rep.), Michigan, a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said he believes the President will request —and get—congressional approval to send United States troops to Indochina if it turns out there is no other way to save the country from Communist conquest.

(The Geneva sources quoted by the U.P. said the President is studying the possibility of addressing a special message to a joint session of Congress, requesting permission to order United States air and sea power to strike at the Communist forces in Indochina.)

France's Desperate Plea.

Beginning late Thursday, when France's Foreign Minister Georges Bidault told Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden that Dien Bien Phu seemed to be lost and with it perhaps all of the rich delta area around Hanoi, events moved toward a grim climax. Friday was largely taken up by the public and private sessions of the NATO council.

In the last closed session Dulles delivered what was in effect a blunt warning. Speaking of the importance of ratification of the EDC treaty, he said that if action was not taken in the near future then it would be necessary to call a special session of the council, without waiting for the next regular meeting in late November or December, to consider what course to follow. Of the six EDC countries, France and Italy are the only two that have failed to get parliamentary approval.

That evening Bidault called on Dulles with word that his government sought immediate direct intervention by American planes piloted by American flyers to try to save the beleaguered force at Dien Bien Phu and thereby insure the security of the delta. Those who heard the Bidault plea were reminded of that other tragic moment in recent history when a French government appealed to President Roosevelt in 1940 on the eve of the fall of France for "a cloud of planes" to keep the Nazi invaders out of Paris.

Crucial Conference.

Bidault's request, put in urgent, almost desperate terms, was taken under advisement with at least a show of outward calm by Dulles and his advisers.

The following morning at 9 o'clock the group the Secretary had brought with him for the Geneva conference met at Ambassador C. Douglas Dillon's residence on the Avenue d'Iena. For the first hour and a half they canvassed possible steps that might be taken with American assistance short of actual belligerency. It appeared that these potentialities had been exhausted with what had already been done, the final step being the airlift of French paratroopers from Orly field outside Paris to Saigon.

At this point Adm. Arthur Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, who is visiting supreme headquarters of the NATO command in connection with the fifth anniversary observance, was brought into the conference at the embassy residence. Radford, a forceful advocate of punitive action against Communist China, had come hurriedly from SHAPE several miles outside the city. He agreed that nothing short of direct intervention which would be an act of war would be of any further help in the Indochinese conflict.

Constitution Brought Up.

Dulles pointed out that this would be in violation of the Constitution of the United States which gives Congress the right to declare war. During all this time the French cabinet had been in emergency session. From the embassy residence a reply was sent to Bidault to the effect that under the American system of government the President could not intervene without the consent of Congress and that this consent could scarcely be obtained, even if it were to be sought, quickly enough to provide emergency help. Here again was the parallel with 1940 when Roosevelt replied to the government of Premier Paul Reynaud with the statement that he could not intervene under the powers vested in him by the Constitution.

(The Associated Press quoted an authoritative French source in Geneva as saying Dulles told Bidault that Washington's position would be much different if the Western Big Three succeed in their announced plans to form a 10-nation Pacific counterpart of the North Atlantic alliance. Britain and France have agreed to study the possibility of such a pact but made no further commitment.

(Conclusion of such an alliance, Dulles was reported to have told Bidault, would open the path for American consideration of a French request for direct military help.)

Twice Dulles took time out from the tense sessions in the ambassadorial drawing room. Once he went for a talk with Chief of State Bao Dai of Viet Nam and again he skipped an official luncheon to go with his wife and Ambassador and Mrs. Dillon to a quiet restaurant in the Bois de Boulogne, the latter being an effort to get away if only for a bit from the pressure that had been mounting so steadily since he left Washington.

In the afternoon word came from Premier Laniel that since direct American aid was not available, Dien Bien Phu was almost certain to fall and that would in turn mean the fall of the Laniel government within a matter of hours or at most a few days. The effort to find a new government, certain to be bitter and prolonged, would greatly embarrass the deliberations at Geneva if it would not indeed compel a recess of the conference.

Eden's Trip to London.

Dulles and the Americans had been in almost constant touch with Eden and the British through these trying hours. Eden returned to London after the talks here for an emergency meeting of Prime Minister Churchill's cabinet to determine what action Britain might take. Since he had first projected an Asian defense pact like that of NATO, Dulles had insisted that countries with vital interests in southeast Asia must be willing to furnish strength to sustain resistance to Communism not alone in Indochina but throughout the area.

(In two emergency conferences Sunday the Churchill cabinet also was reported to have ruled out a suggestion to send British troops to Indochina, the A.P. reported from London. As worried crowds reminiscent of pre-World War II days gathered outside Churchill's office, the ministers were reported to have shelved at least temporarily, any idea of direct military intervention.

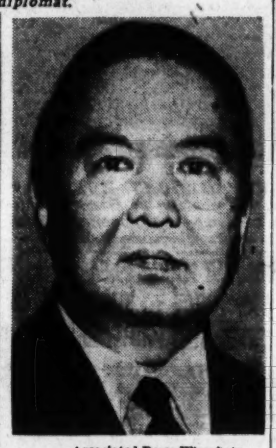

(Sources indicated, however, the British might send more troops and planes to neighboring Malaya and perhaps stage British naval maneuvers off the Indochina coast as a "show of force" to bolster French morale.)

SUPREME COURT DENIES TIDELAND OIL REHEARING

Also Turns Down Plea It Clarify March 15 Opinion on 1953 Submerged Lands Act.

WASHINGTON, April 26 (AP)—the Supreme Court today refused to reconsider its March 15 decision upholding legality of the 1953 Submerged Lands Act which gave oil-rich offshore lands to coastal states.

Rhode Island and Alabama asked for reconsideration of the decision in petitions which contended the high tribunal also should permit them to file suits against California, Texas, Louisiana and Florida, the states expected to get most benefits from the 1953 act.

The Supreme Court said last month that Congress has unlimited power to dispose of property belonging to the United States.

In asking for reconsideration, Rhode Island and Alabama said the courts ruling "constitutes an "advisory opinion on hypothetical questions of law and fact involved basic state and Federal relations; prejudicing but not adjudicating the actual cases and controversies presented by (Rhode Island and Alabama)."

Rejects Another Request.

The Court today also rejected a Rhode Island request that it "clarify" its March 15 opinion. Rhode Island said the Court had given no consideration to the meaning and effect of the 1953 Submerged Lands Act.

While the Rhode Island and Alabama petitions for reconsideration were pending, West Virginia, Missouri, Kentucky and Montana filed "friend of the court" briefs which urged the Court to grant the petitions.

In other actions today the Court:

Upheld New York State's action in suspending the medical license of Dr. Edward K. Barsky because he was convicted of contempt of Congress. The contempt charge against Barsky, New York City chairman of the joint anti-Fascist refugee committee, stemmed from his refusal to produce records of the refugee body before the House Un-American Activities Committee.

Theater Bookings.

Agreed to review a decision that legitimate theater bookings, like big league baseball, are not subject to the anti-trust laws. The decision was given by United States District Judge John C. Knox in New York City and was appealed directly to the high tribunal by the Justice Department.

Refused to interfere with an appeals court ruling which reversed the contempt of court convictions of two men who gave "I don't remember" answers to a Federal grand jury in Boston investigating the $1,219,000 Brink's Co. holdup.

The two are Donald T. O'Keefe and Paul J. Hooley. O'Keefe is a brother, and Hooley a brother-in-law, of Joseph O'Keefe, who the Justice Department said was suspected of having had a major part in the robbery.

SCIENTISTS DENY SUBVERSION AT FORT MONMOUTH

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 26—A loyalty committee of the Federation of American Scientists has reported it found "no evidence" of espionage or subversion at the Army's Fort Monmouth (N.J.) laboratories.

The committee's findings, made public yesterday, said the only effects of a one-man investigation conducted by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (Rep.), Wisconsin, have been "substantion damage" to research programs at the laboratories and "lowered morale."

Charges that an espionage ring was operating at the Fort Monmouth installation, where the Signal Corps maintains its principal radar and communications research center, have figured prominently in the current dispute between McCarthy and top Army officials, including Secretary Robert T. Stevens.

'Blackmail' Charge.

McCarthy has contended the Army attempted to "blackmail" him into dropping the Fort Monmouth inquiry by threatening to publish his alleged efforts to obtain favors for Pvt. G. David Schine, a former unpaid assistant to McCarthy's investigations subcommittee.

The federation's committee on loyalty and security, headed by Ernest C. Pollard, professor of biophysics at Yale University, made a four-month study of the McCarthy hearings and a separate investigation by the Army Security Board, in addition to questioning most of the Fort Monmouth personel involved.

Its 66-page report called on President Eisenhower to appoint a "high level" committee of scientists and administrators to study various questions raised by the McCarthy investigation, including its cost to the defense effort.

Summarizing their findings, the scientists said: "No evidence of espionage at SCEL (Signal Corps Engineering Laboratories), in recent years or at present, was shown during the (Senate) subcommittee investigation."

McCarthy, in a statement last Oct. 12, said his subcommittee staff had unearthed a situation at the laboratories which "has all the earmarks of extremely dangerous espionage."

Comment on Personnel.

However, the scientists reported: "Most persons publicly linked with the investigation had little or no connection with the laboratories, and only one of the 40-odd employes implicated by the Army was called before the subcommittee in open hearings.

"None of these employes has refused to testify on the grounds of possible self-incrimination or any other grounds; all have co-operated fully during the investigations and have denied under oath the charges against them or the conclusions inferred.

Recommendations of Group.

The report recommended that a presidential committee might study these points:

1. "The active research output per dollar at Monmouth in comparison with laboratories such as Bell Laboratories, General Electric Co., Project Lincoln (which is examing defense of the continental United States) or the Naval Research Laboratory."

2. The background of military security personnel and the question of whether they are guilty of racial or religious prejudice.

3. The seriousness of any "proved" espionage or security leaks in recent years.

The committee's work was sponsored by the Federation of American Scientists, a national organization with headquarters in Washington. Committee members, in addition to Pollard, included Ralph S. Brown Jr., G. E. Hutchison and Julian M. Sturtevant, all of Yale, and S. A. Goudsmit, Brookhaven National Laboratories, and Hugh C. Wolfe, Cooper Union College, New York.

PRESIDENT SAYS INDOCHINA IS 'CORK IN BOTTLE' OF ASIA

Tells U.S. Chamber Outcome of War There Carries 'the Greatest Significance' for This Country.

WASHINGTON, April 26 (AP)—President Eisenhower declared today that this is "a time of great decisions" in world affairs, with the outcome of the Indochinese war carrying "the greatest significance for the United States."

The President told the United States Chamber of Commerce that Indochina is "the cork in the bottle" whose loss would affect the fate of hundreds of millions in "the surrounding areas of Asia."

Preceding Mr. Eisenhower's address, Secretary of Defense Wilson told the Chamber that events in Europe and Asia may force a full-scale new look at United States military plans, policies and spending.

Says Japan May Be at Stake.

Mr. Eisenhower declared that survival of "the newly formed, democratic government of Japan" may also hinge on events in Southeast Asia, since the affected area is the one with which Japan must trade.

How can the democratic government of Japan exist, he asked, if those areas are lost to Communism?

Mr. Eisenhower voiced hope, however, that the conference of world powers which opened today at Geneva would find some peaceful solution of the hazards.

"We would hope," Mr. Eisenhower declared, "that the logic of today's situation would appeal to all peoples—regardless of their ruthlessness.

"(We would hope) that they would see the futility of depending on war or the threat of war as a means of settling their difficulties."

Why War Is Futile.

Explaining why war has become futile, the President declared the atomic age has so vastly increased the destructive power of modern weapons that their use "would almost be a decisive act on the outbreak of hostilities."

While the United States must beware of exaggerating the danger, Mr. Eisenhower said it must also prepare to meet its difficulties in time, adhering to the philosophy of "a stitch in time saves nine."

The United States is striving to build "a sound economy at home and reasonable, enlightened policies abroad," the President said. He called for support of his foreign economic program based on the findings of the Randall Commission last fall, and called for gradual lowering of tariff and trade barriers.

In his speech, Secretary Wilson reported the first new look, started shortly after the Eisenhower Administration took over, has been completed and has led to "great and encouraging progress" in the military program.

He said, however, that military programs and forecasts of money required to carry them out are always subject to change.

Next Few Months Critical.

He added:

"The next few months are obviously critical ones in world affairs, and what happens in Europe and Asia during this period may force a soul-searching review of our specific policies, plans objectives and expenditures."

"I can now say without reservation that this intensive study has been made and that great and encouraging progress has resulted from the re-examination and re-orientation of our military program," Wilson said.

"I do not claim that all the inefficiencies and waste in our defense activities have been eliminated, nor that all of our objectives will shortly be achieved," he said. "Improvement must be a continuing process."

Wilson said the review would have been needed regardless of who the new military chiefs were in order to develop a "long pull" program after the Korean war ended.

Among basic concepts involved in the new program, he said, were taking into "full account" the nations's atomic weapons arsenal, emphasis on new weapons, including air power, with a resulting saving in manpower, and top mobility by the armed forces which requires "the reassembly of our strategic reserve forces as dictated by world conditions."

VIET NAM'S CHIEF OF STATE VETOES ANY PARTITIONING

Bao Dai Says Freedom Pact Hasn't Been Reached — France 'Surprised.'

PARIS, April 26 (UP)—Viet Namese Chief of State Bao Dai today was on record as firmly opposed to any compromise solution to the Indochinese war that would provide for partition of Viet Nam.

He also announced, in a communique released here yesterday, the failure of France and Viet Nam to reach agreement on complete independence for the largest of the three states which make up to Associated States of Indochina. The others are Cambodia and Laos.

Signing of the treaty had been expected yesterday. United States Secretary of State John Foster Dulles on his visit to Paris last week urged French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault to push Viet Nam independence before the opening of the Geneva peace conference.

Such an agreement, the West had hoped, would spike Communist propaganda that the French were fighting a "colonial war" in Indochina.

Bao Dai referred in the communique to what he said were "various plans" which would provide for the partitioning of Viet Nam as a solution to the problem of the war in Indochina.

The Viet Nam government has agred finally not to conclude this phase of the negotiations by a signature of the two treaties of independence and association on which accord has been reached," Bao Dai said. "In certain respects, Viet Nam has not received all the promised concrete assurances that its unity and independence as a free partner (in the French union) would be guaranteed.

"As concerns unity, it is known that various plans have been devised for division of Viet Nam. These solutions would provide certain diplomatic advantages, but they invite difficulties and dangers extremely grave for the future. They would be a challenge to the Viet Nam national sentiment which has proclaimed forcefully for unity as well as for independence."

The French government expressed "surprise" at the statement which, it said, "seems to cast doubt at France's good will regarding a settlement."

It said that the talks, which began March 8, were as "yet unfinished." It held that the treaties being worked out jointly do not "jeopardize Viet Nam's unity and contain all the guarantees of its independence."

HOUSING PROJECT HERE BUILT FOR ABOUT AMOUNT OF ITS FHA LOANS

Insured Estimates on Canterbury Gardens Based on Agency's Own Estimates, Member of Firm Says.

The 844-unit Canterbury Gardens apartment project in University City actually was built for approximately the amount of government insured loans of $7,212,200, although Federal Housing Administration regulations provided for loans of only 90 per cent of value, Marvin L. Warner, one of the promoters, told the Post-Dispatch today.

Warner emphasized, however, that the loan arrangements were in full compliance with FHA regulations, since loan insurance was based on the FHA's own estimates of what costs would be.

Says Assurance Was Given.

Reached at Cincinnati, where Warner is a partner in the Warner-Kanter Construction Co., builders and owners of Canterbury Gardens, Warner said his firm received from FHA, before construction started in June 1950, an assurance that the amount of loans to be insured would not be reduced if the promoters were able to build for less than the FHA estimates.

"FHA told us it did not anticipate we would be able to complete the project at less than the estimate of its own staff, but that if we were able to, it would not consider it equitable to reduce the amount of its commitments," Warner said.

"But we found we were able to build at a lower figure and now the stories out of Washington are making it look as if somebody has been defrauded. The fact is that the project is exceedingly successful, with 99 per cent tenancy at fair rents, and nobody is losing anything.

"If we had failed and the project had been a flop, as some have been elsewhere in the country, we would have been out of pocket and so would the bonding company and the Government—but that has not happened.

Denies a 'Windfall.'

"This talk about a 'windfall' to us is simply not justified." Warner referred to announcement at Washington that two contracts between Warner-Kanter and the MacDonald Construction Co. of St. Louis, one for $100,000 less than the amount certified to FHA, were under investigation by the Internal Revenue Service.

The construction contract reported to FHA, on the first of the two sections of the apartment project, was for $3,239,915, but the day before there had been a contract for $3,139,915, not reported to FHA.

Warner said he did not recall the circumstances of the two contracts but said in any event they were of no primary interest to FHA since it already had made its own cost estimates. The insured loan on the first section was for $3,654,000, which was based on construction cost estimates plus land value, architects' fees and other costs.

Effect of Earlier Contract.

Hugo P. Albrecht, who headed the St. Louis FHA office at the time, told Justice Department investigators his office did not know of the earlier contract, but expressed the opinion its extistence would not have affected handling of the loan commitment.

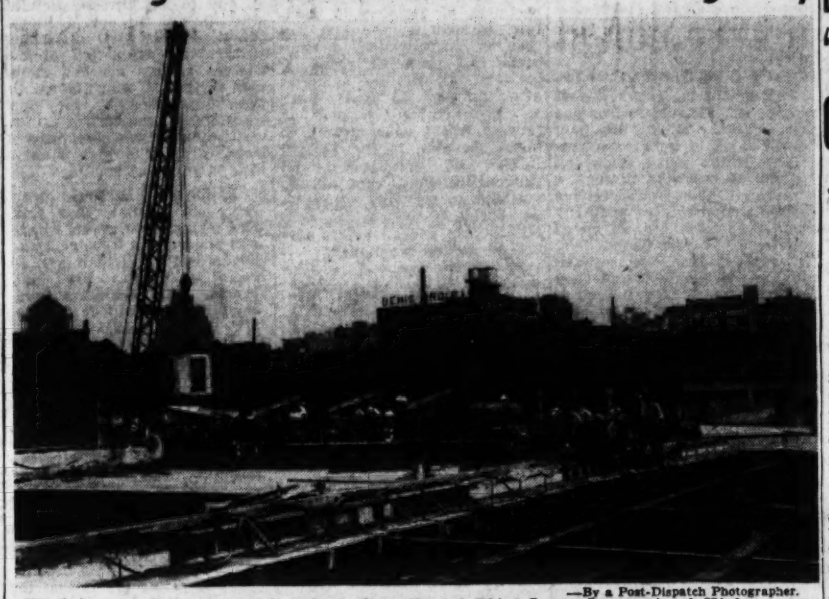

Warner said that "what people seem to forget now is that the whole purpose of the Government loan-insuring program was to supply housing in a time of great shortage.

"We went into St. Louis and provided housing, and other builders did the same thing in other cities. After we finished the job we were told we had done something very good. Now it seems unfair to castigate us. FHA officials were honest and above reproach throughout the program."

At Washington investigators told the Post-Dispatch the Government's position was that mortgaging of apartment projects for more than their actual value would make it difficult to fix rents high enough to pay off notes.

As new projects are built, renters will refuse to pay the higher rates made necessary by the over-valuation, and will move to lower-rent projects, a spokesman said.

OLD HOME, PLANT OF BALLOONIST TO BE DESTROYED

The 51-year-old Morris A. Heimann residence, 1209 Rutger street, and the adjacent factory, where some of St. Louis's first biplanes and balloons were made, will be razed next month by the Aalco Wrecking Co. to make way for the Darst housing project, it was announced today by Harry M. Hochman, president of the wrecking firm.

Heimann, who was injured in 1909 when a strong gale blew his balloon down 75 miles south of the city, was born in Germany, came here when 21 and died 13 years ago at the age of 73.

His factory was erected for the manufacture of store fixtures, but he added airplanes and balloons on becoming an aviation enthusiast after popular fancy was stirred by balloon ascensions at the 1904 World's Fair. Last occupant of the factory has been a baby carriage manufacturer, recent purchaser of new quarters.

Files of Dr. William G. Swekosky, St. Louis dentist whose hobby is history of landmarks here, describe the Heimann residence as "a rendezvous for such early St. Louis aeronauts as Capt. Albert Berry, Maj. Albert Bond Lambert and Capt. H. E. Honeywell."

POLICE CHASE FOX, SHOOT IT 6 TIMES, BUT IT SURVIVES

A gray fox led police a chase for hours today and was captured after being shot six times. It survived the shooting.

Calls that a wild fox was trotting around in the 1400 block of Union boulevard came in to police before dawn today.

Officers spotted the animal, gave chase, fired a fusillade—the fox kept going. More reports came in from the area and police kept fox hunting. Each time the animal got away.

The fox was cornered and captured by police and Humane Society Officer Bob Green in a basement entrance near Arlington and Easton avenues. It will be treated for its wounds at the society shelter. Green explained the shooting was necessary because of possibility the fox might have been rabid. Apparently it wasn't.

RIGID PROSECUTION URGED FOR RUBBISH VIOLATORS

More rigid prosecution of persons who fail to dispose of rubbish as provided by ordinance is needed if St. Louis is to become a thoroughly clean city, participants in a panel discussion said yesterday in a broadcast over Radio Station KWK.

Mrs. Harriet Williams, field secretary for the Urban League, said many residents of the city try hard to keep their neighborhoods clean but are unable to do so because violators are not prosecuted vigorously. Often they are discharged in police court when brought in on charges of failing to dispose of garbage and rubbish properly, she said.

Director of Streets and Sewers Frank Kriz pointed out his department's responsibility is making collections. Arrests for violations, he said, are up to the police department. Dr. J. Earl Smith, health commissioner, said sheds which serve as catch-alls for junk constitute a problem because they are breeding areas for rats and mosquitoes.

4 ROB NEW YORK BANK OF $35,000

Holdup Men Wait Until Guard Goes to Lunch, Then Strike Quickly.

NEW YORK, April 26 (UP)—Four men robbed a midtown bank of more than $35,000 in exactly five minutes today.

Waiting until the guard in a new, five-teller wing of the Clinton Trust Co. went to lunch at 11 a.m., three of the robbers entered the wing's entrance.

One stook guard with a pistol at the door. Another vaulted into the cage of teller James Dalgish, emptied a drawer of $15,000 in cash and vaulted out. The third vaulted into the same cage, grabbed a metal box containing more than $15,000, and vaulted out.

The bank later totaled its loss as $35,755.78.

The gunman at the door forced Assistant Bank Secretary Louis Esposito to lie on the floor. Three customers who entered while the robbery was in progress were forced to lie down beside Esposito. At 11:05, the three left and escaped in a sedan which the fourth man had parked nearby.

Police were investigating the possibility that they were connected with an unsuccessful bank holdup attempt in Brooklyn three hours earlier.

In the Brooklyn affair, two men fled, dropping eight pairs of handcuffs, a coil of rope, and a roll of three-inch adhesive tape when a cashier sounded the alarm.

TOMORROW LAST DAY TO FILE FOR AUG. 3 PRIMARIES

Tomorrow is the last day on which persons desiring to seek nomination at the Aug. 3 primary elections may file their declarations of candidacy. The offices of the St. Louis and St. Louis county Boards of Election Commissioners will remain open until midnight to receive filings.

Only 16 Republicans and 59 Democrats had filed for nominations for the 48 offices for which nominees will be chosen in St. Louis when the St. Louis election office at 208 South Twelfth boulevard closed Saturday. No Republicans had filed for 35 offices.

However, Ancel A. Skaggs, chairman of the Republican City Committee, explained that a special committee is screening candidates to get the "best and strongest" ones. He said there will be a full slate of Republicans.

AIRMAN BECOMES CITIZEN; MADE U.S. HIS BENEFICIARY

BOSTON, April 26 (UP)—Airman Anton Topole, 19 years old, of Yugoslavia, who named Uncle Sam beneficiary of his $10,000 service life insurance policy, took the oath of allegiance as a citizen today.

Topole, who escaped from Yugoslavia alone via Trieste more than five years ago, named the United States Government as beneficiary of his life insurance some months ago, saying "there is no price tag on my obligation to America or the value I place on living in America. My insurance is all I have, this I give with humble gratitude."

NEW LOUDSPEAKER DOES WONDERS AT ARMY HEARINGS

WASHINGTON, April 26 (AP)—For those inside the hearing room, there was an important new development today in the Army-McCarthy dispute—at last, it was possible to hear what is going on.

The big caucus room of the Senate Office Building may be a thing of beauty, but its marble walls do strange things to sounds.

It has been ironic that those closest to the scene have had the most trouble hearing. Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (Rep.), Wisconsin, repeatedly has interrupted to ask that the statement be given again, that he had missed it the first time.

Today the old loudspeaker system, in use for more than 20 years, was replaced by a new one. Now the most prominent thing in the room is not McCarthy or Secretary of the Army Stevens or the generals, but a high pole that rises directly behind Acting Chairman Karl Mundt (Rep.), South Dakota.

At the top is a loudspeaker similar to those used at sporting events.

Unfortunately, it looks a little like a scaffold, but its value can not be underestimated: it works.

TEEN-AGE SAFE DRIVING RODEO TO BE HELD IN COUNTY

A "Teen Age Rodeo," a driving contest to promote safety among teen-agers, will be held tomorrow and Sunday by the St. Louis County Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The first phase of the rodeo, a written examination on traffic regulations and driving rules, will be given at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at the St. Louis County Courthouse in Clayton. Driving skill over an obstacle course will be tested at 1:30 p.m. Sunday on the parking lot of Famous-Barr Co.'s Clayton store. Judges will be state highway patrolmen and county authorities.

Entrants in the rodeo must be students at county high schools, under 20 years old, and have no traffic violations in the last six months. Winners will receive plaques and prizes, and will be eligible to participate in the state contest.

LEFT CITY AFTER 'SHARP ATTACKS,' COMMUNIST SAYS

Robert Manewitz, one of five Communists on trial here, testified today he and his family left St. Louis in 1951 because of "sharp attacks" made upon them as a result of his Communist activities.

Manewitz told a jury in United States District Judge Roy W. Harper's court that crosses were burned in front of his apartment and that "giant firecrackers were set off after midnight."

Furthermore, he said, "derogatory remarks were made in the neighborhood" and he received "crank phone calls and letters."

Moved to Los Angeles.

Because of these "sharp attacks" and "harassments," added to the fact that his wife's asthmatic condition was worsened by "climatic conditions" here, Manewitz and his family moved to Los Angeles in September 1951, the witness testified.

Before leaving, he said, he spoke at a Communist party meeting here, advising the members to take "precautions" so that the party's program could be developed.

"We were trying to give more thought to the protection of individual members to relieve the strain," he added.

Manewitz said windows had been broken and paint smeared on doors of the party's headquarters, then at 1041A North Grand boulevard.

Manewitz testified he was convinced that the telephone in his West End apartment was tapped, although he did not say by whom.

Pre-Departure Talk.

Referring to his pre-departure talk at the Communist party meeting, Mrs. Mary Kaufman, his attorney, asked: "Did you say anything at that time about the Communist party going underground?"

"Of course not," Manewitz replied.

He said he took a leave of absence from the party and had engaged in none of its activities from the time he left here until he was arrested in Los Angeles in September 1952 on the indictment charging him and the four other defendants with conspiring to advocate overthrow of the Government by force and violence.

Manewitz testified he joined the Young Communist League in 1931 or 1932, when he was 14 years old and was attending Soldan High School. He said other students at the school also joined.

Subjects discussed at the organization's meetings, he said, included "conditions in the neighborhood, evictions in our block, unemployment, how to get relief and the general question of insecurity."

ILLINOIS FORMER U.S. MARSHAL GETS PROBATION

PEORIA, Ill., April 26—Former United States Marshal Robert Grant received a suspended sentence today and was placed on probation for one year when he pleaded guilty of violating the Mann Act in United States District Court.

The charge against Grant, who was fired as marshal for the Southern District of Illinois in 1952, grew out of cross-country trips he made with the late Robert L. Knetzer, Edwardsville swindler, while Knetzer was his prisoner. A Peoria woman, described as a friend of Grant's, accompanied them on at least one occasion.

United States District Judge Patrick Stone of Madison, Wis., dismissed another indictment which charged conspiracy to defraud the Government. Knetzer, who died last year, had been named jointly with Grant in the indictments.

Knetzer, who became a $3,000,000 bankrupt after selling "new-used" automobiles below cost in a time of shortage, was jailed in 1950 for failure to account for $250,000 assets. United States District Judge Charles G. Briggle of Springfield, Ill., then permitted him to make western trips in Grant's company in an effort to locate some of the assets.

Grant, a resident of nearby Pekin, was discharged shortly after he admitted to a Post-Dispatch reporter in June 1952 that he did not stay with Knetzer on these trips. The count to which Grant pleaded guilty charged he transported the woman from Peoria to Casper, Wyo., about Aug. 30, 1950.

His Case Moved

ROBERT H. (HOT ROD) MOORE

'HOT ROD' MOORE'S CASE MOVED TO ANOTHER COURT

A change of venue from one police court to another was obtained today by Robert H. (Hot Rod) Moore, notorious young reckless driver, who faces five charges of violating city traffic laws.

On the application of Henry G. Morris, Moore's attorney, Police Judge Robert G. Dowd, who was to hear the charges today, transferred the cases to the court of Police Judge Morris Rosenthal. He set trial, before a jury, for Thursday.

Morris contended Moore could not receive a fair trial in Judge Dowd's court "because of bias and prejudice" on the part of Dowd and St. Louisans in general. City Counselor Samuel H. Liberman appeared at today's hearing prepared to make objections if Morris attempted to have the cases transferred to a court outside St. Louis.

The charges against Moore grew out of an accident in the 5500 block of Pershing avenue April 1, when an automobile continued on without stopping after striking four other cars. Besides facing four city charges of careless driving and one of leaving the scene of an accident, Moore also is charged in an indictment with feloniously leaving the scene of an accident.

9000 GET NOTICE OF RISE IN TAX ASSESSMENTS

Mailed Under City's Equalization Program, 3000 Property Owners Get Cuts.

Notices of increased tax assessments are being mailed to 9000 property owners in northwest and south St. Louis as part of the city's tax equalization program, Assessor John H. Poelker announced today.

Not all the news is bad, however, he added, reporting that 3000 owners in the two areas are getting decreases in assessments.

In addition, 3000 taxpayers are getting assessment increases because of property improvements.

The area northwest of Fair and Natural Bridge and the section south of Meramec street and Oak Hill avenue are the areas to which the equalization program is now being extended. A letter accompanying the notices explains that the program has been under way for a number of years, and involves surveys of property valuations, which in most cases have not been changed in many years.

Poelker, whose home at 4555 Dryden avenue is in the northwest district, said his own assessment was being raised about 15 per cent.

Preliminary figures on assessments for the city as a whole indicated that real estate valuations, which totaled $1,153,459,000 in 1953, were up to $1,165,500,000 as of last Jan. 1, and personal property was up from $212,824,000 to $213,324,000. The 1954 total of assessments will be approximately $1,378,824,000, as compared to $1,366,283,000 in 1953.

The Board of Equalization on May 17 will begin a series of hearings on appeals from tax assessments. It will remain in session for four weeks.

WASHINGTON, April 26 (AP).

The text of a reply by Assistant Secretary of Defense H. Struve Hensel to charges made by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (Rep.), Wisconsin, as filed with the Senate Investigations subcommittee.

H. STRUVE HENSEL hereby files his reply to the "statement submitted at the request of temporary subcommittee," signed by Senator McCarthy and filed with Senator Karl E. Mundt on or about April 20, 1954.

I.

Only four paragraphs of Senator McCarthy's 46-paragraph statement refer to me. Such four paragraphs, to wit: Paragraphs 6-9, both inclusive, make three charges against me:

(A). That I tried to impede the subcommittee's investigations and to discredit the subcommittee (paragraphs 7, 8 and 9).

(B). That I was motivated in so doing by a desire to block an investigation of me "by the subcommittee for misconduct and possible law violation" (paragraphs 7 and 9), and

(C). That during World War II, particularly during the years 1943, 1944 and 1945, my private interests conflicted with my duties and responsibilities in the Department of the Navy.

II.

All of these charges are false, untrue and malicious and must have been known to be false and untrue by Senator McCarthy when he made them.

The first two charges are the only ones which can possibly be relevant to these proceedings. The third charge is completely outside the scope of these proceedings and was obviously designed by Senator McCarthy in an attempt to divert the subcommittee and the public from the serious charges made against him. I will, nevertheless, dispose of each of the charges in order.

IV.

The charge that I tried to impede the subcommittee's investigations and to discredit the subcommittee — I brand this charge as a malicious lie.

First: No responsible person in the Department of Defense or in any of the military departments has, to my knowledge, tried in any way to impede the subcommittee's investigations or to discredit this subcommittee by the issuance of any reports or otherwise. On the contrary, every effort was made fully to co-operate with the subcommittee in its important work.

Second: Not until Feb. 24, 1954, did I have any intimation that the Department of the Army had been having difficulty with Senator McCarthy, Roy Cohn or anyone else with respect to G. David Schine. By that time the controversy between the Department of the Army and Senator McCarthy, Roy Cohn and others had fully matured without any participation by me.

—United Press Telephoto.

Third: The only part I played with respect to such controversy occurred subsequent to March 1. At that time I was still general counsel of the Department of Defense and in such capacity I was asked to supervise the preparation of a chronological statement of events with respect to the pressures exerted on the Army by Senator McCarthy and Roy Cohn for special favors for G. David Schine. When Senator Potter under date of March 8, 1954, requested the Secretary of Defense to inform him with respect to such special favors and pressures, this chronological statement of events was completed and sent by me on March 10, 1954, to Senator Potter in response to his request. At the same time, I asked the Army to send copies of such chronological statement to all other members of the subcommittee and such members of Congress who had made similar inquiries of the Army. Since this document was forwarded in response to a request from a member of the subcommittee to the Secretary of Defense, it could scarcely be said to have impeded or discredited the subcommittee.

V.

The charge that I was motivated in so doing by a desire to block an investigation of me "by the subcommittee for misconduct and possible law violation"—I brand this charge as a malicious lie.

First: Not until March 22, 1954, did I have any intimation that Senator McCarthy was investigating me or any of my past or present activities. This was some three weeks after I had started to supervise the preparation of the chorono logical statement submitted in answer to Senator Potter's letter and a month after I had first learned of the pending controversy.

Second: As far as I know, there has never been, and is not now, any investigation of me by the subcommittee as such.

Third: As best I can determine no investigation of me or any of my activities was started by Senator McCarthy until on or after March 10 or 11, 1954. In his press conference on March 12, 1954, concerning this controversy, Senator McCarthy made no mention of me and no charges against me.

Fourth: Not until March 29, 1954, as I am informed, did Senator McCarthy request of the Department of the Treasury my income tax returns. Everyone knows that an investigation of a man's financial activities always starts with his income tax returns.

Fifth: On Feb. 17, 1954, my nomination as Assistant Secretary of Defense was sent to the Senate by the President for confirmation. The nomination was confirmed by vote on the floor of the Senate on Feb. 19. Senator McCarthy made no objection whatsoever to my confirmation. If any investigation of me had then been pending, it was Senator McCarthy's duty to have brought it to the attention of his fellow Senators.

Sixth: When the subcommittee reached a determination that these proceedings would be instituted, I understand that it agreed that no new investigations would be undertaken until the proceedings had been heard and determined. Nevertheless, Senator McCarthy, having learned that I had forwarded the chronological statement of events to Senator Potter, without the knowledge of the other subcommittee members and in violation of such agreement, directed certain of the subcommittee's staff to commence a purported investigation of me and my private finances during the period of World War II, some 10 years or more ago. I am informed that, in complete defiance of the rules of procedure of the subcommittee, this purported investigation is continuing. It is respectfully requested that, unless and until the subcommittee approves such activities, Senator McCarthy should be required to deliver to the special counsel for the subcommittee all documents, records and other papers obtained by him and members of the subcommittee staff during the course of these unauthorized and improper activities.

VI.

The charge that during World War II, particularly during the years 1943, 1944, and 1945, my private interests conflicted with my duties and responsibilities in the Department of the Navy—I brand this charge as a malicious lie and as irrelevant to these proceedings.

Paragraph 8 of Senator McCarthy's statement in which he makes such charge is designedly vague and based on innuendos and implications. He does not flatly allege that I did anything wrong. He merely does his best to imply it—all without being specific.

This Paragraph 8 refers in veiled terms to a canned corned beef hash sales agency operated in various forms by Mr. Arthur L. Pierson since March 1938. During such 16-year period, Mr. Pierson sold canned meat products, manufactured by others, largely to hotels, institutions, steamship companies, food product distributors, railroads and the like. In other words, he was a wholesale distributor of a limited line of canned foods. Most of such products were sold under the brand names owned by Mr. Pierson such as "Calico" and "Art's Brand." During the war period, Mr. Pierson's distribution was limited by wartime restrictions to private steamship operators and distributors of food products to steamships and his prices were fixed under Office of Price Administration ceilings.

Throughout the entire 16-year period, Mr. Pierson, and no one else, was the only "dominant force" in all of the Pierson businesses which were carried on by him successively through a corporation, then two successive limited partnerships, and finally another corporation. In all of such concerns Mr. Pierson had the major interest, ran the business, and devoted his full time to it. My interest was limited to a perfectly legitimate and unconventional minority financial interest. I took no active part in the conduct of the business but merely acted in general as a member of a board of directors would act, with particular emphasis on banking connections.

Letter to Tax Commissioner.

The Pierson business has been carried on for so many years that it would be impossible to recount in this reply the details of its operations over such 16-year period. Moreover, it would be undesirable to burden this proceeding with such details in reply to an irrelevant and improper issue raised by Senator McCarthy solely to divert attention from himself. Nevertheless, it is appropriate to make reference to my letter dated Feb. 11, 1946, to the Commissioner, Bureau of Internal Revenue, in which I asked for a tax ruling in respect of the proposed dissolution of one of the partnerships and presented a full description of the business which had been carried on since March, 1938, to that date. My interest in the business was always well known and there was not the slightest impropriety about such interest or anything illegal or unethical about it.

Moreover, as a result of an unfounded anonymous letter, the business carried on, particularly in the years 1943-1945, was investigated in 1948 by the United States Senate special committee investigating the national defense program and the Bureau of Internal Revenue. Such special committee never even called upon me for any explanation and I did not even know until within the last month that there had been any attention given to the matter by such committee. In 1949, after a thorough investigation, the Bureau of Internal Revenue and I agreed on my federal income tax returns for the calendar years 1943, 1944 and 1945 with only minor changes. There was merely a normal adjustment of some disputed deductions, as in the case of any taxpayer.

Nevertheless, when I first received definite information that Senator McCarthy and certain members of his staff had been circulating rumors and stating that they were out to get me, I wrote on March 29, 1954, to the Attorney General of the United States demanding that the Department of Justice institute an immediate investigation to determine whether any crime had been committed by me and, also, whether any crime was being committed by Senator McCarthy in making his false and malicious charges against me. On or about the same date, I requested the Department of Defense to institute, through the Federal Bureau of Investigation, a complete and thorough check of me and all of my activities over the past 15 years. Such an investigation is now in process and I have offered to make available to the Federal Bureau of Investigation all papers, documents and records available to me with respect to my business relationships with Mr. Pierson and all others during the period mentioned.

VII.

While these charges in respect to my business activities some 10 years ago should not be permitted to divert the attention of the subcommittee from the pertinent issues involving Senator McCarthy, there should be a forum in which irresponsible charges such as these may be fully explored in the interest of common fairness and decency. I stand ready at an appropriate time to submit to a full and complete inquiry by this subcommittee or any forum designated by it, with respect to my financial activities of any character at any time, including but not limited to the matters referred to by Senator McCarthy. In the interest of fair play, obviously Senator McCarthy cannot be a member of such forum, but should appear in his proper role as an accuser and face the penalty of failure to prove his falso charges.

Since Senator McCarthy asserts that the private and financial affairs of those involved in the current proceedings before this subcommittee should be publicly scrutinized, it is equally appropriate that the financial affairs, including income tax returns, of Senator McCarthy, who is also a party, should be subjected to the same public scrutiny. Therefore, when the subcommittee designates the time and the forum to hear the facts about my financial affairs and the accusations of Senator Mccarthy with respect thereto, it should at the same time require Senator McCarthy to subject to the same scrutiny his financial affairs, which have been under investigation by a designated subcommittee of the United States Senate. In such inquiry Senator McCarthy should likewise be directed to produce all records of his own financial transactions for the same period, including his own income tax returns, and stand examination and cross-examination with respect thereto to the same extent and in the same manner as I am willing to do.

Respectfully submitted,
H. STRUVE HENSEL
Frederick P. Bryan
Counsel to H. Struve Hensel.

M'CARTHY BLASTS HENSEL, OFFICERS

WASHINGTON, April 26 (AP).

SENATOR JOSEPH R. McCARTHY (Rep.), Wisconsin, issued two statements last night dealing with the McCarthy-Army controversy. The statement on Hensel follows:

Hensel objects and cries for an end to any investigation of allegations of improper or illegal conduct on his part. His claim is that the circulation of the charges against me and members of my staff which he admits were supervised by him had successfully roadblocked all investigations by our committee of fraud, corruption and Communists in government.

His surprise, disappointment and consternation that this Red minnow burlesque, which was started and is being masterminded by civilian Pentagon politicians, has not brought our committee to a complete standstill, is easy to understand. Hensel in his defense unknowingly performed a valuable service. He inadvertently tipped the hand of those who have been masterminding the smear attack upon my staff and disclosed the true purpose to be what I have stated it was since its inception—namely an attempt to roadblock all investigations of graft, corruption and Communism and divert the committee down the side road of investigating itself.

The revealing cry is that the committee still dares to investigate complaints of dishonesty, corruption, and Communism after a few civilian Pentagon politicians thought they had called off all investigations.

McCarthy's statement on the presence of Army offices:

Tomorrow I am calling the attention of the members of the committee and the Senate to the wasteful spectacle of a dozen or more Army officers, headed by Army Chief of Staff Matthew B. Ridgway, cooling their heels as spectators at this Red minnow burlesque television show, under orders of a few Pentagon civilians.

Obviously, these officers are not there by their own choice, but have been taken from their important duties to strengthen a case involving alleged favors for an Army private who has been consistently promoted until he is a private. Gen. Ridgway, the two Deputy Chiefs of Staff, the commanding officer of the Signal Corps, and the assorted colonels and majors who have been sitting as spectators at the hearing are needed for the vital task of planning the nation's defenses with a war threatening in Indochina. I am sure they are not present by request of the subcommittee, and I suggest that the subcommittee should register disapproval of this waste of military brains and talent on a television exhibition of the case concerning an Army private. It is bad enough that the subcommittee has been stopped from investigating the Communist menace in this country because of this inquiry. Let us not further gratify the Kremlin by weakening the top military staffs which are entrusted with the strategy of defending us from the Communist threat abroad.

BARKLEY APPEALS FOR AID TO ISRAEL

No More Tragic Thing Could Happen to West Than for State to Fail, He Says.

(Picture in Everyday Magazine.)

"No more tragic thing could happen in the Democratic world than for the State of Israel to fail," former Vice President of the United States Alben W. Barkley said here last night.

The Kentucky Democrat, who has announced his candidacy for the Senate, addressed 400 persons at Hotel Chase. He was principal speaker at a dinner to raise funds for a workers' community center at Beersheba, in Israel's Negev desert.

"If the nation can be preserved," he said, "Israel's neighbors, seeing the superiority of democracy and freedom, will accept the example and join the free nations.

"Then we will see a resurgence of democracy, and will bless the day we helped create this nation."

Describing himself as an incorrigible optimist, the former Vice President and Senator, for whom the Beersheba center will be named, said he was confident Israel will survive despite such tribulations as border strife with Arab nations.

It is unfortunate, Barkley said, that efforts of the United States, Britain and France to establish peace in the Near East have been frustrated by Russia. He observed that 750,000 Jews had entered Israel in the last six years.

Gershon Agron, editor and publisher of the Jerusalem Post, called the Beersheba installation "one of Israel's pressure-cookers" in which anonymous immigrants become sed-respecting citizens, a step in the process of transfer from tent to house.

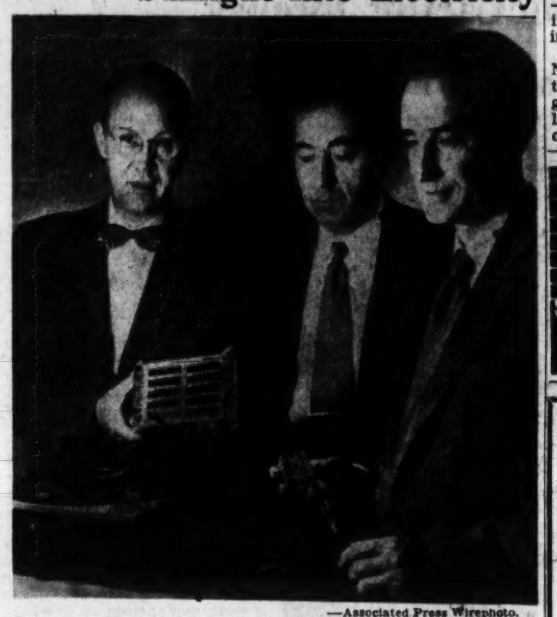

Donald Gunn was dinner chairman. Barkley, during his address, took occasion to praise former President Harry S. Truman for his "courage and foresight." He also congratulated Missouri on the calibre of the state's Senators, Stuart Symington and Thomas E. Hennings.

WALTER J. HOOPER DIES, IN BUSINESS HERE 50 YEARS

Walter J. Hooper, owner of Hooper Bros. Ice and Coal Co., 3140 Laclede avenue, died today of cerebral hemorrhage at Lutheran Hospital. He was 71 years old and had been in business for more than 50 years.

Mr. Hooper lived at 3820A McRee avenue. Surviving are his daughter, Mrs. Mary Jane Huelsmann, and a niece, Mrs. Mayme Blei. Funeral services will be Thursday at 1:30 p.m. at Schnur undertaking establishment, 3125 Lafayette avenue, with burial at Oak Grove Cemetery.

New Solar Battery Converts Sunlight Into Electricity

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

Inventors (from left) G. S. FULLER, D. M. CHAPIN and G. L. PEARSON operating record player in demonstration of their battery which converts sunlight directly into electricity.

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

MURRAY HILL, N.J., April 26—Bell Telephone Laboratories scientists yesterday showed a small solar battery made from an element of sand that puts within reach man's dream of rendering sunlight directly into electricity on an economic scale. scale.

The sun battery produced enough electricity to run a toy Ferris wheel; another powered a telephone conversation; two more electrified small radio transmitters that sent out voice and music signals.

The batteries produced about 1,000,000 times more power than the recently announced atomic battery.

The inventors say the battery can convert to electricity about 6 per cent of the energy of the sunlight falling on it. This means that about one square yard of battery would produce enough electricity to light a 50-watt electric light bulb. One-eighth of an acre would be needed to power a small home.

No Cost Estimates.

No estimates of cost were given because of the difficulty of jumping from experimental to production techniques. However, the scientists pointed out that the individual units of the battery are no more complicated than razor blades, which cost about one-half cent to make in mass production. A square yard of battery would then cost about $5.

The inventors of the battery are G. L. Pearson, physicist; C. S. Fuller, chemist, and D. M. Chapin, an experimental engineer. They say they can increase the efficiency of the battery to 10 per cent with a few changes. The theoretical limit is 22 per cent efficiency.

The battery principle is an entirely new one. It differs radically from that of heat-electric or other light-electric devices which have been suggested in the past for converting the sun's energy to electricity.

Photoelectric cells — such as those used in photographer's light meters—have an efficiency of less than 1 per cent. Dr. Maria Telkes, of New York University, has been able to bring thermo-electric devices to an efficiency of 3.5 per cent.

Units Made of Silicon.

The units of the battery are made of silicon, a light, silvery metal usually found in combination with oxygen in sand, and look like elongated razor blades. Scientists call them transistors, which is a general term for metallic ccrystals which control the flow of electricity. Transistors can do almost anything a radio tube can do.

The silicon transistor solar battery is made possible by the development of a technique for making large area transistors. This is done by heating pure silicon in a vacuum over, then introducing boron gas. The gas gets into the pores of the silicon and makes a large area transistor.

When light strikes this transistor, an electron—a particle of electricity—is freed from the silicon crystal. It travels across the area where the boron and the silicon meet and then through the wires of the battery. This forms the electric current.

The battery has no moving parts and nothing is destroyed in the process of getting the electrons to move, so the battery should last indefinitely, the scientists said. They noted that the atomic battery—also made of a transistor—deteriorates because of the bombardment of the radioactivity necessary in its operation.

The scientists acknowledge that it will be some time before large-scale power installations will be possible—if ever. They foresee, however, immediate uses in communications where low power is sufficient.

MRS. EVA BOWRING SWORN IN AS SENATOR FROM NEBRASKA

WASHINGTON, April 26 (UP)—Mrs. Eva Bowring was sworn in today as the second woman in the Senate.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon administered the oath to the gray-haired, 62-year-old grandmother, who succeeds the late Senator Dwight Griswold of Nebraska.

Senators stood at attention as Mrs. Bowring took the oath. Among those who congratulated her was the only other woman Senator—Margaret Chase Smith (Rep.), Maine. Mrs. Bowring was introduced to the Senate by Senator Hugh Butler, senior Senator from Nebraska. Mrs. Bowring is a Republican.

Partial Transcript of Army-McCarthy Inquiry

WASHINGTON, April 26 (UP).

Chairman Karl E. Mundt (Rep.), South Dakota, called the subcommittee to order for further cross-examination of Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens.

Counsel Ray H. Jenkins: Mr. Stevens, on last Friday, you had detailed the events of Nov. 7.

I will ask you now to tell this committee when your next contact was . . . and particularly whether or not any efforts were made on the part of any member of the staff to secure preferential treatment for G. David Schine?

Stevens: Well, the next direct connection with any member of the staff came on Nov. 16.

The events of Nov. 16 are related to those of the 13th of November. That was a news conference I held. . . . The important thing so far as this hearing is concerned, was the statement that I made that as of that date, Nov. 13, I knew of no current espionage or spying at Fort Monmouth.

Q. While your attomney is finding that portion of the statement that is relevant, will you pass on to Nov. 16, and then we will go back to the statement given the press.

"McCarthy Was Mad."

A. Well, on Nov. 16 Mr. Cohn came to my office, and Mr. Carr, and they indicated that Senator McCarthy was very much displeased with my press conference. . . . Mr. Cohn said that Senator McCarthy was mad, that I had double-crossed him, and words to that effect.

McCarthy: Who instigated this meeting . . . ?

Stevens: Mr. Cohn initiated it. As I say, Mr. Cohn indicated that Senator McCarthy was very mad and felt that I had double-crossed him, and that my statement to the press he did not believe was a correct one. . . .

Jenkins. . . . Did you state in your release to the press that there was no current espionage at Fort Monmouth, or did you state there was none that you knew of?

Stevens . . . I gave out no press release as I recall it. It was a question-and-answer period with the press . . . I am quoting now from this draft. I said "so far as the Army is concerned, it did not have any proof that there was any espionage."

Q. Now, you were discussing a conference between you and Mr. Cohn and Mr. Carr on Nov 16.

A. Well, I stated the main points . . . I said that I was sorry that Senator McCarthy felt as Mr. Cohn indicated that he did . . . I said I would go to New York and see Senator McCarthy, which I did.

Q. Who did the talking, Mr. Cohn or Mr. Carr?

A. Mostly Mr. Cohn.

Q. Do you remember anything whatever that was said to you on that occasion by Mr. Carr?

A. I would say that my recollection is principally the points made by Mr. Cohn, and I can't recall what Mr. Carr said.

Q. Now, as a result of what was said to you on that occasion, that is Nov. 16, you say that you went to New York to see Senator McCarthy? What was the purpose of that visit?

A. I felt that Senator McCarthy had misunderstood what I had said at the press conference.

Q. . . . What was the date of that visit?

Senator "Quite Put Out."

A. The 17th of November. . . . I flew to New York in the morning, and I took Col. Cleary, of my staff, and Mr. Adams. I invited Senator McCarthy and his staff to have luncheon with me once again at the Merchants Club in New York. . . . Senator McCarthy came with Mr. Cohn and Mr. Carr, and he also brought with him Mr. Sokolsky. After a few preliminaries, I inquired of (Senator McCarthy) as to why he was so provoked with me, and he indicated that he thought that my press conference had been badly handled, shall we say; that I hadn't given a correct picture as to the situation at Fort Monmouth, and he was quite put out about it.

I indicated that I would be willing to consider issuing a clarifying statement . . . Mr. Sokolsky . . . began to write some notes down, I think trying to formulate some possible area of agreement . . .

Q. Was that or not Mr. George Sokolsky, a newspaper columnist?

A. Yes, sir . . . Mr. Cohn also, I believe, made a few notes . . . so did Mr. John Adams . . .

Finally there was, I think, general agreement. . . . For Senator McCarthy and myself to hold a joint news conference. . . . The newspaper people had come to the Merchants Club in rather substantial numbers. Senator McCarthy and I went out and visited with them. . . . The substance of my statement was that in saying that I had no evidence of current espionage or spying at Fort Monmouth, I was speaking for the Army, but I, of course, was not speaking for this committee. . . .

Q. Is it your position that it was in no wise different in substance to your first statement given to the press at the Pentagon?

A. No difference in substance.

Q. But worder differently?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Designed for the purpose of, shall we say, pacifying or molifying the Senator?

A. I have been co-operating right along with the Senator and his committee, and I wanted to continue to do it.

Q. Mr. Secretary, did you ever see Mr. Roy Cohn personally subsequent to Nov. 17 last year with reference to any issue in this controversy and particularly with reference to any effort on his part to secure preferences for Schine?

A. I think not, sir.

Question About Schine.

Q. Did Senator McCarthy ever discuss Pvt. Schine with you subsequent to Nov. 17?

A. Yes, sir. . . . The next time was on the 10th of December . . . at luncheon. . . . Senator McCarthy asked a number of times during the course of that luncheon if Pvt. Schine could be assigned to New York. . . .

Q.: How many times would you say, in your best judgment, such a question was asked you or such a request was made by Senator McCarthy?

A.: I would say about three, just as a guess.

Q.: . . . Were those statements made in a casual sort of way?

A. Yes, I felt that through repetition he was quite insistent about it. He also said that he knew of a number of cases where boys had been given assignments after eight weeks of basic training.

Q. Did you know of any case where a boy had been given such an assignment after only eight weeks of basic training?

A. No, sir. . . . I told him that David Schine, like ever yother boy, would have to finish his 16 weeks of basic training.

Q. Was that meeting initiated by Senator McCarthy or any member of his staff or—

A. By them. . . . Also I recall one other item that the Senator was talking about, an assignment for Pvt. Schine in New York. . . . Senator McCarthy suggested that he might be useful in checking West Point textbooks.

Q. What was your reply to that?

A. That Pvt. Schine would have to finish his 16 weeks basic training. . . .

I think the next contact was the 14th of January . . . on that one I initiated that meeting. . . . I was planning to leave for the Far East on the seventeenth . . . It was arranged to meet at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. . . .

Army Counsel Joseph N. Welch: Mr. Chairman, there was an item of contact in written form that the witness has passed by inadvertently. I call your attention, Mr. Stevens, to a letter that I now show you.

Jenkins: From whom?

Stevens: From Senator McCarthy . . . the letter is dated Dec. 22 . . . it . . . has been previously referred to in this hearing.

(Stevens then read a letter in which McCarthy said, "I have an unbreakable rule that neither I nor anyone in my behalf shall ever attempt to interfere with or influence the Army in its assignments, promotions, et cetera."

(The letter concluded:

("Let me repeat what I have said to you before, the course of this investigation will in absolutely no way be influenced by the Army's handling of the case of any individual, regardless of whether he worked for my committee or not.")

Q: Now, you had passed to the events of Jan. 14.

A: I met Senator McCarthy about 6 o'clock in the afternoon. . . . I explained my forthcoming trip to the Far East to the Senator, and I also told him about the fact that David Schine was going to be transferred at the end of eight weeks of basic training to Camp Gordon, which is the provost marshal general's center at Camp Gordon, Ga. I told him that that was where the Criminal Investigation School of the provost marshal general's department was located, and I indicated that if David Schine applied and if he qualified, it was possible that he might finally be accepted in the school. . . .

During the course of this meeting, on four or five occasions Senator McCarthy brought up the question of whether or not David Schine could be assigned to New York City when his training was over. I said that David Schine would have to finish his training.

He did not tell me why, but he persistently asked me . . . I was somewhat sensitive to this being asked—this question about David Schine being assigned to New York City after his training—so when it came up . . . I said to Senator McCarthy, "now, you wrote me a letter dated Dec. 22 in which you said that there was not to be any pressure or anything of that kind put on the Army, and I would just like to remind you of that letter." The Senator dropped that particular point.

Q. I will ask you whether or not you and Senator McCarthy ever subsequently to that time discussed David Schine.

A. I don't think we did.

Q. Did Mr. Frank Carr ever contact you or discuss with you Schine subsequent to the seventeenth of November?

A. I don't recall that he did, no, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Secretary, you state in your pleadings . . . that no less than 65 telephone calls were made to you or to your subordinates with reference to favors or preferential treatment to David Schine. Is that correct?

A. Yes, sir. There were I think, all told about that number.

Q. As I recall you state that there were some 19 personal contacts with you or members of your staff with reference to David Schine, is that correct?

A. That is right.

Q. Making a total of 84 contacts either in person or by telephone with reference to either a commission or preferential treatment for Schine; is that correct?

A. Well, I would say, Mr. Jenkins, with reference to Schine . . . I would want to say that every one of those 84 contacts in which the subject of Schine was discussed was for specific preferential treatment. Most of them I think, were.

Q. On the occasion of the last conversation you had with the Senator on the fourteenth of January, you had then been in office approximately one year. . . . During that year's period state whether or not you received calls or were contacted personally with reference to any other soldier, inductee, or draftee, in any comparable number of times?

A. Positively not . . . my impression was that Mr. Cohn was tremendously interested in Mr. Schine and in having special treatment for Mr. Schine.

Q. Do you mean Mr. Cohn individually, or Mr. Cohn occupying the powerful position that he did as chief counsel for this investigating committee?

A. I mean occupying the powerful position that he did . . .

Q. Do you feel that he used his office in an attempt at a perversion of the rules of the Army with reference to the treatment accorded an inductee or draftee?

A. I do.

Q. Do you consider that these requests, these conversations, these statements . . . on the part of Senator McCarthy with respect to Schine, were made by him as a person, an individual, or a United States Senator on the one hand; or, on the other hand, not only as a United States Senator but as chairman of the powerful Investigating Committee which he headed . . . ?

A. . . . At first I thought it was . . . a sort of personal thing . . . I finally had no other course than to conclude that Mr. Cohn's activities were with the knowledge and approval of the chairman of this committee.

Q. . . . I will ask you whether or not, in your opinion, Mr. Frank Carr, a party in interest . . . sought to and did use his office in an effort to secure favors for David Schine?

A. I would say . . . that Mr. Carr's activities in this connection were extremely limited by comparison with Mr. Cohn's. I don't think that he had nearly the interest in the subject. . . . Mr. Carr did not have anything lik the pressure approach to it that Mr. Cohn did.

Q. Mr. Secretary, is it not a fact that you did make concessions to David Schine with reference to leaves of absences, passes and so on?

A. . . . We did it because we did not want, or I did not want, the Army to be in the position of obstructing the work of a committee of Congress that at that time was engaged in investigating the Army . . .

Q. I ask you now to give the Stevens version, if I may refer to it thusly, of the investigation by Senator McCarthy and his staff of Fort Monmouth . . .

A. We wanted to be sure that our security situation was in good shape and certainly that there was no espionage . . . Prior to that formal opening of the Fort Monmouth hearing, there had been six suspensions in Fort Monmouth for security reasons—where there was no question of loyalty involved but for one reason or another . . .

Following the opening of the hearings and up to this time there had been an additional 29 suspensions . . .

Out of the total of 35 who were involved, the six originally suspended and 29 later, 13 of those have been reinstated in non-sensiitve positions, that is to say, clerical or other type of jobs, where classifield material is not available to them . . . pending further investigation of their cases to see in a fair, American way, whether or not charges can be preferred.

Now, in respect to the other remaining 22 cases, 16 of those have been heard by hearing boards in the First Army area. Those hearing boards are in process of making reports on these cases . . . the six remaining cases remain to be heard by a hearing board.

I would like to say that thus far . . . there had been no case in which any one of these 35 people has pleaded the Fifth Amendment or refused to answer any questions that have been put.

Q. Were there 27 suspensions as a result of the McCarthy investigation?

A. My answer to that, if I have to answer it yes or no, would have to be no. Then I have to say "but" I think it is probably true that as result of this committee's activities some of those suspensions took effect sooner than they otherwise would have.

Q. But don't you consider . . . that time is of the essence in the detection of infiltration of Communists in the Army?

A. I certainly do, sir . . . they speeded up the suspension . . .

Q. Did the McCarthy committee supply any information that was before this board . . . when these suspensions were put into effect?

A. I would say they supplied some information.

Q. Now, Mr. Secretary, you are not trying to minimize the efforts of the McCarthy committee, are you?

A. . . . I am simply trying to get out here . . . all of the facts I have in respect to Fort Monmouth. My own feeling is that it was a greatly over-exaggerated situation.

I concede that Senator McCarthy and his staff, through the investigation, speeded up to some extent the suspension of some people; but we had information about all of these people and the action would have been taken . . .

Important Piece of Work?

Q. You would say that Senator McCarthy and his staff did an important piece of work that enhanced national security—time being of the essence in the detection of Communists . . . in the Army or any other branch of the government, is that not correct?

A: Well, I certainly agree it is correct to find the security risks, loyalty cases, and act on it fast . . . I think it would have been far more effective if we had not pursued the publicity tactics that went with this investigation. I think that that did a lot of harm . . .

Q: Mr. Stevens, wanted it stopped, didn't you?

A: Yes, sir.

Q: Consequently, you wanted Senator McCarthy's investigation stopped, didn't you?

A. No, sir, I didn't want it stopped.

Q: Mr. Stevens, let me ask you this question. Irrespective of what efforts you made or didn't make, you would rather he had not undertaken this investigation of Fort Monmouth. . . ?

A: . . . I am perfectly agreeable to working with Senator McCarthy's committee or any other committee of the Congress. . . .

(Jenkins then led Stevens through an account of how he first met Schine, at the Schines's apartment in New York City on Sept. 16. He had first heard of Schine from McCarthy on Sept. 8, Stevens said. He later had dinner with the Schines on Oct. 13.)

Jenkins: . . . Mr. Stevens, isn't it a fact that you were being especially nice and considerate and tender of this boy . . . in order to dissuade the Senator from continuing his investigation of one of your departments?

Stevens. Positively and completely not.

Q. . . . Why did you . . . having released a statement . . . that there was no current espionage at Monmouth, why did you, when you found out from Cohn that the Senator was displeased, change your statement and make peace with him . . . ?

A. I did it because I wanted to continue my policy . . . of co-operation with the Congress . . .

Q. You have denied, emphatically, that, as I understand it, that you even wanted the Senator to discontinue his investigation of Fort Monmouth, is that right?

A. . . . At no time did I want him to cease and desist unless we were capable of doing the job ourselves, in which case there was no necessity for it, provided I kept him informed as to what was going on.

Q. So, insofar as his charge against you that you tried to stop the investigation of Fort Monmouth is concerned . . . you merely tried to get it suspended?

A. That is right.

Q. . . . You wanted as long a suspension as possible, didn't you?

A. . . . I probably did. But if we didn't do the job and do it properly, I wouldn't want a long suspension.

Q: I will ask you whether or not at the very inception of this matter you, as a member, made arrangements at the Merchants Club (in New York City) for the McCarthy committee to be entertained there, to get their meals there from time to time, without any limitation, and that in the end the sum total of the bill was to be sent to you?

A: I said that I would like to have them use the club, which was near the court house . . .

Q: Then your answer to my question is yes.

A: Yes.

Q: Did you think, Mr. Secretary, that it was within the bounds of propriety for you to do that?

A. Completely.

Q. What purpose was it done for?

A. A friendly matter of convenience. . . .

Q. Now, Mr. Stevens, you have told about the events of Oct. 20 (at Fort Monmouth) when you say there was an explosion on the part of Roy Cohn.

Why did you . . . after you had done what you said was right and proper . . . humble yourself . . . and make that statement. . . . If it wasn't a part of a pattern on your part to at all times keep the good will of the McCarthy committee so that they would lay off of you and Fort Monmouth? What is your explanation of that?

A. . . . It was part of my desire to work with committees of Congress. I had no thought . . . I was in any way attempting to stop the investigation. . . .

Q. . . . Do you recall that (in McCarthy's) charges, some mention is made about you appealing to the Senator personally . . . you would be driven from your job if he didn't . . . discontinue his investigation?

A. I testified on Friday, that if this thing was pursued and the erroneous impression was getting out to the public . . . it could well result in driving me from office.

At this point, the hearing was recessed until 2:30 p.m. (1:30 p.m. St. Louis time.)

which then was investigating alleged Communist infiltration into the Army, specifically at Fort Monmouth.

Asked if he believed Cohn's activities were a perversion of his power as subcommittee counsel, Stevens answered promptly that he did.

Smaller Crowd.

Secretary Stevens testified today in an atmosphere somewhat less exciting than it was during the two days he spent on the stand last week. The glare of floodlights and the popping of still cameras and the whir of the television and newsreel cameras were present. But the crowd, though filling the hearing room, was noticeably smaller than last week. There were few persons outside of the hearing room trying to get in. In general, as a spectacle that had to be witnessed in person, at least, the widely-publicized hearing appeared to be losing momentum.

Stevens, who had testified earlier to frequent requests from McCarthy and Cohn for a direct commission or special assignments and favoritism for Schine in the matter of passes and exemption from routine Army duties, tesified today to meetings which took place with McCarthy and himself as the principals last December and January. His testimony dealt not only with the Schine aspect of the case but with the Fort Monmouth investigation as well.

Blackmail Charge.

It is in connection with the latter point that McCarthy has charged that Stevens and his aids held Schine as a "hostage" in an attempt to blackmail them into letting the Fort Monmouth inquiry drop.

Stevens admitted that McCarthy's investigation of Fort Monmouth "speeded up" the Army's suspension of some personnel, but he said the inquiry caused "a lot of harm in a lot of ways."

Stevens conceded, under examination by Jenkins McCarthy's hearings may have "speeded up" the suspension of some Fort Monmouth employes as possible security risks. He said that the Army was already conducting its own investigation and "ultimately" would have ferreted out all the security risks.

Stevens contended the Army had information of its own on all cases brought to light by McCarthy. Six persons had been suspended before McCarthy came into the Fort Monmouth picture, he said, and later there were 27 more suspensions. Of those suspended, Stevens said, 13 have been put back to work in non-sensitive positions pending further investigation. Sixteen cases have been heard and boards are in process of making reports. Six cases remain to be heard.

He was asked if he thought that the "efforts for Schine were made by McCarthy personally, individually or as a United States Senator on the one hand, or by him as a Senator and also as a member of the subcommittee with all its judicial powers."

'With McCarthy Approval.'

"At first I thought it was personal," Stevens replied, "but as it went along and Cohn became more persistent I finally had no other course than to conclude that Cohn was acting with McCarthy's approval."

"Simultaneous with the investigation of the Army?" Jenkins asked.

"Yes, sir," Stevens replied.

Jenkins posed a hypothetical question in which he referred to repeated efforts to get special treatment for a "ditch digger" as being extraordinary but wanted to know whether Stevens would also regard as extraordinary similar efforts on behalf of a man with training in tracking down espionage and who was vital to the defense of the country.

Stevens replied that he would consider pressure in either case as "extraordinary" and went on to say that he believed that the time and place for McCarthy and his staff to have been pushing Schine's qualifications for special consideration by the Army was before he was drafted and not afterward, when he became the ward, as it were, of the Selective Service System.

Stern Cross-Examination.

Jenkins subjected Stevens to stern cross-examination for the last hour of the morning session. He wanted to know why Stevens had gone "traipsing off to New York" to see McCarthy, and asked whether Stevens had not "damned him with faint praise." Stevens said he had not.

The Army Secretary maintained his poise through it all, and did not agree when Jenkins posed a number of queries that tended to favor the McCarthy side of the controversy.

Worked With FBI.

Stevens said the Army "collaborated very closely with the FBI" in its investigation at Fort Monmouth before McCarthy moved in. He said McCarthy unit provided some useful information but added: "My own feeling is that it was a greatly over-exaggerated situation." He said the inquiry would have been more effective without the publicity provided by McCarthy. He said McCarthy's talks with reporters after closed sessions resulted in "a great deal of misinformation and excitement."

"Did you want the investigation stopped?" Jenkins inquired. Stevens said, "No."

Asked whether he had "minimized the importance" of McCarthy's work, Stevens said simply, "I told you the work would have been done anyway."

Denies Trying to Stop Inquiry.

Asked by Jenkins if he had not "sought in every way" to get McCarthy to "cease and desist" at Fort Monmouth, Stevens said he had not, and also denied that he would have preferred that McCarthy not start his investigation. The Army Secretary said he regarded it "not only as a duty but a privilege" to work with committees of Congress. He agreed that he did want McCarthy to "suspend" his inquiry.

Jenkins referred to Stevens's testimony that he told McCarthy last November that a continuation of the Fort Monmouth case and its "hammering" of the "Army could "drive me out of office." He asked Stevens if that did not amount to a "personal appeal" to stop the inquiry. And Stevens said he did not. He said he was objecting to "completely unfair" publicity "which created the idea that there was lot of current espionage at Fort Monmouth when such was not the case."

Criticizes Publicity Tactics.

Jenkins tried repeatedly to get Stevens to say that McCarthy and his committee had performed a "vital" or "invaluable" national service by investigating Fort Monmouth. Stevens refused to make such a sweeping statement, and finally said:

"I think it would have been far more effective if he had not pursued publicity tactics that were used" at Fort Monmouth. He added that the publicity at Fort Monmouth "did a lot of harm."

"A great deal of misinformation and excitement was caused," he said.

Jenkins said Stevens had "damned him (McCarthy) with faint praise" and "minimized the importance of his work."

Stevens testified also that:

McCarthy attempted at least twice—on Dec. 10, 1953, and Jan 14, 1954—to have Schine's army basic training period cut in half—to eight weeks instead of the customary 16. Schine's basic training was not cut.

McCarthy never spoke to him again about Schine after Stevens, in their Jan. 14 meeting, mentioned a Dec. 22 letter McCarthy had written him. In that letter McCarthy said: "Neither I nor anyone in my behalf shall ever attempt to interfere with or influence the Army in its assignments, promotions, etc."

The attitude of Francis P. Carr, executive director of the McCarthy subcommittee, was largely "passive" in the Schine case.

McCarthy Breaks In.

At one point McCarthy broke in to ask that Stevens say who initiated the conference on Dec. 10. McCarthy said he understood the meeting was engineered by John G. Adams, counselor for the Army. Stevens said his recollection was it was arranged by McCarthy's office.

McCarthy looked around and commented, "We don't have nearly as many generals present today—"

But acting chairman Karl E. Mundt (Rep.), South Dakota, stopped him, saying it was "not a point of order."

McCarthy said he would like to know if those present were in the hearing room at the request of the subcommittee or of the Army.

Much of Stevens's testimony today followed the line he set last week, to the effect that far from attempting to impede or halt the investigation McCarthy was conducting into the Fort Monmouth situation, Stevens went out of his way to co-operate.

He recalled that on Nov. 16 Cohn and Carr came to his office at the Pentagon and indicated that McCarthy was displeased with a statement Stevens had made during a press conference he conducted at the Pentagon three days earlier. During this press conference, Stevens said he told correspondents that he knew of "no current espionage or spying at Fort Monmouth."

This statement ran contrary to headline-catching announcements by Senator McCarthy to the effect that Fort Monmouth was practically infested with spies and traitors of varying shades.

Accused of Double-Cross.

Stevens said Cohn informed him that McCarthy was "mad and felt that I had double-crossed him." Stevens added that he informed Cohn that he was sorry that "McCarthy felt that way" and that he had not "intended such an effect. "The following day, Stevens went on, he went to New York to see McCarthy.

Under questioning by Jenkins, Stevens said that he went to see McCarthy because he felt that what he had said has been misunderstood and that he wanted to "face up to him." He said that at 1 p.m. on November 17, he had lunch on with McCarthy, Cohn and Carr and Stevens's counseler, Adams. Also present was George Sokolsky, a newspaper columnist and friend of McCarthy, presumably invited by the Senator.

"I asked McCarthy why he was so provoked," Stevens said, "and he indicated that my press conference had been badly handled and that I hadn't given the correct picture. He was quite put out."

Held Joint Press Meeting.

Stevens said he indicated willingness to issue a clarifying statement, if one was justified, and he and McCarthy agreed to hold a joint press conference. At that conference, Stevens went on, he told reporters that he was speaking for the Army and not for "this (McCarthy) subcommittee." He added, however, that his further comments to the press at New York were in substance no different than his earlier expression in Washington—that he had no proof of any espionage then existing at Fort Monmouth.

At this meeting, Stevens continued, it developed that McCarthy, Cohn and Carr were planning to conduct hearings in Boston on the next day—Nov. 18—and Cohn "indicated" he and McCarthy would like to see Schine, then in basic training at Fort Dix, N.J. Stevens said he accommodated them, took them to McGuire Air Force Base, near Fort Dix, in his official plane and on landing there they were greeted by the Air Force base commanding general and his staff—and Pvt. Schine.

Luncheon With McCarthy.

On Dec. 10, Stevens continued, he had luncheon again in New York with McCarthy and McCarthy asked him at least three times why Schine could not be assigned to the New York City area. Cohn, Carr and Adams were present, Stevens said.

Stevens said he told McCarthy that as far as he was concerned David Schine "was like any other boy" and would have to complete his 16 weeks of basic training.

"I felt that he (McCarthy) was quite insistent," Stevens continued. "He said he knew of a number of cases where boys had been given special assignments after only eight weeks of basic training."

It was at this Dec. 10 meeting, Stevens went on, that McCarthy "suggested that Schine

Stevens Calls McCarthy Charge 'Lie'

Another conference with McCarthy took place on Jan. 14 which Stevens initiated, he said. Explaining that three days later he was scheduled for an inspection trip of Army installations in Europe and he wanted to "see McCarthy before I left."

McCarthy Letter.

Meanwhile, Stevens said, he had received a letter from McCarthy under date of Dec. 22, in which the Senator said that he had heard "rumors to the effect that some members of my staff have intervened with your department in behalf of a former staff consultant, G. David Schine. The letter added that "of course, they have a right to do so as individuals."

"However," the letter went on, "as I have told you a number of times, I have an unbreakable rule that neither I nor anyone in my behalf shall ever attempt to interfere with or influence the Army in its assignments, promotions, etc.

"I have discussed the matter with members of my staff, some of whom feel very strongly that in view of the fact that Mr. Schine is over 26 years of age, attempted to enlist in the Army when he was 18, was refused because of a slipped disc in his back and thereupon enlisted in the Merchant Marine, he would never have been drafted except that the extreme left wing press such as Pearson (Drew Pearson) et al started screaming about his case because he was a consultant for our committee.

"I realize that the decision of the draft board to reopen the case obviously was unknown to you and far below your level of operation.

No 'Consideration' Desired.

"While I am inclined to agree that Mr. Schine would never have been drafted except because of the fact that he worked for my committee, I want to make it clear at this time that no one has any authority to request any consideration for Mr. Schine other than what other draftees get. I think it is extremely important that this be made clear in view of the present investigation which our committee is conducting of the Communist infiltration of the military under the Truman-Acheson regime.

"Let me repeat what I have said before to you, the course of this investigation will in absolutely no way be influenced by the Army's handling of the case of any individual, regardless of whether he worked for my committee or not."

The letter was signed "Joe."

Discusses Europe Trip.

At the Jan. 14, luncheon meeting, which took place at the Carroll-Arms Hotel in Washington, Stevens said he discussed his trip to Europe with McCarthy and also informed him that Pvt. Schine was going to be transferred to the provost marshal's department of Camp Gordon, Ga., at the end of eight weeks basic training, and if Schine applied for training at the investigators school there, and qualified, he might get into it.

Again, during this conversation, McCarthy brought up "four or five times" the question of whether Schine could be assigned to New York. Stevens said he told the Senator that Schine would have to finish his basic training and describing himself as "somewhat sensitive to questioning about Schine," he added, finally told McCarthy that he had written him a letter on Dec. 22 in "which you said there was not to be any pressure" applied in Schine's behalf.

I'd like to remind you of that letter, "Stevens said he told McCarthy.

Last Talk About Shine.

Stevens added that that was the last time McCarthy talked to him about Schine. Jenkins asked him about his earlier testimony that there had been 65 telephone calls and 19 personal contacts between Stevens or his staff and McCarthy or his staff in connection with Schine and he added that most of them were in connection with a "commission or preferential treatment for Schine."

Stevens said he never before nor since had been approached by anyone seeking preference for any soldier other than for Schine.

McCarthy was comparatively quiet throughout the morning, and seldom broke in with his familiar "points of order." On one of them, acting chairman Mundt ruled that the Senator could not ask a question or suggest a question for the witness and call it a point of order.

McCarthy then observed: "I'm not sure that you and I have the same impression of what a point of order is."

'Why Did You Kowtow?'

Referring to a visit to Ft. Monmouth last October when, as Jenkins said, subcommittee counsel. Cohn "exploded" because he was not admitted to a laboratory, Jenkins asked. "Why did you, in your exalted position, humble yourself and kowtow to this young man?"

He was referring to Stevens's testimony of last Friday, when the Army Secretary told of trying to pacify Cohn.

Stevens did not agree with Jenkins today that he had made an "apology" to Cohn. "I was just making an effort to smooth over a situation that had got out of hand," he said.

Senator Stuart Symington (Dem.), Missouri, found his microphone out of order, as Senator Henry M. Jackson (Dem.), Washington, had a few minutes earlier, and observed: "the Democratic microphones are not working."

Stevens Paid for Meals.

Jenkins brought out that Stevens had invited McCarthy and his staff to have their meals at his expense at the Merchants' Club when McCarthy was conducting hearings in New York last year.

McCarthy broke in with a question as to whether they had "availed themselves" of the opportunity, and Stevens replied that they had.

Stevens explained that the club was near the federal courthouse, scene of the hearings, and a convenience. Asked by Jenkins if he considered the arrangement "within the bounds of propriety," and Stevens answered: "Completely."

Jenkins asked whether Stevens had ever asked to have his picture taken with Schine. The Army Secretary said he did not recall that he had, specifically, although he might have suggested in a group, "Let's all get in this."

At that point there was displayed a photograph about 14 by 17 inches in size, a picture of Stevens and Schine standing together beside an airplane.

"I can recognize myself," Stevens said, "but I can't identify the soldier."

It was handed over to him, and he agreed that it was "undoubtedly" Schine, "and a rather grim looking Secretary of the Army." He said he had had his picture taken with privates many times, and hoped to have many more times in the future.

Jenkins asked Stevens to give his "version of the Fort Monmouth investigation, and Stevens asserted that "ultimately" the Army investigators would have "accomplished the same thing" that McCarthy's subcommittee did in finding persons to suspect.

He acknowledged that McCarthy's work had had the effect of speeding up suspensions in some of 29 cases. The Army had suspended six before McCarthy moved in. Of the total of 35, the Army has reinstated 13 in non-sensitive positions, Stevens said.

Stevens said he did not recall that he had ever asked Schine for a copy of his pamphlet, "Definition of Communism," and Jenkins produced a copy of a letter from Schine to Stevens, in which Schine said he was sending the pamphlet to him, "as promised."

Stevens said he had no knowledge of the Schine family's financial position until he went to its New York apartment and "saw that it was a very nice place."

Hensel Statement.

Meanwhile, the subcommittee had before it today a statement by Assistant Secretary of Defense H. Struve Hensel, another principal in the inquiry, who charged McCarthy with "malicious lies" in accusations directed against Hensel in the Senator's bill of particulars on the Army, filed with the subcommittee a week ago today.

Without qualification, Hensel, a prominent New York attorney, asserted that all the charges which McCarthy leveled against him one week ago today in a statement to the investigating subcommittee, were "false, untrue and malicious and must have been known to be false and untrue by Senator McCarthy when he made them."

Hensel, who said last week that McCarthy made the charges because he was "cornered" and wanted to divert the McCarthy investigation away from the Senator himself, was accused by the Wisconsin Republican of having sought to impede and discredit McCarthy's continuing investigations of the Army to head off an investigation of Hensel for what McCarthy termed "misconduct and possible violation of the law."

STEVENS DENIES HE ATTEMPTED TO DIVERT INQUIRY

McCarthy was quick to respond yesterday to Hensel's statement. He asserted that the assistant defense secretary had revealed "his surprise, disappointment and consternation that his red minnow burlesque . . . has not brought our committee to a complete standstill."

Second Reply.

Hensel's statement to the subcommittee today was his second reply to McCarthy's attack upon him. Last week he accused the Senator of uttering "barefaced lies."

With respect to McCarthy's charges that Hensel had received sums of money from a ships' supply firm in which he was financially interested while serving as a procurement official for the Navy in World War II, the Assistant Secretary said he was willing to submit to a "full and complete inquiry." He tied this in with a challenge that McCarthy's financial status, including income tax returns, be likewise submitted to similar scrutiny.

Hensel said he was willing to submit his financial operations to searching injuiry despite his feeling that McCarthy's charges "in respect to my business activities some 10 years ago should not be permitted to divert the attention of the subcommittee from the pertinent issues involving Senator McCarthy."

He pointed out that McCarthy's finances "had been under investigation by a designated subcommittee on the United States Senate." This was a reference to an election subcommittee investigation in 1952, which raised a series of questions about McCarthy and his money but resulted in no conclusive answer.

(Senator John L. McClellan of Arkansas, senior Democrat on the subcommittee, said today Senator McCarthy's finances are not the concern of the subcommittee. McCarthy himself had no immediate comment on the demand of Hensel that McCarthy's finances and income tax returns be investigated. McClellan said the issue of McCarthy's money "does not address itself to this committee.")

Secretary Stevens spent part of Thursday and most of Friday testifying as to the alleged improper intervention in Schine's behalf by McCarthy and Cohn.

It was his testimony that McCarthy once told him on the telephone that Cohn wanted Schine to be a general with headquarters in a penthouse on the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York which touched off a bitter wrangle with McCarthy Friday.

Fight Over Phone Call.

Stevens and his aids wanted to put a monitor's transcription of that telephone conversation into the record.

McCarthy objected, however, and the subcommittee disposed of the issue, temporarily at least, by voting to have all memoranda and records dealing with telephone conversations among principals to the dispute submitted to the subcommittee for appraisal as to their relevancy to the issues and determination as to whether they should be placed in the hearing records.

Senator Mundt indicated strongly over the weekend, however, that there still is some legal question as to how far the committee may go in admitting monitored telephone conversations to the record without the express consent of both parties. McCarthy said in Milwaukee Saturday night that unless the parties to every telephone conversation adjudged relevant to the issues agree to have their conversations made a part of the record, he will not agree to have his conversation with Stevens so recorded.

By the Associated Press.

Senator Can't Back Stevens.

Meanwhile Senator H. Alexander Smith (Rep.), New Jersey, said he could not back up Secretary Stevens's statement that Cohn "declared war" on the Army. Stevens has so testified in the hearings last week.

Stevens quoted an aid as reporting Cohn said in substance, "This means war," after he was barred from inspecting a Fort Monmouth laboratory engaged in secret work. Smith said he and others in the inspection group were unaware of the incident.

Stevens testified previously that when he took McCarthy, Senator Smith and Representative Auchincloss (Rep.), New Jersey, into a laboratory engaged in secret work but barred Cohn and others, Cohn flew into a rage.

The Secretary quoted his executive officer, Col. Kenneth E. Belieu, as reporting Cohn said in substance:

"This means war. . . . Don't they think I am cleared for classified information? . . . They did this on purpose just to embarrass me. We will really investigate the Army now."

Explained to Cohn.

Stevens said he then sought out Cohn and explained to him that he had decided only the members of Congress and those on his own staff who had clearance could visit the laboratory.

Stevens did not say that others in the party were aware of the incident, and Smith said in an interview it was news to him.

"I didn't think at the time there was any friction at all," Smith said. "I didn't even know Cohn was sore, if he was. Of course, it might have happened,

EX-UNION HEAD BEATEN TO DEATH AT KANSAS CITY

Window Weight in Auto With Body of Former President of Teamster Local.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 26 (AP)—Emmett M. Eslinger, 51 years old, former head of a Teamsters' union local here, was found dead today in his car, apparently the victim of a beating.

Officers said they found a window weight in the back seat of the car.

Eslinger was president and business agent of Local 541 until 1944. He had held the post for about 13 years. Recently Eslinger had been employed by a plumbing firm.

The union which Eslinger once headed is the one that Orville L. Ring directed in his rise as a power in Kansas City labor circles. Ring recently resigned.

William Holmes, chief deputy in the criminal division of the sheriff's office, said so far there was nothing to indicate the fatal beating had any connection with recent controversy in labor circles.

Only last Thursday Circuit Judge John F. Cook said a grand jury would be summoned to investigate a report that Edward Chevlin, former official of another Teamsters' local, had been offered $15,000 not to appear as a state witness against Ring in a criminal trial. Chevlin confirmed the report of the alleged bribe.

Ring was acquitted last week of a charge of felonious assault against Chevlin.

The body was found by Eslinger's wife, who began investigating when he failed to show up for work this morning as a truck driver for a plumbing company.

Mrs. Eslinger said he left their home at suburban Hickman Mills about 7:30 a.m. When his employer called inquiring why Eslinger had not arrived at work, she drove over the route he normally followed in going to work and found the car.

CALIFORNIA QUAKE SCARES THOUSANDS, NO MAJOR DAMAGE

WATSONVILLE, Calif., April 26—Central California's strongest earthquake in nearly two years jolted a 150-mile stretch along the coast yesterday, frightening thousands, causing widespread minor damage to buildings and temporarily blocking a highway east of here.

A panicked crowd of some 500 rushed for the doorways of a dog show at the fairgrounds five miles north of here. An unidentified girl was bruised.

The shocks, recorded by the University of California seismograph for 20 minues starting at 1:33 p.m. (Pacific daylight time) were felt throughout the San Francisco bay area, 90 miles to the north. Newspapers, radio stations and the Associated Press there were swamped with telephone queries.

The university seismograph at Berkeley registered an intensity of 5.2 on the 10-point Richter scale, compared with more than seven for the 1952 Kern county quake in which five persons died, and eight and one-fourth for the disastrous 1906 San Francisco temblor.

Reports indicated the towns of Hollister, Gilroy and Watsonville got the worst shaking.

SENATOR FAVORS GOVERNORS FILLING VACANCIES IN HOUSE

WASHINGTON, April 26 (UP)—Senator Case (Rep.), South Dakota, today proposed a constitutional amendment to give governors power to fill vacancies in the House of Representatives.

Case told the Senate his amendment "insures continuity of government in the atomic age." Pointing out that under the presidential succession act, the House speaker is next in line after the Vice President, he said it is important to insure continuity in the House of Representatives.

Governors can now appoint senators to fill vacancies until a special or general election is held, but they cannot fill House vacancies.

Direct Complaints on TV to Networks, Says Mundt.

WASHINGTON, April 26 (UP)—Senator Karl E. Mundt (Rep.), South Dakota, said today that the public should direct any complaints about television coverage of the Army-McCarthy hearings to the broadcasting networks.

Acting Chairman Mundt said he has received some protests from the public about reductions in television coverage.

National Broadcasting Co., which carried live telecasts of all sessions last week, switched today to a policy of carrying a 45-minute program of filmed excerpts beginning at 10:15 p.m. (St. Louis time). (KSD-TV, the Post-Dispatch station will carry it.) American Broadcasting Co. and the Dumont network continued to carry full live telecasts.

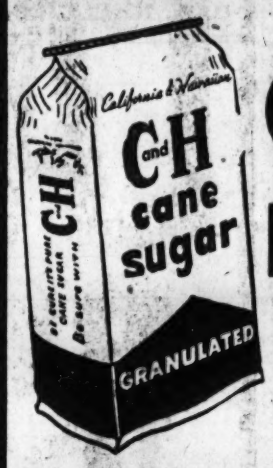

Mundt stressed that so far as the committee is concerned, "these hearings are open for TV cameras" provided the programs are not commercially sponsored.

RUSSIANS FREE TO GO ANY TIME, SAYS AUSTRALIA

CANBERRA, April 26 (AP)—Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies says Russia's diplomats here, packing for home following a break in Soviet-Australian relations, can go any time, but the Russians still held back exit permits today for the Australian embassy staff in Moscow.

Acting Foreign Minister Sir Philip McBride sent the Russian ambassador a note yesterday rejecting demands that the Canberra government hand back Vladimir Petrov and his wife.

The note replied to the Kremlin's communication last week severing diplomatic relations between the two countries because the fugitive Russian couple had been granted political asylum here. The Russians branded Petrov a "criminal" who allegedly embezzled embassy funds and charged the Australians kidnaped Mrs. Petrov, an embassy code clerk.

Ex-Diplomat in Hiding.

Petrov, former third secretary of the Soviet embassy, has been in hiding since he abandoned Communism and turned over hundreds of embassy documents to the Australian government. The papers purported to reveal a big Red spy ring in Australia.

The Russians had ordered Australian Charge d'Affaires Brian Hill and his staff to leave Moscow by last night. Yesterday sources in the Russian capital said the departure of the envoy and the two other men, three women and two children in the Moscow embassy was now "conditional on developments in Australia."

This stirred speculation here the delay was forced because the 51 Russians—staff members and families—in the embassy here have been unable to get quick passage out of the country. The Foreign Ministry has been contacting shipping and airline companies to arrange reservations.

It was suggested the Russians might be using Hill as a hostage to get Tass correspondent Victor Antonov out of Australia without delay. Antonov, lacking diplomatic immunity, could be called to testify in an investigation of the espionage charges which the Government is setting up. His apartment has been described unofficially as an espionage center.

The apartment was entered by intruders Saturday night. Police said "nothing that would interest an ordinary burglar was taken."

A Government source said today Australia is granting Antonov a tax clearance. This apparently indicates no official bar will be placed in the way of the correspondent and his wife leaving with the Soviet embassy staff. Antonov is known to have been in the embassy in Canberra recently.

Dispute Over Communications.

The Soviet delay also was believed linked to the Communist allegations Australia had been holding up communications between the Canberra embassy and Moscow. In connection with this, the Menzies government said it had handed Soviet Ambassador Nicolai Generalov documentary proof all messages to and from him had been handled rapidly.

Sources here charged deliberate Soviet delay in transmitting the official text of the Soviet note. It arrived in Canberra 18 hours after its annuncement in Moscow. Australian sources said this gave the Reds a chance to tell their side of the story without any immediate Australian rebuttal.

Menzies did not appear worried about Hill's being held up. He said yesterday he considered the delay of little importance.

The Australian note yesterday said this country "reserves the right to raise with the Soviet government on a future occassion the subject of former activities in Australia of the Soviet embassy if the findings of the royal commission which is to be appointed make this course possible."

VOTING AT AGE 18 WOULD BOOST POLL LISTS 6,000,000

WASHINGTON, April 26 (UP)—Extension of voting rights to 18-year-olds would increase the number of persons of voting age from 101,000,000 to more than 107,000,000, the Census Bureau reported last night.

This compares with the record 61,251,244 votes cast in the 1952 presidential election, a turnout which topped the previous 1940 peak by 11,431,000, or about 23 per cent.

In a report on "current population," the bureau said that on last July 1 there were more than 101,000,000 persons of voting age in the United States population, including members of the armed forces.

It figured there also were "an additional six and one-third million" in the group, aged 18 to 20, for whom President Eisenhower has recommended voting rights.

Georgia allows its 18-year-olds to vote. In other states the minimum age is 21. A constitutional amendment to lower the minimum to 18 in all states is pending in the Senate.

STORE OPERATOR ROBBED

Isidore Gellman, operator of a dry goods store at 1402 North Grand boulevard, was held up and robbed of $200 by two men shortly after noon today.

Gellman told police one man entered, asked to see a pair of blue jeans, then drew a pistol and ordered him to lie on the floor. A second man walked in, took a cigar box containing the money, and the pair fled. The robbers were Negroes, Gellman said.

VA HOLDING SEMINAR HERE ON NEUROPSYCHIATRIC CARE

A seminar on common problems of chiefs of professional services and chiefs of nursing services in Veterans Administration neuropsychiatric hospitals opened today at the Jefferson Barracks VA Hospital. It will continue to Friday.

Dr. Joseph B. Bounds, manager of Jefferson Barracks Hospital, said about 70 delegates from VA neuropsychiatric hospitals in 20 states are expected to attend.

Purpose of the seminar, which is the first of its kind to be held by the VA, is to enable key doctors and nurses to discuss together their common problems in medicine and administration, to gain a better understanding of operations in neuropsychiatric hospitals and to improve patient care. Previously, doctors and nurses met separately, Dr. Bounds said. The faculty will consist of officials from the VA Central Office at Washington, members of the St. Louis staff and consultant staffs.

ASSERTS FATS OWNED BY U.S. WOULD RING EARTH 4 TIMES

WASHINGTON, April 26 (AP)—Chairman Wolcott (Rep.), Michigan, of the House Banking Committee, said yesterday the Government owns enough fats and oils to "fill enough tank cars to encircle the globe four and one-half times."

Wolcott made the statement in a radio interview with the Gannett News Service.

The surpluses, he said, were piled up under a program of rigid price supports for agriculture products. The Administration's program of flexible price supports, he said, not only would help get rid of the surpluses but would give farmers a relatively higher income in terms of purchasing power.

Wolcott emphatically disagreed with some economists who have voiced fear that the nation is heading into a depression.

"I think that everything indicates that we are approaching stability," he said.

WILL NOT COMMIT CANADA ON INDOCHINA, PREMIER SAYS

OTTAWA, April 26 (UP)—Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent said today the Government "has no intention" or committing Canada to military action in Indochina.

He said, however, that if the situation changed, the question would have to be "very seriously considered." No action would be taken without consulting Parliament, he said.

The Prime Minister repeated the Government's position that Canada's interest in the Far East from a military point of view was limited to the United Nations action in Korea. He said the Government "would not want to recommend to Parliament" at this time any policy that would involve direct action by Canadian forces in Indochina.

GRANDFATHER KILLS GIRL, 18, FOR HAVING DATES, ENDS LIFE

GALLATIN, Tenn., April 26 (AP)—An elderly farmer killed himself with a rifle after shooting to death his 18-year-old granddaughter whom he had rebuked for having boy friends, the sheriff said today.

Joe Miller Hunter, 70, was reported to have shot to death Carol Dean Hunter and then killed himself. A neighbor found the bodies yesterday morning at the Hunter home at Bethpage, about eight miles northeast of here.

"He had his old-fashioned ways and couldn't see why Carol Dean wanted to go out with boys like other girls do," said Wesley Hunter, the elderly man's son.

DUKE OF SOMERSET DIES; SOLDIER AND MAGICIAN

LONDON, April 26 (AP)—The Duke of Somerset, head of one of England's oldest families, died today at the age of 71.

The duke, a professional soldier, served in the Boer War and commanded a battalion of the Royal Dublin Fusiliers in World War I. He was a leading member of the "Magic Circle," a group of British conjurers. Once a friend of the duke lost £30 ($85) to race-track card sharpers. The duke joined in the game, won back the £30 and made £10 ($28) profit for himself.

YOUTH EATING SANDWICH HAS CHOKING SPELL, DIES

Sterling Gazaway, 18 years old, strangled yesterday when eating a hot dog sandwich in Forest Park, and was pronounced dead on arrival at City Hospital.

Gazaway, who lived at 2811A Elliot avenue with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Gazaway, bought the sandwich and was eating it when he began to choke. Friends administered artificial respiration until police arrived and rushed him to the hospital.

Actually releases up to 15% more power by overcoming lead and carbon deposits constantly accumulating in your engine

Acts before you've finished your second tankful

Think of it! Without touching a tool—you can get up to 15% more power from your engine automatically.

The major cause of power loss—pre-ignition and misfiring—can now be overcome by the gasoline you use.

It's an engineering fact

All of today's gasolines—because they are designed to meet the needs of modern high-compression engines—contain deposit-forming compounds. This means that lead and carbon deposits are constantly accumulating in most engines. These deposits rob you of power two ways!

In combustion chambers the deposits get so hot they set off the fuel mixture prematurely. The explosion hits the piston before it's reached the proper firing position.

When this happens, power works against you, not for you. It is called pre-ignition, and it occurs most often when you actually need more power—for accelerating or climbing a hill.

The second way these deposits steal power is by coating the ends of your spark plugs. Because the deposits divert electricity, the spark "shorts out," the plug misfires. Fuel is unburned, produces no power—just wastes your money!

Now you can get that power back—tune your engine without tools with a new kind of gasoline. You do this by using Shell Premium Gasoline with TCP—the greatest gasoline development since the introduction of tetraethyl lead.

TCP additive breaks through the power barrier set up by the lead and carbon deposits. It "fireproofs" the hot spots in combustion chambers, preventing pre-ignition. Power works for you again.

And on spark plugs, it changes the nature of the deposits to prevent misfiring. You get a full spark again and the spark plug fires every time. Your engine smooths out and delivers up to 15% more power.

TCP acts quickly

Before you've finished your second tankful, you'll feel your engine's had a tune-up. Remember, because these lead and carbon deposits accumulate constantly, continued use of Shell Premium with TCP is essential to retain its full benefits. Shell Premium with TCP is available at all Shell Dealer Stations.

*Shell's Trademark for this unique gasoline additive developed by Shell Research. Patent applied for.

TITO OFFERS NEW PLAN TO SETTLE TRIESTE DISPUTE

Reported Willing to Give Corridor Through Zone A to Italy as Well as Port.

LONDON, April 26 (AP) — President Josip (Tito) Broz has made a new bid for settlement of the Italian-Yugoslav dispute over the strategic free territory of Trieste, official sources said last night.

Tito is said to have notified the western Big Three powers that along with yielding Trieste's port city to Italy, Yugoslavia is ready to grant Italy free access to it from the Italian frontier. He suggested possibly a corridor through the hinterland which embraces Zone A. That zone now is occupied by the United States and Britain, which have promised to turn its administration over to Italy.

Tito's Reported Plan.

Informed sources said this was the proposition put by Tito:

He wants in return special Yugoslav rights in the port and privileged status for the Yugoslav population living in the territory coming under Rome's control. Such a settlement would give Belgrade ownership of at least the major part of Zone A, now supervised by 7000 American and British troops.

Acceptance by Italy of the Yugoslav proposal would open the way for a five-power parley, including the western Big Three, aimed at finally ending the nine-year-old Trieste feud.

The United States, Britain and France have been pushing hard behind the scenes, to get a settlement of the quarrel they regard as blocking the setting up of an effective anti-Soviet defense system for southeastern Europe. Italy has indicated it regards a Trieste settlement as a condition for ratifying the European Defense Community Treaty.

Five Powers at Work.

The British Foreign Office refused to comment officially on these reports. A spokesman said, however, the five powers are in contact in an effort to achieve a Trieste settlement.

Italian Foreign Minister Attilio Piccioni reportedly discussed the Yugoslav proposals in Paris Friday with United States Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden. Piccioni was in Paris for the meeting of the NATO Council of Ministers. The Yugoslav ambassador to London, Vladimir Velebit, talked with Eden last Wednesday.

Officially, the United States and Britain are standing pat on their Oct. 8 decision to turn over Zone A—which embraces the port city—to Italy. The two countries have occupied the zone under the Italian peace treaty since the end of World War II. Yugoslavia occupies Zone B.

AUTO PLOWS INTO WEDDING PARTY, BRIDEGROOM HURT

LOS ANGELES, April 26 (AP) —An automobile plowed into a wedding party yesterday as the guests emerged from a reception for the bride and groom.

The bridal couple's wedding trip was a ride in an ambulance to an emergency hospital—the groom on a stretcher and the bride kneeling at his side.

Stanis Elicarraras, 22 years old, the groom, suffered a broken leg. Police said he saw the approaching car and managed to push most of the guests out of its path, but failed to get away himself. Two others were injured.

Other members of the party obtained the car's license number and a short time later police arrested Jay Perry Jones, 36. He was booked on suspicion of felony of driving on after an accident.

BERTRAND RUSSELL ASSERTS HATRED IS THE ROAD TO DEATH

NEW YORK, April 26 (AP)— "If you want to survive, you must let your enemies survive. Either both live or both die," Bertrand Russell, the British Philosopher, said last night.

"Therefore," he said, "abuse of your enemy, hatred of your enemy, anything that makes an agreement with him more difficult, doesn't do any good."

The 82-year-old writer, often embroiled in controversy over his theories, spoke in a recorded telephone conversation with Dave Garroway, over an NBC radio program, "Sunday With Garroway."

Asked "how mankind may best maintain a civilized pose and equanimity in the age of hydrogen," Russell said: "Unless your profession demands it, you should not spend very much time thinking about these dangers, because if you do you will be apt to become hysterical."

He then added, "We have got to learn to make pacts with people we don't like . . . and we have got, therefore, to realize that this type of hatred, fanaticism, all those things are roads to death, not towards life."

DRUGGIST ROBBED OF $1500 AFTER CLOSING HIS STORE

Alva Clayton, owner of Plymouth Pharmacy, 5994 Plymouth avenue, was held up and robbed of $15000 early yesterday by an armed man shortly after closing the store, he reported to police.

Clayton, who lives at 5960 Plymouth, said he had gone to a parking lot behind the store to enter his automobile and take the money to a bank when the robber appeared and forced him at pistol-point to hand over the key to his night deposit cash bag.

After taking the money, the holdup man bound Clayton's hands with adhesive tape and fled. A man answering his description was later seen boarding an east-bound Page-Finney bus, police said. Clayton was released by Patrolman Robert Casey of the Page Boulevard District, who passed by the parking lot shortly after the robbery.

GOVERNORS MEET FOR BRIEFING BY PRESIDENT, NIXON

States' Executives Ask for Opportunity to Question Other High Officials Also.

WASHINGTON, April 26 (AP) —The nation's state and territorial governors assembled here today to be briefed on major government problems and to ask questions about Indochina, subversives, taxes and other issues.

The special meetings behind closed doors will last three days. The briefings will not get under way until tomorrow, but President Eisenhower is having an initial conference with the state heads at a dinner at the White House tonight.

The President started the briefing idea a year ago. Frank Bane, secretary to the regular governors' conference, said it was such a success that the governors asked for an opportunity to be brought up to date and to quiz Vice President Nixon, cabinet officers and other key officials.

Reporters Barred.

Reporters will be barred from the briefing sessions. But the White House says Gov. Dan Thornton of Colorado, chairman of the governors' conference, and Bane will talk to reporters after each morning and afternoon session.

The Vice President will preside and speak at the opening briefing session Tuesday morning in the presidential press conference room in the old state building next to the White House. After each speech there will be questions and discussion.

Several side meetings of governors will be held starting today to discuss such things as the western drouth and dust storms, how to revive the ailing coal industry, and plans for the regular annual governors' conference to be held July 11-14 at Lake George, N. Y.

Drouth Conference.

The President scheduled a drouth conference during the day with the governors of Colorado, Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas and New Mexico.

Gov. John S. Fine of Pennsylvania invited the governors of 16 states to another meeting to plan concerted efforts to pump new life into the coal industry. John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, and secretary of the interior Douglas McKay will attend.

Lewis's union said in a statement yesterday that the Government should establish a national fuels policy to bail the coal industry out of its current economic plight.

The union said the international situation "makes it mandatory that the American coal industry be kept strong and efficient in order to meet the fuel and energy needs of our nation and of our allies," and it added:

"The Communist aggressors . . . are capable of shutting off our foreign oil imports virtually at a moment's notice. Atomic energy . . . is not now and will not be for an unpredictable period of time capable of supplying both the weapons of defense and power to operate the domestic and, if necessary, war production economies."

CIO Employment Conference.

WASHINGTON, April 26 (AP) — CIO President Walter P. Reuther announced yesterday that his union will hold a national full employment conference here on May 11-12. Approximately 300 CIO delegates are expected to attend.

Truce Delegate Goes Home.

SEOUL, April 26 (UP)—Gen. Paul Wacker, chief of the Swiss delegation to the Neutral Nations Supervisory Commission, left today to report to his government in Geneva.

The French command said the rebels maintained their "pressure" on the fortress's new defense line in that sector, established about 300 feet due south of the rebel trenches. The French said the attackers had not been able to infiltrate the defenders' lines last night, and were still 600 yards from Brig. Gen. Christian de Castries' command headquarters.

Propaganda Victory Sought.

A Vietminh broadcast heard in Hanoi said the opposing forces would be "face to face very soon" in a death struggle. The threat appeared to back up belief the rebels' Communist leaders were preparing to throw everything into one more attempt to wipe out Dien Bien Phu.

(Peiping radio broadcast a report from the Communist Viet Nam news agency saying that the rebels had captured the last French post west of Dien Bien Phu's main airstrip and had occupied "two thirds of the aerodrome." The other airstrip, south of the main fortification, has been in rebel hands for weeks.)

The United States Air Force's first long-distance emergency airlift to rush in French paratroopers from France wound up Saturday without a mishap. The operation—"Bali High"—was believed to have brought in about 1400 reinforcements for Dien Bien Phu and other critical spots.

Seven giant Globemasters loaded about 225 troops each at Paris for the long flight to the East. They touched down at Dhahran, Saudi Arabia; Karachi, Colombo and Bangkok, skirting India and Burma, which had refused permission for the troop carriers to cross their territory. The planes flew back to the United States via the Philippines and Pacific, circling the globe.

Announcement of the completion of the first phase of the airlift brought the first official disclosure that Burma, as well as India, had barred the passage of the United States planes over its territory.

The airlift will continue into May with an undisclosed number of French troops still to be brought in.

U.S. Aid Chief Arrives.

Lt. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, new chief of the United States Military aid mission in Indochina, arrived in Hanoi today from Saigon to discuss the critical situation in north Indichina. He went into immediate conference with Gen. Rene Cogny, French commander in nothern Indochina.

There was no word today from a French-Laotian column previously reported moving north about 18 miles below Dien Bien Phu. Reports Saturday that the troops were in the region stirred speculation they might try to draw off part of the Vietminh forces concentrated on the fortress, providing some relief for the embattled position.

Another battle flared in the Red river delta, this time only 12 miles southwest of Hanoi. French Union tanks, artillery and infantrymen joined in an effort to destroy rebel units which infiltrated from the south and entrenched at a village.

Elsewhere in the delta, the French reported 43 rebels killed in scattered skirmishes east and southeast of Hanoi and along the railway and highway linking Hanoi with the seaport of Haiphong.

The case against marital infidelity

Infidelity is more common than most people wish to believe, says Dr. Abraham Stone, marriage consultant...and even if undiscovered it is still a disintegrating force in marriage.

In May Reader's Digest, Dr. Stone tells why unfaithfulness seldom brings lasting emotional satisfaction, instead shatters personality . . . and what, after a quarter century of dealing with marital problems, he's found is a major cause of adultery.

full strength. Average manpower in 1955 will be 220,000.

Air Force—Gets $10,819,310,000, a cut of $380,690,000 in President's request. Air Force plans to maintain an active aircraft inventory ranging from 21,010 on June 30, 1954, to 22,927 on June 30, 1955, including regulars, Air National Guard and Reserves. Average Air Force manpower for 1955 will be 960,000.

The committee also allowed $25,000,000, a cut of $10,000,000, for costs of joint operations on atomic tests.

The committee again criticized the armed services for "waste" and sloppy accounting.

The committee called for an investigation to find out whether taxpayers' money is being used for officers' clubs and rest hotels which are supposed to be self-sustaining on non-appropriated funds.

The committee clipped $200,000 from Army recruiting funds with instructions that Army-sponsored television shows either be eliminated or improved.

Accounting Charges.

The committee complained of numerous violations of accounting and record-keeping methods and said it hopes for "some progress in bringing order out of a long existing chaotic fiscal situation within the Department of Defense.

But the committee relented on another economy move. It voted to boost from 9000 to 11,000 pounds the weight limit on household goods which an officer can ship at government expense when he is transferred. Before the congressional crackdown last year, top-ranking admirals and generals could move as much as 24,000 pounds free.

The committee said that $355,000,000 cut from the bill represented a bookkeeping change, relieving the armed services of putting up cash in the Treasury for goods and services they receive free under the mutual security or occupational programs.

The Army voluntarily agreed to a cut of $127,000,000 before the hearings began, the committee said. During the hearings, the services agreed to another reduction of $183,000,000 because of reprogramming or "plain errors in computation."

The committee said therefore its own cut in Army appropriations amounted to only about $541,000,000.

The bill also provides $55,000 requested for the National Security Training Commission; $12,500,000, a cut of $1,000,000 for the Office of the Secretary of Defense; and $527,500,000, a cut of $20,000,000, for Interservice Activities which includes atomic tests.

PATROL CAR STOLEN WHILE POLICEMEN BOOK PRISONERS

PHILADELPHIA, April 26 (AP)—Elan Angstadt and Raymond Fabian were a couple of mighty embarrassed patrolmen yesterday. Somebody drove off with their patrol car while they were booking six prisoners.

Ninety minutes later Angstadt and Fabian—on foot—stumbled across the missing car seven or eight blocks from the station house.

But by that time their plight had been broadcast all over town.

60TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Fellenz, 3528 Page boulevard, observed their sixtieth wedding anniversary by renewing marriage vows at St. Alphonsus (Rock) Church, 1118 North Grand boulevard.

Solemn high mass was celebrated by the Rev. Charles Mallon, C.S.S.R., and 82 girls of the church high school sang. Twelve girls served as maids of honor. The ceremony was followed by breakfast at the Forest Park Hotel for 200 guests.

SENATOR URGES HOLDING UP FHA APARTMENT AID

Ferguson Against Blocking Funds for Other Phases of Housing Program.

WASHINGTON, April 26 (AP)—Senator Ferguson (Rep.), Michigan, wants to hold up any new funds for federal aid in apartment house construction until the facts are known about the current public housing scandal.

This would not bar approval of funds for other phases of the government housing agency, Ferguson said, "because the investigation might take a long time and we can't withhold money for programs" about which there is no question.

The Senate Banking and Currency Committee is now holding hearings on alleged irregularities in the Federal Housing Administration's program of insuring loans for home repairs and for apartment house construction. In the face of charges that laxity and possible criminal action in some cases permitted builders to reap huge windfalls, six FHA officials have either been fired or have resigned.

The scandal also is being studied by the Senate-House Committee on Reduction of Non-Essential Federal Expenditures headed by Senator Byrd (Dem.), Virginia.

Ferguson, who is a member of the joint committee and the Senate Appropriations Committee, said in an interview yesterday he did not believe the appropriations group should open its own inquiry, but should wait and see what the two investigations now under way turn up.

"I don't think the Appropriations Committee should duplicate their work," he said.

The House passed and sent to the Senate early this month legislation stripped of the low-rent housing program President Eisenhower requested. In other housing fields, including slum clearance, the bill went to the Senate pretty much as the Administration wanted it.

Ferguson said it was up to federal officials to advise Congress when they find loopholes in the law which permit "crookedness and shenanigans" such as uncovered in the housing field.

Housing Administrator Albert M. Cole said last week that in view of the disclosures pending housing legislation was being reviewed with an eye to closing any loopholes which might permit similar activities.

ADMITS PLOTTING HOLDUP, JAILED ON LICENSE CHARGE

Leon S. Leonard, who testified he and three companions planned to hold up a Public Service Co. garage last Monday but postponed the robbery when one member of the group failed to show up, today was sentenced to 10 days in jail on a plea of guilty of having no state automobile license.

Under questioning by Associate Prosecuting Attorney Jasper R. Vettori, Leonard, a packer living in the 900 block of Park avenue, told of the plan to rob the cashier at the garage, 4041 South Broadway. Pistols were obtained and a rendezvous was arranged, but one man failed to keep the appointment and the proposed holdup was deferred, Leonard said.

Police, who had received a tip about the holdup plan, arrested Leonard and two companions. The charge involving the license followed.

LAYMEN'S RETREAT LEAGUE ELECTS SEVEN TO COMMITTEE

Seven new members of the Laymen's Retreat League's executive committee were elected yesterday at a breakfast at Hotel Jefferson following the league's annual mass and Communion at St. Joseph's Catholic Church.

Those elected were: Dr. John V. King, J. Shapleigh Driscoll, Joseph A. Glynn Jr., Robert V. Heffernan, Don C. Musick Sr., E. W. Coffey and Daniel P. Winkelmann.

The mass, attended by more than 1500 league members, was celebrated by Archbishop Joseph E. Ritter. Principal address at the breakfast was by Thomas P. Neill, professor of history at St. Louis University.

Catholic Men's Views on China.

WASHINGTON, April 26 (UP)—The National Council of Catholic Men urged the Government last night to remain firm in withholding diplomatic recognition of Red China and in opposing its seating in the United Nations.

SWISS STOP LIGHTS MAKE REDS SEE RED AND LIKE IT

GENEVA, April 26 (UP)—The Reds are always good for a laugh. A requirement in all European hotels is that foreign guests must submit their passports to the desk clerk. The Communists not only decline to do so but they also refuse to sign the hotel registers. So the registers are filled with the word "occupied."

The Russians got their first setback before the conference started. They asked that all traffic lights be switched to green at specified hours to enable Soviet leaders to race at their usual 60 M.P.H. pace from villa to conference hall. The Swiss politely refused.

A U.P. correspondent, who rates as an old China hand, tried a bit of bluff friendliness to get through the cloak of secrecy around the Chinese Communists. He approached one in a hotel lobby and said: "Cho-san Ho Pan you"—"Good morning, my good friend."

"Very sorry, we have no comment today on anything," the Chinese replied in English.

WASHINGTON, April 26 (AP)—An Army court-martial today threw out one of three accusations against Cpl. Edward S. Dickenson, who is charged with informing on his buddies while a prisoner of war in Korea.

Col. Richard F. Scarborough accepted a defense motion for a finding of not guilty on a charge that Dickinson informed on Martin Christensen, of Hammond, Ind., a fellow P.O.W.

The defense lost a similar motion for the dismissal of a charge of squealing on Edward M. Gaither of Philadelhpia. Scarborough, the court's legal officer, said he would leave the question of guilt on that score in the hands of the eight-member court.

Guy Emery, counsel for Dickenson, in arguing for a finding of innocent on the Gaither allegation, told the court there had been "no evidence whatever" that Dickenson informed on the Philadelphia construction worker, also a former P.O.W.

Dismissal of the charge relating to Christensen followed the court's refusal to accept in evidence a group of documents alleged to have been signed by Dickenson, a Cracker's Neck (Va.), youth who first refused and later accepted repatriation. The court ruled that Christensen was not an expert on Dickenson's signature, and could not identify it as being on the documents.

The prosecution completed its case, with the exception of scheduled cross-examination of Cpl. Thomas A. Carrick of Blacksburg, Vo., which has been delayed pending receipt of certain documents from the Army.

Emery said he was prepared to aunch the defense case tomordow morning.

Christensen and Dickenson joined in an unsuccessful attemt to escape from their North Korean prison camp.

One of the challenged documents is alleged to have been signed by Dickenson after the escape effort failed. The prosecution contends the Reds showed the document to Christensen later. The witness said he had not seen Dickenson sign it.

ONE MAN KILLED, ANOTHER HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Scott Field Airman Crushed Beneath Car After Hitting Signal Near Belleville.

One man was killed and another seriously injured in separate automobile accidents in the St. Louis area over the weekend.

Airman 1-C Cecil E. Maberry, 33 years old, Scott Air Force Base, was killed late Saturday night when he was thrown from the automobile he was driving and crushed beneath it.

State highway police said Maberry apparently was driving at a high rate of speed when he lost control of the car on a grade crosing on Illinois Highway 15 about a mile east of Belleville. The automobile crashed against a signal light. Maberry was a member of the 3310th Food Service Squadron.

Charles R. McKee, a letter carrier, 8467 Kempland place, University City, was seriously injured yesterday when the car he was driving collided with another automobile at St. Charles and Lackland roads, St. Louis county.

The accident occurred as McKee, who was driving west on St. Charles, prepared to make a left turn. Driver of the eastbound machine was Stanley R. Cretin, 3736A Maffitt avenue. He suffered minor injuries.

NEW YORK, April 26 (AP)—Gen. Robert E. Wood bowed out today as chairman of Sears, Roebuck & Co. after assuring stockholders "your company is on a sound foundation."

Presiding for the last time at the annual stockholders meeting, Wood, who will be 75 years old in June, expressed belief that elimination of the excess profits tax should offset any decline in business this year as far as the company's earnings are concerned.

agreement on the chairmanship. The agreement, he said, grew out of a proposal by Molotov that one of the western Big Three preside on the opening day and one of the Communist countries on the second day.

Eden then suggested that it be handled on a three-day rotation basis with either Canada or Thailand serving along with Russia and one of the western big powers. Molotov offered no objection.

"Thus it happened," the Soviet spokesman said, "that this very difficult question which the whole world regarded as insoluble was easily settled on the basis of Mr. Molotov's proposal."

The Soviet spokesman quoted Eden as saying the conference had got off to a good beginning and added:

"We can only agree with him."

Prince Wan said the opening session agreed also that the five official languages will be French, English, Russian, Chinese and Korean, with simultaneous translations. If other languages are used the speakers must furnish their own translators.

Meetings to Be Closed.

The Thai foreign minister also agreed to meet daily, except Sunday, from 3 p.m. to 7 p.m. (9 a.m. to 1 p.m. St. Louis time) with a "refreshment" break at 5 p.m. All meetings will be closed and each nation will handle its own press arrangments. The major delegations already have announced they will hold daily press briefings.

Prince Wan said there was no dissent to any of these decisions.

A French delegation spokesman said Bidault would be host to Dulles, Eden and Molotov for an informal Big Four talk tonight just before dinner at Bidault's suburban villa.

The Soviet spokesman said the Korean issue was first on the agenda according to the Berlin agreement and Indochina would be last. Asked whether it would be possible to raise the Indochinese question before the Korean issue was disposed of, he said:

"It is the custom of international meetings that one question is discussed until it is finished and then pass on to the next."

Opening Statement.

A United States spokesman said Prince Wan, speaking English, opened the meeting with this statement:

"The task of this conference was laid down by the four inviting powers at Berlin. It is, first of all, to establish a united and independent Korea, the establishment of which would be an important factor in reducing international tension and restoring peace to other parts of the world. It is a noble task to which we must devote ourselves with all our hearts."

After today's session, Eden walked over to Molotov and was introduced to Chou, whose seat is just in front of Molotov's.

Most western foreign ministers were pessimistic and most of them—Dulles included—were said to be doubtful that any real progress could be made toward settlements either for divided Korea or embattled Indochina.

Pre-Parley Discussions.

Eden took the lead in today's last-minute round of talks. He talked first with Molotov and then scurried to United States delegation headquarters. Then he went back to see Molotov again. An announcement said Molotov then agreed on the chairmanship rotation.

An American spokesman said Dulles preferred not to serve as chairman in order to keep himself free for matters which might arise on the conference floor.

After the decision on the chairmanship had been agreed on by the Big Four, the other nations on the United Nations side in Korea quickly concurred.

Represented at the conference were delegations from all the nations whose troops fought in Korea except South Africa, plus Soviet Russia. Many of their public statements were suitably optimistic; privately they were not.

Bidault was the last to arrive in Geneva, coming early today by train from Paris. He had been held in the French capital until the last minute by the steadily worsening military situation at the besieged Indochina fortress of Dien Bien Phu and Viet Namese Chief of State Bao Dai's announcement last night that he would not sign a French-sponsored independence treaty for his state.

Bidault, in a statement at the Geneva railroad station, bitterly assailed the Vietminh rebels in Indochina, and by implication the Chineses Communists supplying them with war materials and the latter's Russian sponsors at the conference here.

The Frenchman said it was "not by chance" that the attack on the northwest Indochina fortress had been stepped up as the diplomats gathered here to discuss peace in Indochina.

"Their proposals and their acts are in discord," said Bidault of the Reds.

Asked about the reports of request for British and American help, Bidault replied, "I'll do everything in my power to bring aid to those fighting in Indochina."

There was still no definite information as to whether the British and the French would propose that Viet Nam be partitioned, giving the Vietminh the north and Bao Dai's French-sponsored government the more productive southern half.

Rumors circulated last week that Eden was preparing such a plan, but he refused any comment on the reports on his arrival here last night after attending an emergency session of the British cabinet in London.

The partition reports gained credence from Bao Dai's statement in Paris yesterday. He cited "various plans devised for the division of Viet Nam," and said neither he nor his Government "will admit any right to break up the unity of the country."

A French communique replied that the treaties being negotiated by the French and Bao Dai cast not the slightest doubt on Viet Nam's unity and independence.

The United States has taken no public position on partitioning but was reported as feeling that the war in Indochina—largely a guerrilla conflict with no fixed front line—does not lend itself to splitting the country as in Korea.

Probable Western Plan.

For Korea, the West was likely to propose a British-drawn plan which the Communists were almost certain to reject. It is reported to provide:

1. Free elections for a central government as the basis for unification of Korea.

2. Withdrawal of all foreign troops over a period of several years.

3. The United Nations, chiefly the Big Four, and Communist China to guarantee the security of a reunited Korea.

The Communists were expected to come up with a counter-proposal calling for foreign troops to leave first, then all-Korean elections arranged to give the Reds control. The West was just as certain to reject that.

Chief conference interest centered on Red China's Chou, making his debut on the east-west diplomatic stage. Peiping sent a delegation to the United Nations in New York in 1950 but he was not along. Most western delegates expected Molotov to let Chou take the lead in the debate on Asian problems, as a further move in Russia's campaign to win the Peiping government a more widespread acceptance abroad.

Dulles to Leave Later.

An authoritative source said Dulles planned to stay in Geneva for only a week or 10 days, then would leave Under Secretary of State Walter Bedell Smith to take over for him.

Eden and Bidault also were expected to leave soon after Dulles's departure.

Representatives of the Big Four powers approved conference seating arrangements yesterday. They put the United States and Russia in the third and last row of delegates' seats but at opposite ends of the row. Communist China was in the row ahead of them, next to the British.

Pravda Says Red China will Have Equal Status in Parley.

LONDON, April 26 (UP) — Pravda, Moscow Communist party organ, predicted in today's edition that "China will take part on an equal footing with the other great powers" when the Geneva conference gets started.

"This decision is undoubtedly a success for the camp of peace and will contribute to easing tension in international relations," Pravda's story, broadcast by the Moscow radio, said.

By the Associated Press.

The Peiping radio said last night the United States "is out to shipwreck the Geneva meeting and enlarge the war in Indochina."

An unidentified commentator for the New China News Service was quoted as saying:

"The United States is really trying every possible device to round up its 'allies' in a United States-controlled southeast Asia military bloc in which these countries will be tightly chained to the Wall Street chariot."

PARATROOPERS USE GEIGER COUNTERS IN MOCK ATOM WAR

FORT BRAGG, N. C., April 26 (UP)—Swarms of paratroopers, carrying Geiger counters and wearing protective clothing, were dropped today into an area that had been showered just 40 minutes before with simulated atomic bombs.

This was the Air Force's first use of mock atomic blasts in maneuvers designed to teach the military in peacetime what to do in wartime. Three simulated atomic bombs were exploded over the drop zones in the Camp Mackall area where aggressor forces were concentrated. Clouds of ominous-looking but harmless smoke mushroomed up over the pines.

The first wave of paratroopers of the Eighteenth Airborne Corps began jumping from Air Force C-119s into the "blasted" areas 40 minutes later. A total of 9000 paratroopers was to be dropped into the battle zone of the giant atomic war games today. In addition, hundreds of tons of jeeps, trucks, guns and other heavy equipment were parachuted.

David M. Little Dies.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 26 (UP)—David M. Little, 57, secretary to Harvard University since 1936, died yesterday. He was 57 years old.

West Germany to Be Bitterly Disappointed if EDC Fails

By WILLIAM H. STONEMAN
The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Radio. Copyright, 1954.

BONN, April 26 — Western Germany will be desperately and bitterly disappointed if the plan for a European Defense Community falls through.

As the time approaches for France and Italy to ratify the EDC—or not to do so—Germans are more convinced than ever before that this military link with five other western European countries is a "natural."

Some of the reasons why Germany wants the EDC should also make it attractive to the other prospective members — France, Italy, The Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg.

Other reasons for Germany's interest in EDC help to explain why France has hesitated to accept it. France and Italy are the only ones who have not yet ratified the treaty.

Why Germany Supports Plan.

1. It is probably the only way in which western Germany can regain its right to rearm. The EDC plan provides for 12 German active divisions and eventually will probably involve the creation of another 12 reserve divisions. Although these units will be under an international command, western Germany will be by far the largest single source of military strength in the western coalition.

This will give western Germany an increasingly strong voice in western European affairs. Not unnaturally, France is deadly afraid of this situation.

2. The EDC is the one door through which western Germany can re-enter the community of nations as a true equal of France and the other powers in a legal and moral sense. No alternative to EDC which has yet been proposed would allow Germany to rearm in full agreement with France. And Germans are aware that Germany's re-establishment as a western power, with the full right to participate as an equal in the councils of the west, is bound to involve an agreement with France.

"European Idea."

3. The "European idea," as represented by the EDC's supranational character, has seized the imagination of many Germans. It is a pleasant and constructive substitute for the old nationalism which has brought Germany to ruin twice since 1914.

"Good" Germans feel that if the European idea fails Germany's traditional nationalism may be revived with disastrous results.

4. To Germany's many Catholics the EDC falls into the tradition of the Holy Roman Empire and a noble alliance against the forces of evil.

5. The EDC will lead toward the European Political Community or EPC. This latter organization is supposed to include both the EDC and the European Coal and Steel Community, already operating.

But if the EDC is killed because the French or Italians fail to ratify the treaty then the whole idea of economic and political integration may be killed. That would have incalculable effects on all of the countries of Western Europe. Among other things it might alienate the United States and jeopardize European security.

6. If EDC comes into being Germany can more than hold its own in a military way with the other five member countries. If EPC subsequently becomes a fact Germany can more than hold its own in a political way. If EPC leads to the freeing of trade barriers in western Europe, Germany can also more than hold its own in economic competition with France, Italy and the other members.

Source of French Fear.

At the end of the rainbow Germany sees a possible chance to compete on even terms with France in the markets of the EDC must come first, reunion afterward.

They also feel that eastern Germany would be more inclined to join a strong, integrated Western Europe than to engage in a risky union with Western Germany alone. Russia would scarcely dare to use force against eastern Germany to prevent it from joining a united Western Europe but it might use rough-house tactics if it were just a question of dealing with the Germans alone.

Thus France, in considering the pros and cons of EDC must contemplate the possibility that EDC and the EPC may one day have a reunited Germany of 70,000,000 people as one of its units.

ALY KHAN, EX-WIFE MEET OVER CHARGES

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., April 26 (AP)—Prince Aly Khon today met with Rita Hayworth, his former wife, as the Hollywood star prepared to fight a charge of neglecting her children.

Singer Dick Haymes, her present husband; and her two daughters were also present.

The occasion provided a reunion for the Prince with his and Miss Hayworth's daughter, Yasmin, 4 years old. Her other child, Rebecca Welles, 9, was born during her marriage to Actor Orsen Welles.

Leaving the Prince with Yasmin in the hotel room, Miss Hayworth, Haymes and Rebecca walked three blocks to Children's court for a meeting with udge George W. Smyth.

Smyth had called upon "principals" in the case to attend the informal session as a preliminary to the hearing scheduled for tomorrow.

The neglect complaint against Miss Hayworth was brought by the Westchester County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

Walter W. Westall, for 18 years president of the organization, told reporters the society stepped into the case on the basis of reports it received from neighbors.

The couple took the children to the hotel after arriving here early today.

Robert Bleakley, an attorney for Miss Hayworth, said neighbors apparently thought the children had been left with a casual employe and were unaware that Mrs. Chambers had been their governess since last October.

Nation-Wide Test of Polio Serum Gets Under Way in Six States

Final Sanction Given by Committee of Experts After Two-Day Appraisal of Its Safety.

(Picture in Everyday Magazine.)

WASHINGTON, April 26 (AP)—The test of the new poliomyelitis vaccine in selected areas across the nation gets under way today.

The first inoculations today are in areas of Alabama, Colorado, Virginia, Nevada, Utah and Washington.

Final sanction of the tests was given late yesterday by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis after an advisory committee of polio experts had recommended the go-ahead following a two-day appraisal, primarily from the standpoint of safety.

The United States Public Service also approved the decision, which stipulated certain conditions for use of the vaccine first developed by Dr. Jonas E. Salk of the University of Pittsburgh.

Stores of Vaccine Released.

The foundation's action released stocks of vaccine which already had been delivered to 20 of the 45 states scheduled to participate. Vaccine for the other states is expected to be delivered in a fairly short time.

Officials estimated that about 500,000 6- to 8-year-old children in some 170 communities of the 45 states eventually will receive the vaccine, with 400,000 others receiving inoculations with an inert substance. These latter children will be among youngsters who will be used as "controls" for the test. An evaluation report is not expected before late in the fall.

While the vaccine has shown an ability to stimulate the body's production of antibodies of the type deemed protective against polio, it remains to be seen whether it can actually protect against an attack by virus under natural conditions—and that's why the nationwide field trials are being held.

"Will it protect and for how long?" is the question to be answered by the tests, President Basil O'Connor of the Polio Foundation told reporters.

Committee Gives Assurance.

The advisory committee said certain specifications for manufacture of the vaccine had been set up some time ago and added that:

"The possibility of infectious activity remaining in any vaccine meeting the specifications and minimal requirements has been reduced to a point below which it cannot be measured by practicable laboratory procedures."

Officials said also that each lot of vaccine, before any use in human beings, must pass laboratory tests for safety and other requirements by three separate laboratories.

Much of the two-day meeting of the advisory committee was devoted to appraising results—from the safety standpoint—of preliminary tests already made in which the manufactured vaccine was given to 7507 children by Dr. Salk.

It was found, said the committee, "that there have been no recognizeable untoward effects on any of the 7507 children inoculated with manufactured vaccine according to Dr. Salk's observation and those of (an) evaluating group headed by Dr. Thomas Francis Jr. of the University of Michigan."

SHRINERS CONSIDERING NEW HOSPITAL FOR CHILDREN

Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children, Kingshighway and Clayton avenue, is considering construction of a new building on a site to be chosen, or rehabilitation of its present 120-bed structure, a Shrine spokesman said today.

The Masonic organization has been offered a 10-acre tract as part of the proposed Doctors' Medical Foundation at Clayton road and Lindbergh boulevard, St. Louis county, the spokesman said. A new hospital, if decided on would cost $2,000,000 and be completely equipped for orthopedic work, he said.

AT LAST! Coffee without Boiling

REVOLUTIONARY NEW COFFEE MAKING INVENTION

Duncan Hines

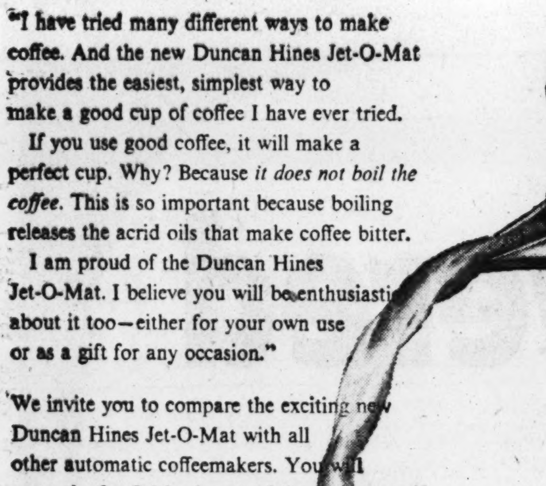

"I have tried many different ways to make coffee. And the new Duncan Hines Jet-O-Mat provides the easiest, simplest way to make a good cup of coffee I have ever tried.

If you use good coffee, it will make a perfect cup. Why? Because it does not boil the coffee. This is so important because boiling releases the acrid oils that make coffee bitter.

I am proud of the Duncan Hines Jet-O-Mat. I believe you will be enthusiastic about it too—either for your own use or as a gift for any occasion."

We invite you to compare the exciting new Duncan Hines Jet-O-Mat with all other automatic coffeemakers. You will agree the Jet-O-Mat is one of the most beautiful coffeemakers ever designed . . . is the one coffeemaker with more feature "firsts" than any other on the market . . . and is the only coffeemaker to use a unique jet principle to make coffee without boiling—the first really new coffeemaking development in years.

THE NEW Duncan Hines* Jet-O-Mat® automatic coffeemaker

Magic jet pump forces the water through the grounds many times without boiling either the water or the coffee—for perfect extraction, a process entirely new to coffeemaking.

Only coffeemaker with 10 cups capacity that will fit any kitchen shelf—completely assembled (only 7¾ inches high). Also has wide opening at top for easy cleaning.

FRENCH SOLDIERS PRAISE VIETMINH FIGHTING ABILITY

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press Foreign News Analyst

SINGAPORE, April 26 (AP) — The draftees in the Communist Vietminh armies in Indochina are stern terror. Ho Chi Minh's military leaders have made soldiers out of a horde of skinny, unshod, underfed peasants.

"The Viet is a damn good soldier," a tough French parachute troop noncom said as we flew over Dien Bien Phu. "He can march harder and longer than any soldier in the world and on less food."

"And he can shoot, too," added a mustached sergeant. "He is getting better all the time."

Here is how Ho's forces are organized:

Total mobilization has been enforced in the areas controlled by the Vietminh. The army is organized in a sort of ladder. At the top are the regulars, the main striking arm. These are the best trained and best equipped. There are seven division of regulars in all, or about 110,000 men.

Local Defense Setup.

Local defense is relegated to the next rung of the ladder, the provincial or regional troops used both in Communist-held and non-Communist areas. These also are regulars, but they are not so well trained and equipped. They are stationed in their respective areas as a corp of defense. They provide help in offensive actions when the regulars reach their areas and are invaluable because they know their country well. The regional troops also form a pool from which the Vietminh make up losses among the regulars.

Next down the ladder, district companies consist largely of irregulars. They have charge of the corps of boys, women and old men impressed into labor battalions. This group is kept at full strength by constant recruitment from the villages. It also forms a pool for regional troops.

A never-ending process of conscription, training and shifting keeps the Vietminh ranks from being depleted by heavy losses inflicted in battle.

Rebels' Supply Problem.

But the Vietminh have a problem of supply. In the northern delta area, Vietminh troops live off the land and the people as much as possible but they are hard pressed to bring up material and ammunition.

Heavy weapons and supplies for the Dien Bien Phu assault have been coming by trucks — Molotov trucks shipped down from Russia through China. Several hundred trucks have been in the supply line along the dusty mountain roads. Other supplies streamed in on the backs of heavily laden coolies over miles of mountain and jungle trails. But soon the rains will be coming—the steady pelting monsoon rains of Southeast Asia, and will cut roads much better than an air attack could.

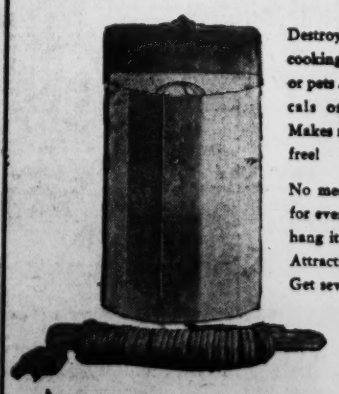

NEAT HOME HOUSES WELL, MEETING CITY'S STANDARD

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. April 26 (AP)—A salesman walked up to the door of a pleasant-looking house. He noticed the fresh green lawn and the brightly colored shutters. He rang the doorbell. Nobody answered. Nobody ever answers.

Inside the freshly painted stucco walls is a well which the city operates. There are several "houses" in the city which conceal wells. They conform to residential standards.

Water department officials get an extra chuckle when handbills are dropped on the porch or when salesmen leave free samples. One woman even stopped by to buy the "house."

Talk of Buffer State in Indochina By Soviet Ambassador to France May Be Tip to Red Line at Geneva

Vinogradov Has Been Surprisingly Frank in Pushing Idea Informally With Key Politicians but Evasive on Details — Americans Doubt It Would Work.

By MARGUERITE HIGGINS
The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Radio.

GENEVA, April 26.

THE SOVIET UNION, it is learned, discussed the creation of a Communist buffer state in northern Indochina in the course of adroit maneuvers conducted by Sergei A. Vinogradov, Soviet ambassador in Paris. These maneuvers are considered important clues to the Communist line at the Geneva conference.

According to information reaching top American diplomats, Vinogradov has been remarkably frank in expressing the Soviet Union position favoring an end to the fighting in Southeast Asia, with one important catch: Nobody has been able to pin him down on how big an area of northern Indochina the Communists are demanding.

Would they, for instance, demand the Red River delta around Hanoi, which is Indochina's most fertile area?

Vinogradov's activities are significant in that they have caused many Frenchmen to hope that both the Kremlin and the Chinese Communists are now ready to settle for a limited objective in Southeast Asia.

Uses Indirect Methods.

The approach taken by the Soviet ambassador, who took over his Paris post last July, has been shrewd, according to American observers, mainly for this reason.

It has been unofficial and indirect. Instead of approaching the French Foreign Ministry, headed by Georges Bidault, Vinogradov and his staff have resorted to talking to key Frenchmen in the National Assembly, especially Frenchmen who have an interest in bringing down the present government.

From the Soviet point of view, there was every reason, of course, to avoid a direct diplomatic approach to the present government prior to Geneva since France is pledged to the Navarre plan for the military defeat of the Communist-led Viet Minh rebels. (Gen. Henri E. Navarre is commander of French Union forces in Indochina.) In support of this French pledge, the United States has been pouring millions of dollars into the Indochina war.

But by influencing key members of the French Assembly and key sections of French public opinion, the Soviet ambassador has encouraged those forces already at work in France which tend to paralyze the government's capacity to carry on the Indochina fight.

Assembly Support Vital.

No matter what Bidault and Premier Laniel are pledged to do, their position is untenable if the Assembly does not support them. And the more the Assembly can be led to believe that the Russians and the Chinese are truly interested in a compromise, the more enfeebled is the position of the French government.

There is from the American point of view an obvious vicious circle here. The unpopularity of the war in Indochina decreases public support for any government pledged to carry on the war.

The resulting insecurity of the government makes impossible the capacity for decision and long-range planning necessary to wage a successful war. And, in turn, continuing military setbacks increase both the unpopularity of the war and of the government.

There have been several indications from the Communists that they were willing to settle for some sort of cease-fire. Vinogradov's activities in support of this line are recent but have been extensive enough to be the subject of diplomatic reports.

Vinogradov's Proposition.

Vinogradov, who has shown an acute awareness of French internal politics, has in his conversations taken approximately this position:

"Russia and France have historically the same interests in Europe, since their main troubles in the past have come from the same source—a militaristic Germany. Therefore, there is every reason for them to be allies. With a strong resurgent Germany next door, it is foolish for France to waste her military energies in far-off Indochina.

"Russia, too, has every wish for peace, and it is obvious that China has domestic problems connected with improving its economy. Continuation of the fighting holds obvious dangers. What with the United States being in an unpredictable mood, there is always the risk 'of expanding the conflict.' The sensible solutions is a cease-fire, partition and creation of a buffer state."

Would Mean New Satellite.

American officials point out that the creation of a buffer state in northern Indochina would give the Chinese Communists the prestige of adding a new established satellite, not to speak of the satisfaction of having prevented the French from carrying through their military program.

The essential difference in approach between American officialdom and those Frenchmen ready for partition is this: The Americans doubt that a settled frontier can be established in Indochina, since the Vietmih are spread all over the country.

The French believe that if the Reds are ready to talk of a cease-fire they are ready to proceed in good faith with a settlement that will really mean an end to the war.

Latin America's Reds Are Fewer But More Active

USIA Reports Drop of Third to 'Select' 200,000 Since War.

WASHINGTON, April 26 (AP).

THE United States Information Agency reported yesterday that Communism in Latin America, despite a drop in membership, is stepping up its activities through "national liberation fronts" and lavish help from Moscow.

The USIA is sending this commentary to its outlets throughout the free world. The agency, headed by Theodore C. Streibert, was set up last year as an independent unit outside the State Department to operate the Voice of America, a world-wide radio outlet. The agency also has press, library and motion picture facilities abroad.

The agency said a recent survey shows that Communist party membership in Latin America has declined one third since the end of World War II. However, the agency said, Latin American Reds have strengthened their ties with the Kremlin and satellite countries through deeper infiltration of labor unions and other key organizations, and have increased their attendance at Communist-sponsored meetings in Europe and Asia.

The agency estimated that the Communist party in Latin America now has a "select" membership of 200,000. This group operates throughout Latin America, it said, although 13 of the 20 republics have outlawed the party.

Free trips and indoctrination courses are available to potential Communist leaders, the USIA says. Since 1950, it added, the number of Latin American visitors to Communist strongholds in Europe have increased tenfold. Latin Americans also are treated to guided tours of Moscow and Peiping. In addition, the USIA said, large sums are paid for newspaper articles and radio broadcasts devoted to Communist scenes.

The USIA said the Communist party in Latin America has practically no direct power in lawmaking bodies outside of Guatemala. However, it said, the Reds have been able to build front organizations into "instruments of pressure on governments."

In Guatemala Communists occupied four of the 56 seats in Congress, it said, and although there were only about 2000 party members, Communists and Red sympathizers control organized labor and hold key posts in the government.

A USIA breakdown of Communist party membership in Latin America showed approximately 40,000 in Argentina, 40,000 in Chile, 30,000 in Cuba, 60,000 in Brazil, 20,000 in Venezuela, 15,000 in Uruguay, 5000 in Mexico and 2000 in Bolivia.

DEAN CONFERS WITH RHEE ON GENEVA TALKS

SEOUL, April 26 (AP)—United States envoy Arthur Dean today conferred with South Korean President Syngman Rhee on the problems facing the Allies at the Geneva conference on Korean unification.

Dean, a special envoy of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, spent an hour with Rhee. He is reported to be here in the role of pacifier of Rhee's fears that the Geneva conference will end in failure for the West.

Dean also transmitted to the 79-year-old South Korean President the "personal regards and best wishes" of President Eisenhower, Vice President Nixon and Dulles.

Observers assumed Dean reassured Rhee that the United States would stand firm in its backing of the republic's demands that Red troops be pulled out of North Korea and that election for all of Korea be held under United Nations supervision.

Dean arrived at Rhee's presidential mansion with American Ambassador Ellis O. Briggs. The special envoy probably will meet daily with Rhee to keep him advised on Western progress and strategy at Geneva.

IRAQ GRANTED MILITARY AID BY U.S., IT SAYS

BAGHDAD, April 26 (UP)—Iraq announced yesterday that the United States has agreed to help expand and strengthen the Iraqi army with military aid.

An official communique said that Iraq gave no commitments in exchange for the arms aid. The aid was granted in response to a request submitted by Iraq last year.

No details of the amount of aid or type of weapons and supplies America would send this country were given in the communique.

KARACHI, April 26 (AP)—Pakistani Prime Minister Mohammed Ali yesterday welcomed the announcement in Baghdad that the United States has decided to grant military aid to Iraq.

He said "I will welcome military aid from the United States to all Moslem countries in the interest of their defense and strength."

Marine Amphibious Exercise.

SEOUL, April 26 (AP)—Nearly 5000 American marines will storm ashore on the east coast of South Korea next Monday in the first big-scale Marine amphibious exercise here since the armistice last July.

FLEESON

Army a Flop As Villain of M'Carthy Piece

Hearing Lacks Oomph—M'Clellan Likely to Provide Sparks.

By DORIS FLEESON
(Copyright 1954)

WASHINGTON.

THE spectacle of the United States Army defending its failure to give Pvt. G. David Schine a commission at the behest of Senator Joheph McCarthy and Roy Cohn drew record crowds and a record number of TV cameras, but it still lacked oomph.

This was not Senator McCarthy's fault. He did his stuff as usual, casting over the first witness the mantle of guilt by association with all his accustomed skill.

The trouble seems to be that the Army just can't play its McCarthy-assigned role as the villian of the piece. There were the generals surrounding their Secretary, professionally impassive and bearing upon their chests row upon row of the battle ribbons of two great wars. There was the silver-haired Secretary himself, Robert T. Stevens, from the top ranks of business, with education and breeding apparent in his voice and demeanor.

It is possible, even probable, that McCarthy and Cohn can make these men seem confused or even more than a little stupid. That they can be made to seem a danger to the republic is something else again.

There were signs that the Senator is uneasy about this and the possible and fatal boredom that might engulf the show. He must also realize that his team, the smooth Cohn and the pudgy staff director, Francis Carr, look callow beside beribboned heroes from whom they sought to force a commission for Schine. But McCarthy is resourceful, and it is a cold day when he cannot produce a sensation from the wings.

Democrats, cued by their senior, Senator McClellan, were alert and united. McClellan, a former prosecutor from Arkansas, is really the only subcommittee member whose killer instinct equals that of the Senator from Wisconsin.

DRUMMOND

Outlawing Communist Party Likely to Hinder U.S. Agencies

Constitutional Issue Also Involved—Bar Would Destroy 2 Effective Legal Weapons, Internal Security, Smith Act.

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND
(Copyright, 1954.)

WASHINGTON.

BECAUSE the case for outlawing the Communist party is so logical and, to many, so persuasive, it is important to take the time to examine faithfully the case against outlawing the Communist party. The case against outlawing the Communist party does not rest on any soft attitude toward subversion.

Opponents of outlawing the C.P., including Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr., are convinced that this would not help and would very likely obstruct the work of the FBI and the Justice Department in immobilizing the Communists.

To impugn the motives of either non-Communist side in this controversy is unfair and misses the point. The advocates and the non-Communist opponents of outlawry are vigorously anti-Communist.

Brownell's Reasons.

The principal reasons which the Attorney General recently cited to the House Judiciary Committee against legislation to bar the Communist party were:

That the present legal weapons of the courts, the Justice Department and the FBI, together with others which Brownell is strongly urging Congress to pass, including wire-tapping in security cases, denaturalization, making peacetime espionage a capital offense, etc., are effectively doing the job of dealing with Communist subversion and are sufficient.

That outlawing the Communist party would destroy at least two of the legal weapons which the Justice Department finds most useful (the Internal Security Act and the Smith Act) and would hamper the work of the FBI.

That outlawing the Communist party would probably be found unconstitutional and the Attorney General and others cite substantial evidence to fortify this judgment.

The Internal Security Act of 1950 strikes at the root of the Communist conspiracy — the secrecy which masks its Soviet subservience and its devious methods—in that it requires Communist-action and Communist-front organizations to disclose their membership, their officers and their financial backing.

The Internal Security Act does not make membership in the Communist party a crime per se. Registration can be made compulsory because, since membership is not per se a crime, no one is thus forced to give evidence against himself by registering. Thus Brownell points out that to make membership in the Communist party a crime per se would nullify the Internal Security Act.

Smith Act Vital.

The Smith Act, which makes it illegal for anyone knowingly to support any group favoring the overthrow of the Government by force, is another powerful tool of the Justice Department which has already resulted in the indictment of 108 Communist leaders.

Here Brownell points out that outlawing the Communist party would either go no further than the Smith Act or, by attempting to make membership a crime without proof that the individual personally knew of the party's illegal objectives, would go beyond the limits of the Constitution.

The crux of the constitutional issue is whether making membership in the Communist party a crime per se—a crime without having to prove in court that the individual knowingly committed the crime—is a denial of due process of law.

The Supreme Court has ruled in United States v. Lovett (1946) that "legislative acts, no matter what their form, (which) apply either to named individuals or to easily ascertainable members of a group in such a way as to inflict punishment on them without a judicial trial, are bills of attainders" and therefore unconstitutional.

The Supreme Court struck down the Oklahoma loyalty oath on the ground that "indiscriminate classification of innocent without knowing activity must fall as an assertion of arbitrary power."

The Attorney General adds this practical warning:

To the extent that outlawing the Communist party "would

PEARSON

Pentagon Reports Hint of Deal To Save Face for M'Carthy

By DREW PEARSON
(Copyright, 1954.)

WASHINGTON.

PENTAGON reports persist that a deal is in the works to save face for Joe McCarthy. Roy Cohn, burbling counsel of the McCarthy committee, would get the ax, also John G. Adams, counsel for the Army.

Adams's skirts are clear except on one thing. His sense of humor has a low boiling point. He will wisecrack at the drop of a paper clip, and his wisecracks, when recorded on tapped telephone wires, don't always come over as wisecracks.

Some of them are going to come out in Senate hearings and they may embarrass the Army.

* * *

LAWS VIOLATED?—Senator Mundt of South Dakota has announced that the charges against the Army, Roy Cohn, and Senator McCarthy cover "no acts of corruption punishable by law." However, the genial gentleman from South Dakota did not study law at Carleton College. He majored in public speaking. While Mundt is using his forensic talents in the tough job of presiding over the McCarthy inquiry, he should also retain a good lawyer to see how many laws Cohn, McCarthy and the Army may have violated. He might find that they may have violated 13 different statutes.

* * *

SECTIONS CITED—Here are some of them:

Section 1505 of the criminal code makes it a criminal offense "by threats or force" to endeavor "to influence, intimidate, or impede any witness in any proceeding . . . in connection with any inquiry or investigation being held by either House or any committee of either House."

McCarthy's and Cohn's reported threat that the Army would get smeared and that Secretary Stevens would lose his job if Pvt. G. David Schine was not transferred back to New York, would seem to come under section 1505.

Section 1913 forbids use of Government funds "to pay for any personal service . . . intended or designed to influence in any manner a member of Congress."

If either Secretary Stevens or Army counsel Adams gave any special favors to Pvt. Schine, this statute might apply.

Section 371, as interpreted by the Supreme Court in Haas vs. Hankel, 216 U.S. 462, covers any conspiracy "for the purpose of impairing, obstructing, or defeating the lawful functions of any department of Government."

If Pvt. Schine's military duty was used as a pawn in negotiations between McCarthy and Stevens, as charged, this section may have been violated.

Section 201 covers offers of any "thing of value" to influence either a Government department or a congressional committee.

If Adams was offered a valuable law partnership, as indicated in the allegations, in return for transferring Pvt. Schine, this section may have been violated.

Sections 202, 215 and 214 cover the same question of influencing a Government official with a job offer, such as a law partnership.

Section 872 covers extortion.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The McCarthy Hearings

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

We are now beholding the most disgraceful episode in the history of the United States, the McCarthy scandals in our Government.

Just because some young fellow named Schine wanted to hold some lesser office than Admiral or General, although he was barely capable of being a private in the Army, McCarthy and his man Friday, also known as Cohn, stooped to bring political and personal pressure on the Army to give him an exalted position for which he was not qualified.

GEORGE E. MIX.

How, where and from whom does this Senator obtain his information?

Does the dirt come from the FBI?

The American people are entitled to know.

I believe the time has come for congressional immunity to be stripped from the books—especially as it pertains to investigating committees.

Immunity has been so abused as to make it useless and in some cases dangerous. E. S. B.

Oh ho ho,
Who runs the sho,
Ike or Joe?
But even so
It looks like woe
Either way,
Come or go.

C. P. EVANS.

Shades of Hitler, Goebbels and Goering! How anyone could ever again trust that four-flusher from Wisconsin is beyond me.

I certainly hope the people in Wisconsin were able to view his tactics at Friday afternoon's proceedings. He did everything he possibly could to delay, stall and block orderly proceedings.

He should now be referred to as the Red hunter with a yellow streak down his back.

TATE W. TRENTMAN.

Intellectuals on the Spot

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I have before me the letter that was issued to various newspapers by the 27 members of the Physics Department of the University of Illinois.

The concepts presented in it I agree with most heartily. I am overjoyed that these men have taken it upon themselves individually to try "to reassure the public" on Dr. Oppenheimer and our Government.

However, as a student of economic history I fear for their future and for future statements of similar nature. A fear, I might say, I hope is never realized.

This fear is that under the conditions that seem to be affecting our Government or anyone connected with it such things may have repercussions.

In this case the physics department is supported to a large extent by federal funds. The power to cut or withdraw these funds rests in Congress.

We have certain men in this body who take exception to such remarks by such a group as "laboratory intellectuals." These men may threaten to withhold federal funds from those who seem to be disputing their judgment. Should this happen, undoubtedly there would be pressure on some or all of the 27 not to recant, but merely to refrain from such public outbursts.

Such pressure would probably be made under the guise of not placing the university and the opportunities for further expensive research in the physics department in jeopardy. To these 27 no overt act would be made other than this. Their veracity and judgment would not be impugned. They would only be asked to keep such statements and ideals to themselves without dragging the university's good name with the Government through the mire of party politics.

Again, this would be in the name of research and future experiments, experiments that might be the same ones these 27 have dedicated their lives to. The suggestion would be explicit in its implications.

Such a decision would make and has made many a man twist his soul to reach the decision that is best for himself, his colleagues and his country. DAVID ANDERSON.

Time to Change Brands?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I have seen a lot of dizzy letters in the Post-Dispatch, probably not even excepting some of my own, but the recent one by James Whiteside, who thinks Ike is breaking his campaign promises and who used to know better, takes the cake. What a pity that Colonel S. B. Philpot, one time pen pal of Ike, isn't around any longer. If he were, he could and probably would light up a pine knot for Jim, or he might even advise him to change brands. W. J. SHEA.

O'Fallon, Ill.

The Absent Partner

One party to the Geneva conference, which has now opened, is not present, but the influence of that partner nevertheless will be felt at every stage of the proceedings.

That non-participating participant is the leadership of the Republican party in the Senate—Senators Knowland of California, Bridges of New Hampshire and Ferguson of Michigan.

These Senators have at various times expressed their displeasure with American foreign policy as conducted by President Eisenhower and Secretary Dulles, who are constitutionally responsible for conducting it. They have shown that whenever they care to attack the Administration on a foreign policy issue, they can count on the support of the extreme nationalists, whose outstanding spokesman is Senator McCarthy of Wisconsin.

So Mr. Dulles, in everything he says and does at Geneva, will have in the back of his mind the possibility that he may have to contend with a strong element of his own party on the issue thus raised. This state of affairs is indeed the explanation for the first great issue that apparently will have to be settled at Geneva—the status of Communist China.

• • •

Because the Knowlands and the McCarthys have waged such an unremitting battle against recognition of the Peiping regime under any circumstances, Secretary Dulles did not dare agree to a conference with that regime except on conditions which made clear that no formal recognition was involved.

Knowing that Mr. Dulles is in effect pinned down on this issue, Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov is exploiting it to the full. He is proving his tender solicitude for the Chinese by trying to give them big power status at Geneva equal to that of the four inviting powers. He is doing this, moreover, in the safe knowledge that they will probably not get it, since Mr. Dulles is frozen in his present position by the senatorial second-guessers back home.

On the substantive issue at stake—whether Red China comes to Geneva as a member of the "Big Five," equal in status to the "Big Four"—there can be little doubt as to where the merits lie. The Berlin conference established China's status as an invited, not an inviting, power, and explicitly ruled out any status that would amount to diplomatic recognition.

• • •

Mr. Dulles is right to insist on carrying out that agreement. Yet it would be unfortunate if he had to carry his obligations to the Knowland bloc so far as to quibble over petty details of procedure rather than substance. Does it really make much difference, for example, whether a Chinese presides at any of the Geneva sessions?

The important business at Geneva is not Red China's status in the world, but the unification of Korea and the pacification of Indochina. On the question of Indochina, almost everybody speaks for peace. The French say their object is an immediate cease-fire, the British are talking of an armistice based on partition as in Korea, the Russians and the Chinese both pay lip-service to a cessation of hostilities.

Whether this talk can be refined into an enforceable cease-fire that offers safeguards against Communist conquest of Indochina remains to be seen. But Secretary Dulles is entitled to the largest possible room for maneuver. He is entitled, at least, to a fair chance to negotiate freely without being badgered by long-distance coaching from Capitol Hill.

If they do not like the way foreign policy is conducted at Geneva, the Republican Senators can say so when the proper time comes. But right now they should permit Mr. Dulles to conduct it.

Our Neighbor, Mrs. America

Our distinguished St. Louis-countian, Mrs. America, is a credit to her community in more ways than several. She is pretty, pert-looking, womanly, and a home-maker, but that is not all. She may be an indication that modesty is going to be worn this season.

When Mrs. Madison Jennings left for the National Mrs. America contest at Daytona Beach several days ago, she told all her friends in Bellefontaine Neighbors she was sure she didn't have a chance. Saturday night she was chosen Mrs. America.

Perhaps her modesty was just the extra cachet that won the national title for Mrs. Missouri. At any rate it is nice to think so. For a certain perspective on oneself makes everything concerned look better. It puts a Paris label in the dress, a lilting tilt to the hat, a bar of dance music in the shoes. And, goodness, what it does to blonde hair and blue eyes, eh, Mrs. America?

A Change That Is Welcome

The indorsement of fluoridation by the Chamber of Commerce of Metropolitan St. Louis is significant because it is unequivocal. That is quite a change from a year or so ago, and a welcome change it is. At that time, the Chamber took the position it favored this safe, cheap and effective public health measure for attacking dental decay in children—provided, that is, that industrial users of water were not adversely affected. It now develops, the Chamber reports, that industrial users do not object to fluoridation. This is good news. Now let the Aldermen get on with the business of making fluoridation a reality in St. Louis!

Contradictions of "Fair Trade"

The so-called "fair trade law" is producing some strange contrasts in federal policy toward prices, price-fixing and competition. The Federal Trade Commission, for example, attempts to prevent illegal price-fixing and gouging in restraint of trade. But the fair-trade law sanctions exactly what other legislation seeks to prevent.

This is indeed a contradictory state of affairs. But within the "fair trade law" itself is another baffling contradiction. The price-fixing contract with the manufacturer is made binding on all retailers within a state when a single retailer signs it.

The question which arises is: Should all those other retailers be bound by the terms of a contract which they have not agreed to—which some of them have not even seen? The Florida Supreme Court has just decided they should not.

In a suit brought by Bayer Aspirin, Phillips Milk of Magnesia and Alka-Seltzer against Eckerd's Drug Store, Justice Glenn Terrell said the "non-signer clause," as it is called, makes use of the police power for a private, not a public, purpose.

It is, he ruled, "not in line with our traditional concepts of free competition, which have traditionally been the yardstick for the protection of the consuming public."

Yet without the "non-signer clause" fair trade laws "would be meaningless," says Business Week. The promoters of these laws have repeatedly conceded that they cannot be enforced without the "non-signer clause." And this brings up another question:

How good is a business contract if one of the parties has not agreed to it and has to be forced into compliance by the power of a private police?

Why NBC Cut the McCarthy Inquiry

Why has NBC dropped live television coverage of the Senate's investigation of the McCarthy-Army battle? This question deserves some thought and an answer in view of the fact that NBC televised two full days of the hearings and then called off further live coverage.

Was the decision because there is no public interest in the controversy? That cannot be the answer since NBC makes a specialty of figuring out what the public is interested in. NBC would not have made all the costly changes in programming that were required had it not thought in advance that here was a showdown fight in which the public had a very great interest.

Had the first two days of the investigation moved crisply through any preliminaries and into the issues themselves, as illuminated by the actual evidence, with all principals bent on speeding the testimony, we can be sure that public interest in the hearings would still be high. Interest in good drama is inevitably high.

But observers by the droves began to regard the proceedings as a waste of time. They did so, in our opinion, primarily for one reason: because Senator McCarthy promptly made a complete nuisance of himself with his endless interruptions. By the end of the second afternoon it was evident that he would delay testimony and stall the presentation of documentary evidence interminably. And so the bored TV audience fell off sharply, as an NBC survey showed.

By one important test, this is the most significant development in the four-year McCarthy "crusade." For here is the presumably bold, hard-hitting, challenging, pioneering investigator himself grabbing at every chance to hold up the proceedings.

Here is the inquisitor who denounces as "Fifth Amendment Communists" all who do not wish to answer questions, for whatever reason, at his Star-Chamber one-man sessions. Here is that same Senator resorting to every technicality that comes along. This costs hours of time and obviously busy men and women have other things to do than to watch the junior Senator from Wisconsin throw one monkey wrench after another into the works.

But the hearings are going on and there will be televised reports of them as well as newspaper and radio accounts. The American people in the next week are going to go on learning the truth about the man so many have mistakenly admired. The NBC decision is in effect a recognition of the adverse judgment that is now taking form.

Hot Competition in Detroit

Keeping up with the automobile industry, that economic bellwether, is no easy matter in these days of fender-bumping competition. Events happen too fast.

Ford recently claimed to have taken over sales leadership, after years of trying, from Chevrolet. Chevrolet's answer is to step up production. Buick, Chevvy's bigger brother, says it is in third place in sales now, meaning it is among the "Big Three." That is an odd place to find a higher-priced car.

Auto dealers already have kicked up some protests about the sales pressure. Now The Wall Street Journal reports a secret 12-hour meeting in Detroit of Dodge dealers from 44 states. The Journal says the dealers asked Chrysler Corp. to cut the factory price of Dodges by $200—not to be passed on to the consumer as savings, but to cushion the dealers' own current losses or low profits. Chrysler executives, says The Journal, were unhappy that the meeting came to light.

As long as the competitive battle is joined principally between manufacturers and dealers, the driving American public need not be too unhappy. When somebody is producing a lot of cars, somebody obviously has to try to sell them, and somebody—the man behind the wheel—might get a better deal in the market.

The Vanishing Challenge

The challenge by the Government Director of Statistics in Dublin of The Vanishing Irish, which the Rev. John A. O'Brien edited, has itself been made to disappear by Dr. O'Brien's own completely explanatory answers.

His book's thesis is that "if the past century's rate of decline continues for another century, the Irish will virtually disappear as a nation."

The Director of Statistics, Dr. Robert Charles Geary, offered facts and figures which he said disproved the theory that the Irish are vanishing.

He said the Irish birth rate in 1952 was 21.8 per thousand, almost one eighth increase over the 1938 rate, and the death rate has declined so greatly since the war that average life expectancy has risen from 61.5 years in 1946 to 65.2 years in 1951.

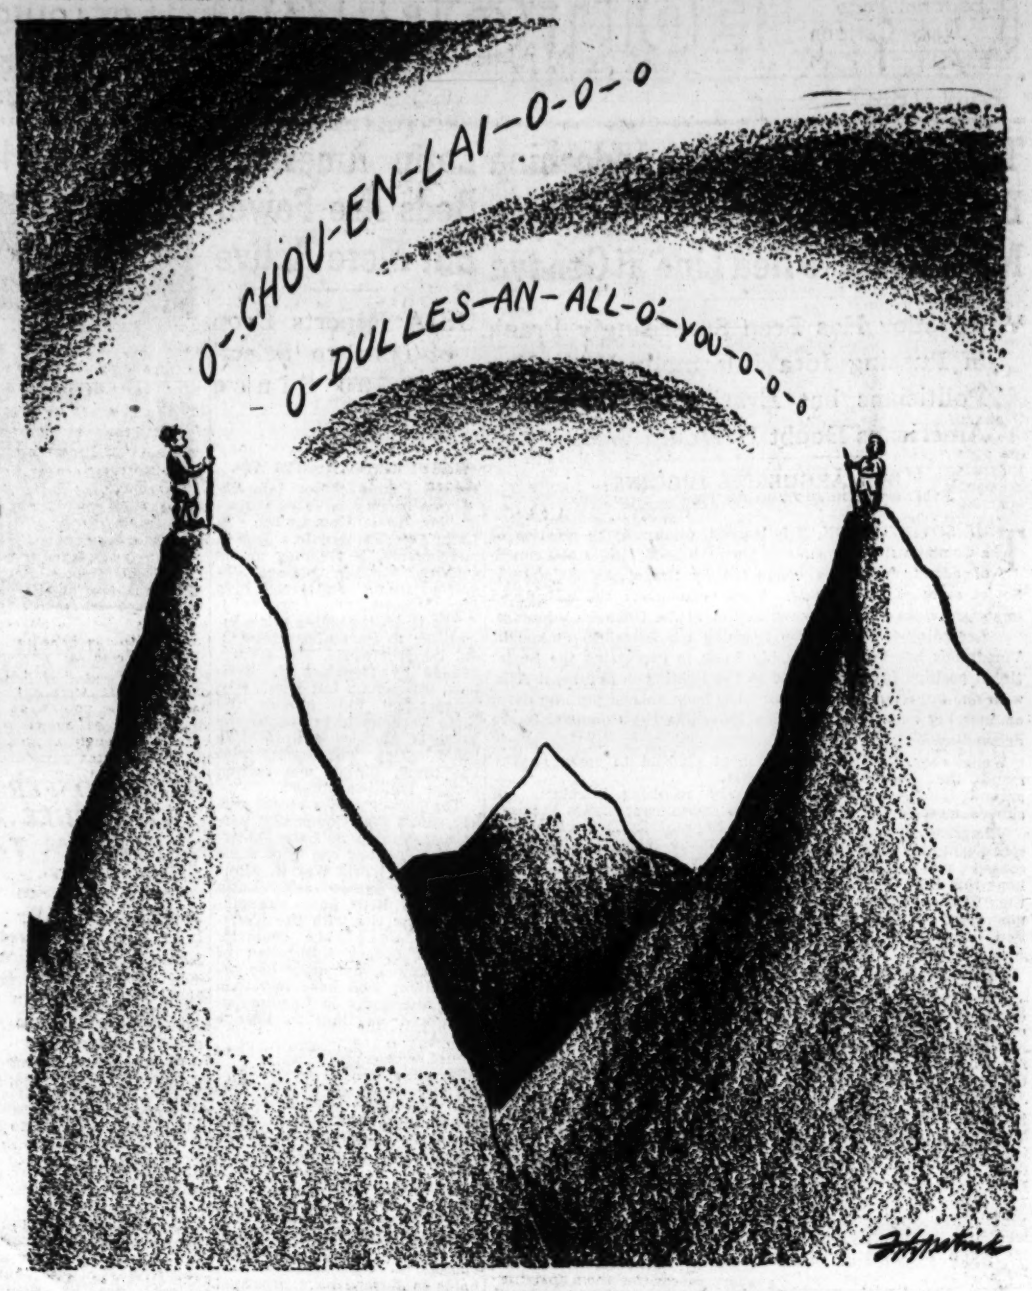

Do these facts appear to confute Dr. O'Brien's theory? They do not when the author, who is professor of the philosophy of religion at Notre Dame University, is through with them. Dr. O'Brien points out that Mr. Geary attempts to discredit the massive showing of a hundred-year trend by the figure for a single year, "a precarious gain" which may or may not be maintained. And he says that every fact in The Vanishing Irish came from Mr. Geary's office or from its published reports or from Mr. Geary direct.

If anything further need be said to establish the authority for the sad facts and sadder conclusions which are set forth in Dr. O'Brien's book, it is said by one of Ireland's greatest living playwrights, Sean O'Casey.

The author of The Plough and Stars and Juno and the Paycock wrote to Dr. O'Brien, on receipt of The Vanishing Irish:

> Well, the book has come . . . and it will give joy to every heart and mind that has any affection left for Ireland because it is the loudest and clearest and wisest call ever given to my knowledge to Ireland to wake up, and lie dying and dreaming no more.
>
> The book should be read by every Irish soul, lay and clerical, for two generations backwards, and unto the third and fourth generation forward, if the white candle before the holy rood (as Yeats pictured Kathleen ni Houlihan) is not to gutter out.
>
> I have been trying to say something similar myself for a long time now; but only got reprobation and malice for my pains.
>
> Well, God speed the book of yours into every Irish hand. The Irish have outlawed the lover and his lass; may the book bring them back into the glory and vivacity of our Irish life.

And so say we, Sean O'Casey.

SWISS MEETING ON A NON-RECOGNITION BASIS

Tale of Two Countries

The Mirror of Public Opinion

In Philippines, a free government has virtually defeated Communist movement both through military action and social reform; in Indochina, both reform and freedom are lacking and war goes on; one nation is asset to free world, other a liability.

From The Kansas City Star

Consider the contrast. In the Philippine Republic today the military potential of Communism continues to decline.

According to President Ramon Magsaysay, there are now probably only about 4000 fully-armed Huks (Communists) at large, of whom fewer than 1000 may be accounted fanatics. At its postwar peak the Huk strength consisted of some 40,000 first-class fighting men.

In Indochina, on the other hand, Communist power has just as consistently been growing.

Ramon Magsaysay

As recently as 1949 the Vietminh (Communist) rebels were still able to mount little more than local attacks on the French Union posts along the northern frontier. The latest estimates indicate in 1954 they have a force of approximately 360,000 regular and irregular troops and control possibly 11,000,000 natives out of a total population of 23,000,000.

Shortly after the Japanese surrendered Indochina back to the French a distinguished Philippine leader met Ho Chi Minh, who has since become head of the Indochinese Communists but then was known primarily as a nationalist. In the course of describing his difficulties with the French Ho said: "You Filipinos don't know how lucky you are. You have America. But we have France."

Events were to bear out Ho's fundamental distinction. The United States granted the Philippine islands full independence at a date stipulated in advance.

France, having restored her sovereignty over Indochina, has not even yet offered the Indochinese complete freedom of choice between affiliation with the French Union and independence, let alone set a firm date for the latter.

The Vietminh forces have supplemented their military operations with political and economic warfare. The French have elected to base their resistance almost exclusively on arms.

In the Philippines Magsaysay conducted a "field laboratory" to determine the nature of the Communist germ that had infected the Huks. He found it to consist of hunger, exploitation by landlords and bad government. He then combined an all-out military campaign with an offer of all-out friendship to correct these evils.

The results in both cases obviously speak for themselves. The Philippines today are an asset to the free world. Indochina is a prime liability.

Who Supports the President?

From the Los Angeles Daily News

California is among the states that will hold senatorial elections this year, but only because Thomas Kuchel, a Republican, holds office by virtue of appointment to the Senate seat left vacant by the election of Richard Nixon to the vice presidency. The Democratic candidacy of Representative Sam Yorty, now serving from the Twenty-sixth Congressional District, provides for the electorate a sharp contrast of principles embraced by the two parties.

Since Kuchel has done nothing to distinguish himself during his Senate service, the Republicans will have very little for which to commend him to the voters. They will be forced to rely on the argument that Kuchel should be elected to insure a Republican majority to support the President.

Since there is practically nothing in the record to show that the Republicans have been supporting the President, and much to indicate that with a majority they would render his leadership even less effective than it is now, the argument becomes a good one to show why Yorty, and not Kuchel, should be elected.

One illustration will suffice to show how Kuchel "supported" the President on a vital issue: He championed the unpopular Bricker amendment which the President opposed because it would undermine his conduct of foreign policy. This is the kind of "support" Republicans like Kuchel give the President.

Yorty's liberal, middle-of-the-road record in the House and his demonstrated willingness to make a determined stand on important issues mean that California, by electing him, has a chance to break up the dead-hand Republican grip on this state's Senate representation, for our senior Senator, William Knowland, supports the President about the way Kuchel does.

The argument that the people owe it to the President to keep Kuchel in the Senate is nonsense. The people owe it to themselves to elect a man who will protect their interests. It is for this reason that we recommend the election of Representative Yorty.

Beer and History in St. Louis

From Tavern Journal

The brewing industry's role in the rise of St. Louis now has an excellent chance of going down accurately in the pages of history through a $1000 grant by Griesedieck Brothers Brewery Co. to the Missouri Historical Society.

The Missouri Historical Society's collections are used by the country's leading authors and scholars. Valuable books, articles and exhibits can grow from the new collection.

Beer, as the senior Mr. Griesedieck has well pointed out, is intimately related to the city's social, industrial and economic growth. After expenditure of the $1000 gift for an exploratory survey, gaps in knowledge can be conveniently filled in by other breweries' donations of documents and artifacts out of a storied past.

Enterprising retailers of beer, for instance, did a thriving trade from booths set up in the middle of the Mississippi when the river used to freeze over.

Long an integral part of the American way, the industry is now moving forward from a colorful past to a golden future. It is appropriate that records be concentrated for maximum usefulness. It is also fitting that impetus for the project should come from a company with a brewing tradition that goes back, in this country and abroad, to an auspicious beginning, in Stromberg, Germany, more than 150 years ago.

NO SIGN OF COWARDICE.

Don P. Radde in the Sparta (Wis.) Herald

Just because you submit to things that you would have fought back at years ago is no sign that you are getting cowardly. It's just a sign that you are getting older, brother.

Between Book Ends

Days Afield

ROUND RIVER: FROM THE JOURNALS OF ALDO LEOPOLD, edited by Luna B. Leopold; illustrated by Charles Schwartz. (Oxford University Press. $3.)

I have been a long time in reviewing this book, because it has taken considerable study to evaluate it. A whole shelf-full of books by Leopold of the caliber of his "A Sand County Almanac" would be a contribution to conservation study which could not be equalled by a library full of books on the subject by other writers. But this is not such a book. And the problem which has bothered me is whether in bringing it out, the editor and publishers have done an unintentional injustice. The final decision is "probably not"—though even as I say this, I am not altogether certain.

The difficulty, it seems to me, lies in the thing which happens to any writer who—after goodness knows how many years of effort and development—turns out something like a masterpiece. Thereupon his publishers—or heirs, if he is no longer on hand to protect himself—dig back into his trunks and old files, bring up disconnected bits of writing which he never imagined nor intended should see the light of day and put them between covers. There are, of course, diaries which are deliberately kept for posterity and wide publication. But there are such things as field notes which a man sets down, especially if he is a scientist, with the idea they may be re-assayed in the light of maturer judgment and then either revised for publication or tossed into the waste basket. And somehow I doubt that anyone—even a scientist son as in this case—can make the selection, apply the judgment and do the editing which the writer himself would have wanted done.

Aldo Leopold

Let's forget "Round River," then, as a companion-piece to Leopold's earlier "Sand County Almanac," which stands almost alone in America as a true gospel of conservation. The moment we do this, we can enjoy it for what it is—a gunner's jottings about his days afield. Throughout these jottings, it is true, there are glimmerings of the scientist, the ecologist, the naturalist and philosopher which Aldo Leopold was to become. We can cull these bits and be thankful for them, realizing the truly tremendous growth which the man made. But mostly we can enjoy some excellent outdoor tales. And the one I like best, because of a perennial yearning toward wilderness unspoiled by men, is the story of a trip down into the delta of the Colorado river in Mexico, back in 1922.

There are several essays at the end of the book which show the mature Leopold in the making; yet these add little or nothing to the profound conclusions which he had reached in the already published "Almanac." Thus I like best to go back to the earlier work after reading "Round River" and think—"this is Aldo Leopold as I knew and admired him." Charlie Schwartz of our Conservation Commission is to be congratulated for his delightfully executed illustrations, which Oxford Press has reproduced much better than they did those in "A Sand County Almanac."

Dwelling Places

"Successful houses fit people," declare the authors, who go on to prescribe a series of houses of varying costs to prove that the home-builder can get just what he wants. Of all of the homes illustrated, in fact, it can be said that the owners knew what they wanted. The styles displayed range from traditional colonial to the modified ranch homes now fast becoming the most popular modern style.

WALTER LIPPMANN

Where the Remedy Lies

WASHINGTON.

"I DO most earnestly believe," said Gen. Eisenhower last week, speaking to the American Newspaper Publishers Association, "that the press should give emphasis to the things that unite the American people equal to that it gives to the things that divide them."

This carries in it a serious criticism and manifestly it was meant to be one. "News of events which divide may be more spectacular than news of developments which unify. But a free press can discharge its responsibility to free people only by giving all the facts in balance . . . could not reader - understanding be as powerful a criterion in newspaper offices as reader-interest?"

Eisenhower

This brings out into the open where it can be discussed the complaints, long current in high Administration circles, that the newspapers have made McCarthy powerful by giving too much space and too many headlines to him. If only the news editors would pay less attention to McCarthy and much more attention to news events and of speeches on which all the American people are agreed, the McCarthy headaches would go away.

I would like as an old newspaper man, who has worked with news editors but has never been one himself, to show why I think Gen. Eisenhower is quite mistaken.

No Suppression Possible.

McCarthy's charges of treason, subversion, espionage, corruption, perversion, are news which cannot be suppressed or ignored. They come from a United States Senator, now the chairman of one of the big committees, and a politician until recently at least in good standing at the headquarters of the Republican party. When he makes such attacks against the State Department and the Defense Department, it is news which has to be published.

Gen. Eisenhower feels that the news of these charges, which are notoriously unfair and in the great majority of all the cases unfounded, should be put "in balance" by the newspapers.

That, I suppose, is what he means because it is difficult to imagine that he can mean anything else. But with what are the news editors to balance the news of McCarthy's charges?

Not, I take it, with news of inspirational talks to the Girl Scouts. If the news of McCarthy's charges is to be balanced, it can be balanced only by news about the truth or falsity of those charges.

Balance With What?

But where is the news editor to get that balancing news? He can print the answers of the accused, and of course the responsible newspapers always do. But the unsupported denial of an accused man will not balance a charge by a United States Senator operating with the whole apparatus of a senatorial committee and of a staff and of a whole reservoir of paid and voluntary informers.

So the question remains, where is the news editor, seeking to have his paper "discharge its responsibilities to free people by giving all the facts in balance" to get the facts to put in balance?

He can get such facts only if the machinery for investigating the allegations of a McCarthy will bring out the facts in balance. Justice is something that should come from a government. It cannot be supplied by private citizens. The heart of the evil is that an investigation by McCarthy is a persecution and it is not a judicial inquiry intended to develop the whole truth and to do justice.

He Can Make the News.

The news that would unite the American people, who have become so dangerously divided by McCarthy, would be the news that came out of full, fair, judicial investigations in the whole field of subversion and security. The news editors cannot substitute themselves for good congressional committees, and out of their own resources provide the balancing facts which are not provided by these committees.

Nor is that the whole of it. Gen. Eisenhower himself has a heavy responsibility for the things he complains about — namely, that the news which would unite us has been overwhelmed by the news that divides us. It is the President of the United States, who is supposed to unite us, and it is from him, more than from any other source, that there must come the words and the deeds which are the news which unites us.

But on the specious plea that he must "co-operate with Congress" he has allowed himself to be persuaded that that means co-operating with the abuse of the congressional power. Thus the President has refused to make the news that would balance McCarthy's assault on the executive branch of the government.

Had the President stood up for the prerogatives of his office, had he done from the beginning what Secretary Stevens tried to do, had he refused to co-operate with the gross perversion of the congressional power to investigate — that would have been news that the news editors would have been only too pleased to publish. For they are Americans who would like to see the dignity of this government upheld.

Sacrifice and Surrender.

But what the tickers have been bringing into the newspaper offices has been the long but dreary and almost unbroken news of giving in, of men sacrificed under intimidation, of surrenders, withdrawals, of bold words followed by weasel words, of appeasement and of retreat —of Stassen humiliated, of Dulles badgered, of the Defense Department put in an uproar, while the White House has complained that the newspapers were not making it all look better than it is.

Gen. Eisenhower is right in realizing that the news all this produces is not uniting the American people. But the remedy, the only sure and prompt remedy, is in his hands, if only he would use it, and not in the hands of the news editors.

They cannot by an act of creative imagination paint a picture of a united and lucid and resolute people. But they would treat it as very big news indeed if it were reported reliably from Washington that a president had raised a standard to which the wise and honest can repair, knowing that then, the rest is in the hands of God.

LITERARY INTEREST MARKS FUSELI SHOW

By HOWARD DERRICKSON

A total of 1521 persons passed through City Art Museum turnstiles yesterday, most of them to attend the opening of "Fuseli Drawings," a Swiss loan collection. Henry Fuseli, baptized Johann Heinrich Fussli in Zurich in 1741, spent most of his life as an expatriate, becoming professor of painting at the Royal Academy of England, where he died in 1825.

Literary interest enhances the show's general appeal. Fuseli illustrated the classics, but not —like some artists—because he lacked comparable inspiration of his own. He had begun his career as a writer and produced highly admired poetry, criticism and translations.

A kindred spirit and friend to William Blake for 45 years, Fuseli graphically expresses the powerful human emotions to which Blake and other pre-romantics and romantics abandoned themselves. These feelings range from religious exaltation to unreasoning fear of the unknown and include the filial piety of Homeric poems, sensual love and horror.

Fuseli was master of many drawing styles, and he almost unerringly suited them to his subjects. In "Mamilius in Charge of a Lady of the Court," he is surprisingly like Gainsborough in light and airy treatment of this scene from Shakespeare's pageant-like "Winter's Tale." This is the most highly colored drawing in the show, most of the pictures being but lightly washed with color.

Depicting tense and tragic moments in "Lear," "Hamlet" and "Macbeth," Fuseli blends the pointing fingers and other devices stemming from Michelangelo and his mannerist followers with something of the compositional symmetry of Blake. More than once in representation of embraces ("The Kiss" and "Jealousy") he foreshadows the daring realism of Rodin.

Nightmarish effects of terror abound in "Struthan Winkelried the Dragon-Slayer," where the archer stands on an enormous root that echoes the writhing form of the dragon, "Woman Seated Upon a Stone Before a Giant Hand and Foot," "Three Cowering Girls" and "Scheramin's Cave."

Fuseli's romantic drawings of labyrinthine passageways recall the prickly sensations of such Gothic novels as Ann Radcliffe's "Mysteries of Udolpho" and Horace Walpole's "Castle of Otranto." They are also as modern—or as universal—as a Jean Cocteau film.

Several of the drawings are related to Fuseli's most famous painting, "The Nightmare." The final version, with its lonely figure molested by horrible demons that will not go away, is a heightening of the eerieness of one drawing in the traveling exhibit, where two startled women are being deserted by a galloping mare.

Though not part of the touring collection, "Two Courtesans," recently bought by the museum from a New York dealer, is appropriately made the show's centerpiece. How characteristic it is of the artist's total production, in its elaborate attention to women's headdress and swirling hair-styles, may be seen by comparing it with about a third of the show.

Albert Bush-Brown, professor of art at Western Reserve University, will give an illustrated lecture related to the display next Monday at 8 p.m. The exhibition, drawn mostly from Swiss collections and circulated by the Smithsonian Institution, Washington, will close here May 16.

NINO ROSSO SHOWS PROMISE AS SOLOIST

St. Louis Violoncellist Is Guest of Artist Presentation Group.

By CHARLES MENEES

Nino Rosso, 27-year-old St. Louis violoncellist who is already well along the road of accomplishment, was heard in recital yesterday at the Wednesday Club. It was the final event of this year's series sponsored by the Artist Presentation Committee. Midafternoon showers apparently held down the size of the audience. The performance, as it turned out, was worth braving a downpour.

Rosso has played here with the Philharmonic, Little Symphony and Municipal Opera Orchestra and for several seasons now has been assistant first cellist with the Pittsburgh Symphony. Yesterday he demonstrated that he also has abundant promise as a soloist. He had complete control of his instrument as he moved with assurance through a program of numbers written particularly for cello by J. C. Bach, Beethoven, Haydn, Chopin, Dvorak and Cassado. All except the Beethoven Sonate in A Major were played from memory, and on this the soloist seemed to take only a glance or two at the score.

Other offerings were Bach's Concerto in C Minor, Haydn's "Divertimento," Chopin's "Polonaise Brilliante," Dvorak's "Rondo" and Cassado's "Requiebros." Rosso played each of them with unusually good ear and arm. He was equally impressive in slower music, such as the second movement of the Bach, and in tricky, technical passages of the Beethoven and Chopin. Intonation was consistently good, tone lost its roundness on only a fleeting occasion or two in the upper register.

The soloist evidenced that he can give emotional stress and brilliance to a phrase, yet keep it integrated within the framework of the piece as a whole. He left no doubt that he knows the meaning of cantilena. In general, it was an excellent performance, both technically and musically.

The piano accompanist was Dorothy Ziegler. Her playing was impeccable. The rapport between accompanist and soloist on the Beethoven work was a delight to hear—and watch.

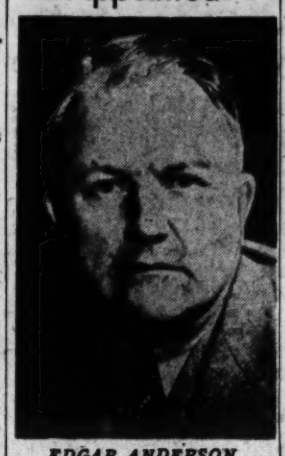

MRS. MARY B. BLAIR DIES, DOWRY WAS WEIGHT IN GOLD

CHICAGO, April 26 (AP)—Mrs. Mary Barbour Blair, who was literally worth her weight in gold to a Chicago coal company executive she married in 1900, died Sunday in a convalescent home. She was 83 years old.

Her Boston millionaire father, Edmund D. Barbour, gave her as a dowry her weight in gold when she married Frank P. Blair. She weighed 132 pounds, and at the gold price prevailing, her dowry amounted to $32,558.

She and Blair were divorced in 1915 and she sued to recover her dowry. Blair, president of the Shoak Creek Coal Co., died in 1928.

EDGAR ANDERSON

EDGAR ANDERSON SHAW'S GARDEN HEAD

Botany Professor at Washington University Becomes Director.

Edgar Anderson, professor of botany at Washington University and assistant director of Missouri Botanical (Shaw's) Garden, has been named director of the garden, John S. Lehmann, president of the board of trustees, said today.

Appointment of Leicester B. Faust to the board of trustees also was announced by Lehmann.

Prof. Anderson succeeds George T. Moore, who becomes director emeritus after serving as director since 1912. He retired from active service in February 1953 when Lehmann became acting director, a position he has held until now.

Succeeding Anderson as assistant director is Hugh Carson Cutler, associate professor of botany at Washington University and curator of the gardern's Museum of Economic Plants.

Anderson, holder of master of science and doctor of science degrees from Harvard University, came to St. Louis in 1922 to become Shaw's Garden geneticist and assistant professor of botany at Washington University.

In 1931 he returned to Harvard to become arborist at Harvard's Arnold Arboretum. In this capacity he conducted a 1934 expedition to the Balkan mountains to find such winter plants as ivy, holly and yew and for this work was decorated with the Order of the Jugoslavian Crown.

He returned to Washington University and Shaw's Garden in 1935 to resume his work as garden geneticist and to advance to professor of botany at the university. In 1937 he became Engelmann professor and acting head of the university's School of Botany.

Through most of his career his special field of research has been the history and classification of Indian corn. He is the author of "Plants, Man and Life," a book for both general reader and scientist. It relates common plants to the history of man.

JOS. HERGESHEIMER, FAMED AUTHOR, DIES

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

SEA ISLE CITY, N. J., April 26—Joseph Hergesheimer, author of "Java Head" and other works which won him acclaim as a leading novelist of the 1920s, died here yesterday in a hospital. His home in recent years was in Stone Harbor, N. J. He was 74 years old.

In contrast with the severe realism of many of the literary figures of his period, Mr. Hergesheimer's style was marked more by imagery and descriptions of his settings in the romantic past. Critics praised him particularly for psychological insight and his drawing of character.

Hergesheimer

At the height of his career he wrote a novel a year and sold many stories to the Saturday Evening Post and other magazines.

Mr. Hergesheimer began writing shortly after he turned 21, inherited some money and went to Europe for an extended stay. There, he used to say, he met a "lady novelist" whose work convinced him to be a writer; "I decided even I could do better."

For more than 10 years he devoted full time to writing before his first work was published, "The Lay Anthony," in 1914. The book sold poorly but won favorable reviews.

A second novel, "Mountain Blood," was published the following year and his reputation increased until it was firmly established in 1917 by "The Three Black Pennys."

He was married in 1907 to the former Miss Dorothy Hemphill, who survives.

Among his other works are "Gold and Iron," 1918; "Linda Condon," 1919; "San Cristobal de la Habana," 1920; "Cytherea," 1922; "Tampico," 1926; "The Limestone Tree," 1931; "Sheridan," 1931, and "Tropical Winter," 1933.

The 'Dust Bowl' All Over Again

WASHINGTON.

IT IS EASY TO FORGET. That is why history repeats itself—the history of men and the history of their land. There was back in 1935 and 1936, as many of us can recall, a great drouth in parts of the West and Southwest, resulting in what we called the "Dust Bowl."

We in the East became conscious of it when we got a dingy pall over our cities, including the national capital. The wind had brought the dust from the West. One day at a news conference President Roosevelt talked in simple language about the phenomenon and explained it. He told how two-dollar wheat in the first World War had led to the ploughing up of great tracts to plant wheat, wheat and more wheat.

Roosevelt

The buffalo-grass cover was ripped off. Stripped of its cover, and without rain, the dust became the whim of the wind. We had exported our wheat to Europe during the war. At the same time we were, in effect, exporting our rich top soil. That's the vivid way the President described it.

The Government promoted measures to bring back the land and prevent a recurrence of the disaster, and it was a national disaster, affecting all of us. About three-quarters of a million acres were bought by the Government and put back to grass.

Congress created the Soil Conservation Service in the Agriculture Department to supervise conservation measures and teach farmers how to protect their land.

Refugees on the Land.

Many families had to leave the land. This reporter, who was all through the drouth area in those years, can remember the caravans along the roads—the family automobiles piled high with children and household goods, heading out of the ravaged land. Many of them settled in new land opened then in Idaho, others in Washington and Oregon in the Pacific Northwest.

Somehow somebody forgot, as human beings will. Now, 20 years later, we have another "Dust Bowl" covering some of the old area, and some areas not injured previously.

We have been reminded of our new problem in newspaper reports and, more graphically, in pictures on our television screens —which we didn't have 20 years ago—of barren land, swirling dust clouds, and gloom at midday.

We are having an official reminder in the conference President Eisenhower has called at the White House for this week, starting Monday, with Governors of five states—Kansas, Colorado, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Texas—parts of which are affected seriously.

Available for the conference are reports prepared by the Soil Conservation Service on the basis of up-to-the-minute surveys, along with recommendations for further long-range remedial measures.

The land damage is fully as bad as it was 20 years ago. The story behind it is about the same as that told us by President Roosevelt. High prices for wheat in the second World War encouraged expanded cultivation and production.

The 'Suitcase Farmers.'

About 4,000,000 acres of land formerly in grass was ploughed up for quick profits. Of this about 3,000,000 acres was not suited to cultivation because of insufficient moisture, though the abnormally good weather during the war was deceptive.

Part of the problem again, as before, is due to what were called then, and still are, "suitcase farmers"—that is, people who came in, some buying large tracts, to make a quick killing on war prices. Statistics show, in fact, that only about 25 per cent of the land now affected is farmed by persons who farmed it 20 years ago.

Seventy-five per cent is land taken up by newcomers. They were willing to pay high prices for it because they could pay off the land cost with a single wheat crop. The damage in about half of the present "Dust Bowl" is attributed to poor cultivation and conservation practices.

Back to Grass.

The Government has helped with loans for feed and seed on an emergency basis, and for listing and chiseling the land to check its blowing away. Long-range measures being considered include turning part of the area back to grass, as was done 20 years ago, but officials now are talking in terms of more land back to grass, or from six to eight million acres.

Once again, the Government must put on another conservation campaign, retelling the same old story of the urgent necessity of protecting our national heritage.

COMEDY 'GOOD NITE' LADIES RETURNS TO THE AMERICAN

"Good Nite Ladies," a rewrite of the 1920 farce "Ladies Night in a Turkish Bath," returned to the American Theater last night after an absence of two years and was greeted by a good-size crowd which seemed to fall in with the spirit of the occasion, which was strictly burlesque.

The comedy is as crude as ever and still never passes up an opportunity for a vulgarity. It had better principals by far than last time, however. Jack Sheehan and Doris Patston headed the cast, and Jack is a skilled hand at farce. As the womanshy professor caught in a women's Turkish bath, he earned a lot of laughs. His co-comedian, Ty Copley, runs to extremely low comedy, but seemed to please the customers. Of the several young women who specialized in figures, Jean Ross was the most striking. The production will stay at the American two weeks.

WRAY'S COLUMN

It's California vs. the Field in the 80th Derby.

FIVE DAYS before the running of the eightieth Kentucky Derby the crystal gazers still hesitate to name a winner. . . . Unless something sensational develops in the Derby Trial tomorrow, you get the idea from the prevailing odds that Correlation will be post-time favorite, and that another California owned horse, named Determine, will be breathing in his ear at the finish. . . . In fact, if James Session (California-bred) also starts, the Derby will shape up with California thoroughbreds the betting favorites to whip rivals from all the United States. . . . However, betting odds don't always determine winners—not by many a long-shot.

* * *

Too bad that Turn-to, Porterhouse, Duke's Lea, The Pie King, Double Speed and still other big-name horses could not have survived injury or backward conditioning, to be among those present on May day at Churchill Downs. . . . As it is, at this writing, Determine and Correlation really are standouts on performance, this year.

* * *

Determine has won six consecutive races, two of them at one and one-eighth miles, with top weight up, by wide margins and in faster time than any rival still eligible! . . . He races to the front and wins all the way. . . . However, he is a small horse and, like his brother, Your Host, his stamina seems to be in question. He has, however, done everything asked so far, with something in reserve.

* * *

Correlation is described as a big, long-striding horse that can show speed or come from behind, carry weight and run well in the mud! . . . Like Determine, he too has won twice in rich stakes at one and one-eighth miles.

On performance to date, this pair figures one-two. . . . Most horsemen favor the bigger horse, Correlation.

* * *

Goyamo and Arcaro Also Rate Attention.

THE money changers are rating Goyamo very close up, partly because Arcaro will ride him, also because he stormed up from behind to take the Blue Grass Stakes, last Thursday, his best race of the season. . . . He won and also suffered defeats during his Florida campaign, but seems to have a real stretch drive, when properly rated.

* * *

Don't get the idea that these three have the race wrapped up—there are plenty of fine contenders still eligible and some of these will be seen in the mile Derby Trial. . . . This race, under its present title, has been continuing since its inauguration in 1938. . . . In its first 15 years only Citation and Hill Gail were able to win the Derby after capturing the Trial. . . . On the other hand, five horses that placed in the Trial carried on to take the Derby later.

They were Lawrin, Gallahadion, Whirlaway, Ponder and Middleground. . . . Several Derby starters are sure to go to the post in the Trial, more for a final workout than for mere victory, since the event carries only $10,000 added money. . . . It was after the 1949 Trial that Ben Jones of Calumet Farm, first realized that Ponder was a real Derby factor.

* * *

Churchill Downs gossip is that a field of about 15 will go to the post because the event is regarded as "open" and also because the second, third and fourth place payoffs are strictly worth while.

* * *

Because the Derby is the first ten-furlong race for three-year-olds, each year it remains a question mark up to post time . . . "Can he go the route?" Is the Big X of the Derby equation right down to that final furlong.

* * *

Ben Jones Merely an Onlooker at the Derby.

BEN JONES, who in his lifetime has saddled six derby winners, is again at Churchill Downs for the derby, but just as a sideline observer. . . . Duke's Lea, his 1954 hope, was forced out after being injured in the Santa Anita Derby in a bumping match on the clubhouse turn. . . . Duke's Lea managed to finish second to Determine, but had to be withdrawn from the Kentucky Derby. . . . We may hear more from Duke's Lea, because Jones is a wizard with injured horses.

It is likely that Arrogate will be his three-year-old ace for the Preakness and Belmont. . . . Arrogate, foaled in the month of May, was considered not mature enough as a three-year-old for a tough early race like the Derby. . . . In five two-year-old starts he won four, two of them stakes.

* * *

This year's Derby winner? . . . Ben's not picking them this year, we recall . . . "Too many friends with candidates for me to go out on a limb," is his reason. . . . He thinks Determine and Correlation both have shown a lot—but, you never can tell. . . . Ben remembers Ponder. . . . It's a wise trainer who can recognize his own Derby winner—before the race. It has been a poor year for the Jones boys—but the season still is young.

* * *

Ben still has quite a record to stand on. Including the 1941 derby and through 1954 Jones will have saddled five Derby winners for Calumet, although he had starters in only eight of those years. . . . Whirlaway, Pensive, Citation, Ponder and Hill Gail won for him. . . . Pot O'Luck finished second, Faultless was third in a blanket finish of three, and Vanfare finished fifth. . . .

Birds Nip Braves in 12th With Bit O' Luck

By Bob Broeg

The scales of justice today had balanced for the Cardinals, but the Redbirds will need more than a fair shake from fate—they'll need pitching particularly—in a two-game series beginning tomorrow night at Busch Stadium.

That, of course, would be the first appearance here this season of Brooklyn's pennant-favored, league-leading and defending-champion Dodgers, who can't and won't be contained by anything except high-class hurling.

If, as the boss would say, Aunt Matilda had a mustache, she'd be Uncle Louie. And if the Cardinals' pitching had compared with their hitting, Eddie Stanky's team would be in first place now instead of a game and one-half behind.

But because justice has a conscience, the Cards are at .500 for the first time this season, anyway, as the result of a sandlot ending of the series with Milwaukee yesterday.

Homer in Ninth Ties Score.

Throughout the game the Redbirds, who have averaged 6.4 runs a contest and scored only as few as four in just one start, shot line drives and sharp grounders right at gray-uniformed visiting players. But, they still held a two-run lead until slugger Eddie Mathews flexed his muscles in the ninth and hammered a homer onto Grand avenue with a teammate on base.

Three times since the Braves moved from Boston to Milwaukee a year ago, the Cardinals had played and lost extra-inning games to Jolly Cholly Grimm's gang. And the way those hard-tagged Redbird drives had been caught and dinky Brave hits had blooped in safely, another overtime loss seemed in sight.

But in the twelfth inning, those scales reacted crazily before balancing up with a 7-6 St. Louis victory.

With one out in the third extra inning, Alex Grammas, who had starred afield again and delivered three singles that drove in three runs, was pinked in the back by one of southpaw Chet Nichols's pitches. But there soon were two away when Tom Burgess, hitting for Joe Presko, flied out to Jim Pendleton, a name to remember.

Rip Repulski, next up, grounded to Mathews, who since the eighth inning had been back at his former third base position as a result of a multiple lineup change that moved Danny O'Connell to second base and brought Pendleton, a pinch-hitter for Second Baseman Jack Dittmer, into the game as the left fielder.

On Repulski's grounder, however, Mathews fumbled and when Wally Moon, swinging from his heels, topped the ball and trickled a slow roller to third, the bases were loaded on the infield hit.

Groan Turns to Glee.

The stick-to-the-finish members of a crowd of 16,684, which had scattered for cover when rain fell for a time in the tenth inning, set up a shout for Red Schoendienst to break up the ball game.

There was a groan, though, when Red's best was a high fly to left-center, a ball either Pendleton or Andy Pafko, the center fielder, could have caught. For a second, however, they hesitated—after you, Mr. Alphonse, but certainly not, Mr. Gaston—and then Pendleton apparently clutched the fly for a running catch.

But, no, he hadn't controlled it. As he took a second stride, the ball trickled back through his glove and down onto the outfield grass. And because the momentarily-held rule went out even before the day of topflight Cardinal pitching, the winning run scored on the second Milwaukee error of the inning.

The Braves beefed, as expected, but the umpires were in agreement that Pendleton hadn't retained possession. So the Cardinals had gained their poetic evens in a game in which the box score will show 15 hits of varying sizes and distances for each side.

Spahn Lasts Until Sixth.

For the Braves, who got most of their dinky hits off starter Stu Miller, rookie Hank Aaron had blasted five blows, including his second homer. Johnny Logan had singled three times. Danny O'Connell owned a triple and homer. And as mentioned, Mathews had delivered his fourth circuit smash behind O'Connell's three-base hit to deprive Al Brazle of victory in the ninth.

For the Cardinals, who knocked out nemesis Warren Spahn in the sixth inning, only one Redbird had outdone Grammas, the candy kid, and that was hobbling Stan the Man Musial.

Musial, rationed to a hit a game for nine contests, broke out with two singles, a double and his third home run of the season.

It'll look even more like old times if The Man does similar damage against the Dodgers. Frankly, the way the Cardinals' pitching is going or, more accurately, the way it isn't, the Redbirds will need all the runs Musial and his mates can manufacture.

Raving Braves Don't Like Melody by This Quartet

SEATTLE, April 26 (AP)—San Diego whipped Seattle, 7-3, Saturday in a Pacific Coast League baseball game climaxed by fisticuffs that cost San Diego Catcher Red Mathis a fractured arm.

The battle, which involved most players on both teams, broke out in the ninth inning when Seattle's Van Fletcher hit Mathis with a pitched ball.

Mathis sailed his bat into the infield. Fletcher picked it up and started belligerently toward the San Diego catcher, but Seattle Manager Gerry Priddy tore into Mathis and the two stood toe-to-toe exchanging punches as players on each side rallied around.

Both Mathis and Priddy were banished by the umpires and a moment later word came from the San Diego dugout that Mathis had suffered a fracture of the lower right arm.

It was learned later that the fracture occurred when Mathis was pushed against a railing during the general milling about as the two combatants were being separated by their teammates.

He was taken to a local hospital where physicians said the break—in the radius bone of the wrist—was very serious and immediate surgery was necessary.

Cards' Farm Signs Free Lancer, He Hits 4-Run Homer Same Day

A surprising story that could prove even to be astonishing was told by Walter Shannon, the Cardinals' farm director, during yesterday's game at Busch Stadium.

A 21-year-old giant, six-feet-four and weighing 230 pounds, bought his way into the Redbirds' Columbus (Ga.) ball park Friday night, purchased a scorecard and then sought a tryout from Jim Grieves, business manager of the Class A Sally League farm club.

Grieves agreed. The young giant reported early Saturday afternoon before a night game and, with Manager George Kissell watching, ran, threw and then walloped two pitches out of the park. Kissell, short of outfield strength, suggested he be signed and played at once.

The big stranger, a righthanded hitter, walked up to bat in the first inning with the bases loaded and walloped a grand-slam homer for the only Columbus runs in a game eventually lost to Macon, Ga., in 20 innings, 5 to 4.

The Paul Bunyan character is named Joe Carolan. He is from Detroit, said he was just passing through the Confederate Columbus, decided to see a ball game, ask for a tryout and—

Gerry Staley, who volunteered to warm up in the ninth inning yesterday, will pitch tomorrow night's 8 o'clock game with Brooklyn and Vic Raschi will be on the mound for Wednesday afternoon's 1:30 contest.

Grimm Predicts Close Race.

Despite slow starts by the Cardinals and his own club, Manager Charley Grimm of the Braves predicts the National League will have a closer race than last year.

Before the game, played in mid-summer weather, southpaw star Warren Spahn of the Braves said, "I've pitched here when it was hotter." Seldom, though, have the Cards made it hotter for him. He was batted out during a four-run sixth inning.

Wally Moon was picked off base a second time in three games, but Ray Jablonski and Solly Hemus got away with delayed steals and the Redbirds now have swiped 10 bases in just 10 starts.

Before a homer by Hank Aaron and bloop hits proved his undoing, nimble Stu Miller handled eight fielding chances—four putouts and four assists—in just five and two-thirds innings. The record for a pitcher is 12, set by Rip Sewell of the Pirates in 1941.

Joe Adcock, the Milwaukee first baseman, called out on strikes thrown by Al Brazle in the seventh, complained too strongly and was chased by plate Umpire Augie Donatelli.

Cards Use 20 Players.

Eddie Mathews had been hitless in 12 straight trips when he teed off on Brazle in the ninth.

Shoot-the-works Eddie Stanky used 20 players, including three third basemen and three catchers as well as three pitchers.

An unusual play favored the Cards in the tenth. Johnny Logan of the Braves laid down a sacrifice bunt, but his bat hit the ball a second time in fair territory, he was declared automatically out for interference and the runner required to return to first base.

Chet Nichols, the National League's earned-run leader as a rookie in 1951, has been troubled by wildness since his return from service and has been charged with three of the Braves' five defeats.

The Cardinals' attendance of 91,333 for the first six home games is 40,972 ahead of the corresponding period a year ago. —B.B.

SUNDAY'S STARS

BATTING—SHERM LOLLAR and FERRIS FAIN, White Sox—Lollar's home run snapped a 2-2 tie to give the White Sox a 3-2 first-game victory over Baltimore. Fain's single in the ninth drove in the run that gave the Sox a second-game 4-3 triumph.

PITCHING — SAL MAGLIE and JOHNNY ANTONELLI, Giants—Maglie shut out the Phillies, 3-0, on five hits in the opener. Antonelli followed with a three-hit 5-0 victory to give the Giants three straight shutouts over the Phils.

Ruling Defines Ball Players' Tax Deduction

WASHINGTON, April 25 (UP)—Professional baseball players may take a tax deduction for travel, meals and lodging expenses during the time the team is on the road, according to a ruling announced today by the Internal Revenue Service. The same goes for managers, coaches and trainers.

Under certain circumstances these men may also deduct living expenses incurred while the team is playing in its home stadium. This is permissible only if the person can demonstrate his off-season business activity is his principal line of business, so that when he is playing baseball he is in effect away from home.

The federal income tax law generally permits deduction of "all the necessary expenses paid or incurred during the taxable year in carrying on any trade or business, including . . . traveling expenses (and meals and lodging) while away from home in the pursuit of a trade or business."

In this case, "home" is where the job is. Under the new ruling, the traveling members of a ball club may deduct their road expenses for living. And any one of them whose principal line of business is located away from the team's home town may deduct living expenses for the whole baseball season.

St. Louis Women Lead In Two Tenpin Events

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 26—Marion Paul, with a total of 1933, rolled into the lead in the handicap division of the all-events in the Women's Central States bowling tourney here. She totaled 623 as the Harts totaled 3004 in the team competition.

100 Amateurs Seek Titles in Boxing Tourney

BOSTON, April 26 (AP)—More than 100 young amateur boxers—including many from the armed forces—weighed in today in preparation for tonight's opening action of the sixty-sixth annual national A.A.U. championship in Boston Garden.

At stake are 10 individual crowns ranging from the 112-pound flyweight class to the bruising heavyweight division.

Nearly 40 bouts are scheduled on the opening card, with about that many set for tomorrow night's program. The semifinals and finals will be held Thursday night in order to give the boys a day's rest.

All will be aiming for the trophy donated by the Kansas City Veterans of Foreign Wars post for the oustanding performer of the show.

Last year the world-wide Army squad won the team honors and Frank Perry, a rugged light heavyweight from Central State College of Ohio, was voted the outstanding fighter.

Neither Perry nor any of the other 1953 champions are back this year, but among the entries is Warrenell Lester of Bel Air, Md., who lost to Perry in the final. Last year Lester represented the world wide Army team, but this time he wears the colors of the Baltimore squad.

Two other finalists of 1953, flyweight Ahmed Shah of Washington, D.C., and Norman Johnson of Milwaukee, who lost in the 139-pound title match, are back. This time Johnson drops down a class to the 132-pounders.

Savitt Triumphs Over Richardson in Final

HOUSTON, Tex., April 26 (AP)—Unseeded Dick Savitt turned his once-a-year comeback into a major championship yesterday by defeating Hamilton Richardson for the twentieth annual River Oaks tennis title.

A weekend player since quitting big time tennis after winning the 1951 Wimbledon and Australian titles, Savitt upset the Davis Cup star and N.C.-A.A. champion 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, 7-5.

It was the first time in the history of the tournament that an unseeded player had won.

The top-seeded team of Trabert and Billy Talbert, New York City, won their twenty-fifth doubles title out of 27 tournaments by defeating Richardson and Seixas, 6-4, 7-5.

Billiken Judo Team Wins Chicago Meet

St. Louis University's judo squad took the team trophy in a meet at Chicago yesterday. Jim Hays of the Bills won the white belt for the beginners' competition. Teammates Sam Bastian and Bob Mariani were second and third, respectively.

Ken Benson of Chicago won the major individual award. There were entries from Detroit, Washington, D.C., and five Chicago Y.M.C.A.s.

9 out of 10 men don't know what PROOF means—in a whiskey!

But You Can—And You'll Be A Better Judge Of Whiskey When You Read These Facts

Just what is Proof? Proof is the measure of a whiskey's "strength"—and is just twice a whiskey's "alcoholic content." Most blends are no more than 86 Proof. But Fleischmann's is a full 90 Proof—and this means you get more flavor, more enjoyment in every drink.

Proof determines the amount of taxes collected by the U. S. Government on whiskey. And although Fleischmann pays $1.03 more per case than 86 Proof blends, Fleischmann's costs you less than many brands of lower Proof. No wonder Fleischmann's is America's best blended whiskey value!

Simpkins Strike Early, Then Hold Off Rough Pittsburghers, 5-2

Beadling Gets Both Goals Late

By Dent McSkimming

There was a day when St. Louis soccer players were a good match for any in the country in a rough, bruising contest. There were as many "choppers" here to the square yard as anywhere in the country. But, now we must pass the palm for foul play to the Pittsburgh area.

That is, assuming that the Beadling eleven is typical of Pittsburgh teams.

Outclassed at almost every step in the art of good football, the Beadling players pulled out all stops in trying to bump, wrestle and kick Simpkins players off the field at Oakland Stadium yesterday. But they missed enough of their tries at human drop-kicks to allow Simpkins to come off with a 5-2 victory.

Leading at half time, 5-0, Joe Numi's players suffered a letdown in the second half. By dint of two spectacular efforts, the visitors tallied twice, thus avoiding a shutout and arousing hopes of a better effort on their home field next Sunday. Total goals win the series and the national amateur title.

About Picking a Referee.

In this connection it would be wise for the national soccer body to make certain the game at Beadling is placed in the hands of a referee of proved capability, preferably one from another city.

Taking full advantage of a most vulnerable Beadling defense system, Simpkins raced right away to a first-half lead. Winger Frank Wallace, wide open for good passes because Beadling used the out-moded two-backs system, was on his way to an open shot when he was tripped by Fullback Jim Bressanelli in the penalty area. Charley Colombo's penalty shot at the eight-minute mark was untouched by Goalie Don Colligan.

That touched off a barrage. Charley Miramonti, from Wallace's corner kick, scored at 12 minutes; Gino Pariani tallied at 34 and at 38 minutes and Bob Annis drilled home a 25-yard free kick at the 40-minute point.

Some of the zip was gone from the Simpkins forward line in the second half and while the St. Louis team continued to dominate the game, the Beadling rushes carried much more weight than in the first half. There was a period, in fact, when seven Beadling players were crowded into the Simpkins' penalty area.

Then it was that the home team leaned heavily on the experience and sturdiness of Center Halfback Charley Colombo. No other defense player stood up so well, and most of them were guilty of more or less serious omissions. Clean handling of the ball by Goalie Hube Domijan would have deprived the Pittsburghers of their first score.

Burkes Hurt Blocking Kick.

About a half hour of hard play got no points for either side and then Halfback Bob Burkes suffered an ankle injury as he blocked a kick, far up in Beadling territory. With Burkes lying on the ground, unable to tap a ball that was two feet away, Beadling started an attack through his vacated position. The ball was whisked to Al Lorenzato whose pass across the goal mouth was deflected by Domijan's hands to the foot of John Bressanelli who scored.

Only five minutes of play remained when George Watson, moving up on the left, approached within three yards of the goal where he appeared to have lost the ball to two defenders. But, by an extraordinary effort, while stretched out on the ground, he hooked the ball past Domijan into the net.

These two scoring efforts were well enough executed to indicate Beadling is capable of scoring goals if conditions are just right. But, assuming that the Simpkins players approach their customary form, and do not suffer a relapse such as they experienced in the second half, the result of the game at Beadling should be no different from that at Oakland Stadium.

Cup Game Notes.

Beadling players and their numerous followers did not like the officiating of Referee Tom Eerbe, and Linesmen Prudencio Garcia and Stan Lutostanski. . . . If Beadling's foul play is tolerated at home the refereeing there must be sub-standard. . . . Pariani's two goals came as a surprise in view of his generally sloppy play. . . . He seemed completely lost at center. . . . Al Nazzoli was a far better wing halfback than Manager Numi had reason to expect. . . . But Burkes was a tremendous disappointment. . . . Injured ankles and knees were numerous, St. Louis casualties including Nazzoli, Borzillo, Burkes and Barrale. . . . The 90-degree heat was exhausting enough, without the wear and tear of excessive body contact. Paid attendance was 1977, a very poor crowd for a national title match.

Players had to be wary about heading a ball in the amateur soccer final at Oakland Stadium because of the rough character of the game. Giants Pitchers Yield Only 11 Hits in Handing Phillies Three Consecutive Shutouts

NEW YORK, April 26 (AP)—The talk around baseball today is all about the three successive shutouts turned in by the New York Giants' Marv Grissom, Sal Maglie and Johnny Antonelli over the Philadelphia Phils Saturday and yesterday.

This brilliant back-to-back pitching has all but overshadowed the remarkable resurgence of the Chicago White Sox who, in one week, leapfrogged from last to first place with seven victories in eight games.

Following up Grissom's 1-0 three-hit squeaker over Robin Roberts Saturday, Maglie and Antonelli limited the feeble Phils to five and three hits, respectively, yesterday as the Giants swept the doubleheader 3-0 and 5-0. In 27 straight scoreless innings, the Phils accumulated only 11 hits, 10 of them singles.

The White Sox made it three in a row over Baltimore, coming from behind each time to capture both ends of a twin bill 3-2 and 4-3. The double victory boosted the Sox into a half game lead over Detroit's Tigers, who fell into a second place tie losing a 10-9 overtime decision to Cleveland. Washington broke loose with five runs in the eighth inning to overcome the Boston Red Sox 5-1.

New York's defending champion Yankees dropped into a fourth place tie with Philadelphia when the A's whipped them 4-2 after the Yankees had taken the first game 6-1. The nightcap was called after eight innings because of Pennsylvania's curfew law prohibiting play after 6 p.m.

Brooklyn retained its half game advantage in the National League by defeating Pittsburgh 4-2 after the Pirates had shelled Don Newcombe off the mound in the first inning to overwhelm the Dodgers 9-3 in the opener. Cincinnati clung to second place, edging out Chicago 3-2 after the Cubs had slugged them into a 9-2 defeat in the first game. The Cardinals finally climbed into the .500 circle by nipping the Milwaukee Braves 7-6 in 12 innings.

Maglie, 37 years old today, celebrated his birthday a day early by outpitching Curt Simmons for his third straight triumph. A double by Davey Williams and Don Mueller's single broke a scoreless duel in the seventh. Two-run homers by Monte Irvin and Hank Thompson helped Antonelli gain the nod over Murry Dickson in the nightcap.

It will be up to righthander Ruben Gomez to continue the Giants's scoreless string in Milwaukee tomorrow. They need three more shutouts to match Pittsburgh's record of six straight shutouts back in 1903.

The Phils are one short of the record of consecutive shutout losses. Six teams absorbed four straight blankings. The last club was the 1931 Reds.

Virgil Trucks spotted the Orioles two runs in the first inning, then blanked them with four hits the rest of the way to gain his second White Sox win. Trucks drove in the first two runs with a single and Sherman Lollar won the game with a fourth inning home run. Ferris Fain's bases-loaded single climaxed a two-run rally in the ninth inning to give Chicago its second game victory.

Dave Philley, who had made but one hit in 27 times at bat, homered in the tenth with a man on base for Cleveland to snap an 8-8 tie. The Tigers got a run in their half of the tenth but Early Wynn replaced winner Don Mossi and disposed of the last batter with the tying and winning runs on the bases. Cleveland Manager Al Lopez also used Bob Lemon and Mike Garcia, the other two members of his big three, in the game. Outfielder Wally Westlake's two homers kept the Indians in the running.

An .037 hitter before Sunday, Philley led the majors with .515 at the comparable point last season.

Three ex-Red Sox players figured prominently in Washington's victory over Boston. Run-scoring singles by Clyde Vollmer and Mel Hoderlein highlighted the Nats' five-run eighth. Southpaw Chuck Stobbs, who broke in with the Red Sox, held his former mates to seven hits for his first victory.

Jim McDonald turned back the Athletics with pitching help from Johnny Sain and homers by Jerry Coleman, Phil Rizzuto and Rookie Bill Skowron, but the Athletics evened the score in the nightcap. Don Bollweg and Bill Renna, sent by the Yanks to the Athletics last winter in the trade for Harry Byrd and Eddie Robinson, drove in the winning runs off loser Bob Grim.

After Thomas's three-run homer had kayoed Don Newcombe in the first inning, Rookie Curt Roberts insured Pittsburgh's first game victory with a bases-loaded double in the seventh. Vernon Law went the distance for the Pirates despite giving up 12 hits. Johnny Podres hurled a three-hitter to give the Dodgers a split.

Rookie Art Fowler became the first Cincinnati pitcher to hurl a complete game this season when he defeated the Cubs in the second game after Chicago had clubbed three Redleg pitchers for 14 hits including home runs by Ralph Kiner and Randy Jackson in the opener. The Cubs also got two homers in the second game to give them 11 in the four-game series in Cincinnati.

Bevo and Coach Sign For a Tour Against Harlem Globetrotters

NEW YORK, April 26 (UP)—Clarence (Bevo) Francis and his Rio Grande (O.) College coach, Newt Oliver, were signed jointly for approximately $30,000 today to tour against the Harlem Globe Trotters' professional basketball team next fall and winter.

Francis, highest scoring small college basketball player in history, and Oliver signed contracts with the Boston Whirlwinds, a team owned and operated by Abe Saperstein, also owner of the Globe Trotters.

Better Times Made at Drake Relays Than in Penn's Meet

PHILADELPHIA, April 26 (AP) — It's two days after the Penn and Drake Relays and the figure filberts are probably having a field day. Where were the fastest times and longest distances compiled? The box score shows Drake ahead, 12-7.

As usual, the weather played a part in the performances. Drake had sun both days and Penn had rain on one of its two-day stand. However, the rain affected only two of the major events at Franklin Field in Philadelphia — the two-mile run and the distance medley relay. A look at Drake's superiority in both these events leaves room for doubt the Penn teams could have bettered the times even on dry cinders.

The Drake distance medley competition found Kansas setting one of the six records made in the Midwestern meet. The Jayhawks, with Frank Cindrich, Lloyd Koby, Art Dalzell and the fabulous Wes Santee carrying the baton, negotiated the 2½ miles in 9:50.4. This bettered the American record of 9:56.3 established by Michigan in 1952. Oklahoma A.&M. won the Penn distance medley in 10:08.5.

At Drake, Gene Matthews of Purdue ran the two-mile in 9:10.7 as against surprise winner Bob Sbarra's 9:27.4 at Penn. Sbarra is a Manhattan sophomore.

Drake to the Fore.

The box score shows Drake with nine faster times in the track events to four for Penn and an even split, 3-3, in field distances. The Penn competitors were better in the discus, 165 feet 7 inches by Michigan's Roland Nilsson to 164 feet 9¾ inches by Roy Pella; the high jump, 6 feet 7 inches by Cal Boyd of Indiana to 6 feet 4⅜ inches by Bo Billings of Texas; in the javelin, 206 feet 5 inches by Al Cantello of LaSalle to 20 feet 9½ inches by Marion Hudson.

Drake's field leaders were Tom Jones of Miami in the shot-put, 55 feet 10½ inches to Nilsson's 55 feet 4¼ inches; the pole vault, 13 feet 6 inches by four competitors to 13 feet 4 inches by Notre Dame's Jim Harrington, and in the broad jump with Neville Price of Oklahoma leaping 23 feet 11 inches to 23 feet 10½ inches by Shankle at Penn.

Murray Halberg, the New Zealand runner making his first appearance in America, ran the mile in 4:10, winning from Mal Whitfield, Fred Wilt and Horace Ashenfelter with ridiculous ease. The Drake mile—Santee did not compete—was won by Dennis Meyer of Washington in 4:15.

Smith's Time Faster.

In the sprints, Dean Smith captured the Drake 100-yard dash in :09.7, with Art Pollard of Penn State winning in Philadelphia clocked at :09.8. Shuttle hurdle relay competition went to Drake as Michigan State won in 1:01 against Army's 1:01.9. Morgan State's Josh Culbreath took the Penn 400 meter hurdles in 52.4, and Lee Yoder of Louisiana State the 440-yard hurdles in 53.6. The 120-yard high hurdles went to Penn's winner, Joel Shankle of Duke (14.4) as against 14.5 by Willard Thompson of Illinois.

In relay events, Drake had better times in the 440 on Texas' 41.2 as against Morgan State's 41.7; the 880, Texas again the winner (1:25) as against Cornell's 1:26.7; the two-mile with Kansas clocked at 7:34.7 and Fordham 7:38.6, a new Penn record; and the mile in which Illinois set a new Drake record of 3:12.6, while Manhattan was timed in 3:15.1 at Penn.

Indiana's 17:32.8 gave the Penn carnival the four-mile relay laurels over Kansas' 17:35.4. The sprint medley honors went to Drake with Kansas clocked in new meet time of 3:21.4. Michigan won the event Penn in 3:26.8.

Fisherman to Be Flown to Kentucky Derby

NEW YORK, April 26 (AP)—Owner C. V. Whitney and Trainer Sylvester Veitch decided today to ship Fisherman, which ran second to Correlation in Saturday's Wood Memorial to Louisville for the Kentucky Derby next Saturday.

Fisherman will be sent to Louisville by air tomorrow morning.

The decision was made after the owner and trainer had sent the little colt for a gallop around the training track at Belmont Park. Fisherman appeared to be in top condition after his hard race last Saturday.

Fisherman stumbled at the start of the Wood and had to make up nearly 15 lengths in the mile and an eighth race. He came around the pack on the last turn but was unable to gain on Correlation in the stretch run.

After the race Veitch said Fisherman had cooled out well, but Whitney withheld his decision until today because of the possibility that the colt might have strained a muscle in the start.

AGUA CALIENTE, Mex., April 26 (UP) — Oddmakers pegged California-bred Correlation as an 8 to 5 favorite in the Kentucky Derby today, according to the final line of Agua Caliente's future book on the annual classic.

The odds dropped from 2 to 1 on Correlation after his Saturday victory in the Wood Memorial.

Two other California-owned candidates were given good chances of winning by Derby followers. Determine was a second choice with Fisherman at 5 to 2, and James Session was pegged at 10 to 1.

If Correlation performs Saturday as expected by the future book, he would be the first California colt to win the Churchill Downs classic since Morvich crossed the finish wire first back in 1922.

Other horses still in the running unless officially declared and their prices: Goyamo 4 to 1, Hasty Road 5 to 1, High Tune and Palm Tree 8 to 1, Hassesyampa and Timely Tip 10 to 1, Homestake 15 to 1, Black Metal, Next Page, Red Hannigan and Admiral Porter 20 to 1, Bobby Brocato 25 to 1, Catspaw, Allied and Gladar 30 to 1, Ordained 40 to 1, Blue Wayne 100 to 1 and Jet General 200 to 1.

Jackson 12-5 Choice to Win

BROOKLYN, April 26 (UP)—Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson, the heavyweight division's sensational new slugger, risks his newly-won reputation tonight at Eastern Parkway Arena against Jimmy Slade, hard-hitting light-heavyweight widely known as a "spoiler."

Jackson, who catapulted into the national spotlight with three straight stunning upsets of high-ranked fighters in this same ring, will find himself the favorite this time at 12 to 5 when the bell clangs for the widely-televised 10-round scrap. (The bout will be televised by WTVI.)

But Hurricane Tommy can't afford to do any loafing on his laurels, for Slade is the type of fighter who has a chance to whip him or, even in losing, to make him look "bad."

Slade, of New York, currently is ranked No. 2 in the light-heavyweight division.

They're Hitting 'em Where They Are

BALTIMORE, April 26 (UP). WILLIE KEELER, one of the greatest of the "old Orioles," would have phrased it this way if asked what is wrong with the current Baltimore team: "They're hitting 'em where they are."

The Orioles have lost seven of their 11 games mainly through inability to produce an offense. Their team batting average is a mere .232 and they've collected a total of 26 runs in the 11 contests.

Glackin and Martin Win in Archery Meet

Bill Glackin, shooting 325 points in the hunter's round and 400 in the broadhead round for a 725 total, won the men's free style event in the annual spring tournament of the St. Louis Bowhunters yesterday at Weldon Spring. He used sights on his bow.

In the experts class of the instinctive division (bowmen firing "instinctive" use no sights), Bob Martin of Troy, Ill., rolled up 608 points. He made 253 in the hunter's and 355 at broadhead.

Eighty-four persons took part in the 10 events. Other winners: Elmer Curran, St. Louis (bowmen); Kenneth Atnip, St. Louis (archer); Miss Dolores Bristol, St. Louis (women's expert); Mrs. Jenny Olsen, St. Louis (women's bowmen); Mrs. Conny McCune, St. Louis (women's archer); Jim Linsen, St. Louis (junior division); Paul Jeffries, Moberly, Mo. (men's open division), and Mrs. Betty Eastrizze, East St. Louis (women's open).

Swiss Bike Rider Wins.

ZURICH, Switzerland, April 26 (UP) — Swiss cycling ace Hugo Koblet continued his series of victories in the preseason races yesterday by copping the Zurich road championships.

Sports Hand Recs First Loss In Four Years

The Grand Recs, the New York Yankees of the Missouri Rugby League, finally suffered a defeat yesterday. Their 5-3 loss to the Sports Club at Forest Park was their first in four seasons.

The result left the clubs in a first-place tie and set up a probable playoff for May 9. The regular season ends Sunday.

Playing coach Rick White was the defensive standout for the Sports who trailed, 3-0, at halftime because of a successful penalty shot by Londo Diaz, a standout amateur boxer. The shot was from 25 yards out.

Mike Dangos scored the three-point try that tied the score and Al Hebel kicked the decisive two-point conversion.

Harrison Gets 294, Furgol 295

LAS VEGAS, Nev., April 26 (AP)—A cool disposition, an antiquated hickory shaft putter and a baseball grip were major factors in the victory of Art Wall Jr., in the $35,000 tournament of champions.

The 30-year-old native Pennsylvanian from Pocono Manor today could stow $10,000 into the bank for the triumph over 18 other selected players in the second annual champions' tournament.

Brilliant rounds of 69, 66 and 70, followed by a cautious one over par 73 yesterday, brought Wall in safely by six strokes over his nearest rivals.

A professional for almost five years, and winner of but one other open event in his career—the Fort Wayne Open which earned the chance to play in this rich competition—Wall outscored such seasoned campaigners as Sam Snead, Lloyd Mangrum and Cary Middlecoff.

He began the round with a seven stroke lead over Middlecoff, with Mangrum, Gene Littler and Doug Ford trailing by eight.

Did he feel the pressure, despite the big margin? Wall smiled and nodded. "I never gambled once. I just hit for the middle of the greens and depended on my putter to do the rest."

The putter, which was ancient when it was given to Wall 10 years ago, worked all right. He did not three-putt a green in the 72 holes.

The winner holds his clubs in a unique manner. Instead of the orthodox overlapping style of most professionals, he prefers a baseball grip.

"I started with it as a kid," he says. "A few people tried to change it, but I always came back to it."

As the play came out, Mangrum held on to gain a tie for second place with last year's surprise longshot winner, Al Besselink — Mangrum with 71 and Besselink 68 for 284. Each won $3750.

Snead finished far back with a last round 72 for 291. He could merely pick up the $1000 check guaranteed each golfer who participated. Just ahead at 289 were Littler, who took his second straight 76 and Dave Douglas, with 71.

Two St. Louisans, E. J. (Dutch) Harrison and Ed Furgol each collected $1000. Harrison finished with 294 and Furgol had an aggregate of 295.

Besselink picked up an extra $1000 donated by tournament host Wilbur Clark for the lowest score of the afternoon.

Clark could afford the gesture, of course. He merely bought Wall in the non-lottery pool for a pittance of $3500, and collected $49,626 out of the auction pool. Wall was one of the lowest priced players in the field.

In addition to the $35,000 given out in prize money, Clark and company donated $35,000 to the Damon Runyan Cancer Fund.

Champions Roll To Top Spot in Women's Event

SYRACUSE, N. Y., April 26 (AP) — All leaders in the Women's International Bowling Congress tournament were displaced here over the weekend as the defending team champions, B&B Chevrolet, of Detroit, Mich., almost made a sweep, getting first place in three events.

The team bowled 2721 to better the former high by 31 pins. Members of the team are Marie Shamlock, Dolores Wroblewski, Agnes Eckstrom, Teddy McLaughlin and last year's "three-time champ," Doris Knetchges.

Shamlock and Wroblewski hit 1207 in the doubles to get the pinnacle in that event. Wroblewski contributed a gigantic 696 in the dougles with games of 243, 244 and 209. In all events, Wroblewski went ahead with a total of 1823.

In the singles, Mrs. Helen Martin of Peoria, Ill., a grandmother who is bowling in her twenty-second WIBC tournament, went ahead with a superb 668 total on games of 243, 199 and 226. Mrs. Martin, a poised, clever competitor, had eight strikes to open her first game before running into a split.

Agnes Eckstrom took ninth place with 614 and Miss Knetchges, who won the doubles, all-events and team event last year, had 608 in the singles aided by a middle game of 265. Miss Knetchges had an all-events total of 1765, good for third place in the standings.

St. Louis scores:

Rogovin Allows Only Three Hits, Defeats Rochester Wings, 3-2

ROCHESTER, April 24 (UP)—The Cincinnati Reds' loss shaped up as the Havana Cubans' today when "Sleepy-Time Guy" Saul Rogovin indicated he has recaptured the form that made him a winning pitcher in the Major Leagues.

Rogovin, dropped by the Reds at the end of the spring training season although they had surrendered Outfielder Willard Marshall to acquire him from the Chicago White Sox, turned in a three-hitter to give Havana a 3-2 victory over the Rochester Red Wings in the second game of yesterday's double-header. Rochester won the first game, 9-3, behind Gery Blaylock's five-hit pitching.

The Cubans gained the victory for Rogovin when they broke a 2-2 tie in the sixth inning on a double by Juan Delis and a single by Venezuelan Luis Garcia.

The Richmond Virginians beat Toronto, 4-1, to gain a split in their doubleheader before a crowd of 10,000 at Richmond after the Maple Leafs scored a 5-4 triumph in the first game while Buffalo and Syracuse each won its double-header yesterday. Buffalo beat Montreal, 4-3 and 8-1, while Syracuse defeated Ottawa, 5-4, and 10-5.

Burton Bowls 655 in A.B.C. Singles Event

SEATTLE, Wash., April 26—Nelson Burton of St. Louis put together games of 235, 216 and 204 for a 655 total in the singles of the American Bowling Congress championships here. Chuck O'Donnell, another St. Louisan, counted 596.

With O'Donnell hitting 609 and Burton 564, the pair had 1173 in the doubles.

O'Donnell finished with 1798 in the all-events, while Burton's nine-game total was 1787.

The nation's bowlers get their final chance this week to shoot for the top money. The 1954 tournament ends a week from today and with most of the heavy firing already completed high marks posted by leaders in each division early in the competition are expected to stand.

Tony Sparando of Rego Park, N.Y., rolled into first place in the singles top 10 March 31 with a 723 (which included the tourney's only 300 game) and the high mark has stood despite the assaults of thousands of bowlers.

Similarly, Don McClaren of St. Louis, and Bill Weliu of Houston, Tex., continue to lead the doubles division with the 1335 posted early in the tournament. Tri-Par Radio of Chicago leads the open teams with 3226.

Three changes were registered yesterday. Everett Collins and Kent Rose of Burlingame, Calif., swept into third place in doubles with a 1321, and Curt Minten of Menomonee Falls, Wis., and Buzz Harmeyer of Milwaukee tumbled 1277 pins to take seventh place. John Pezzin of Roseville, Mich., upset 695 pins and took fourth place in the singles.

The mathematicians can figure out the odds against this one—at least it never has happened before in the 51-year history of the A.B.C. Dan Lappala and Warren Gray, both of Mullan, Idaho, bowling as a pair turned in these scores:
Gray — — — 157-185-158—500

Indianapolis Batters Hit Eight Home Runs, Beat Columbus Twice

INDIANAPOLIS, April 26 (AP) — Continuing their quick getaway in the American Association race, the Indianapolis Indians pounded out eight home runs yesterday in beating Columbus twice, 6-5 and 8-1.

The Indians have won their last five games—and have lost only two of 11 played to date.

Louisville stayed within a game and a half of the league-leaders by winning a double-header from Minneapolis 10-1 and 2-1. But other teams were beginning to wilt under the Indianapolis pace.

Kansas City, which beat Charleston twice, 9-7 and 5-3, was 3½ games back. Toledo split with St. Paul—losing 2-1, then winning 3-2—and, along with Columbus, was four games off the lead.

The Indians' Joe Caffie and Rocky Colavito poked two homers apiece in the double-header. Righthander Bob Harshbarger, a reliefer, got credit for the opening victory and Herb Score, also a righthander, spaced three hits for the seven-inning nightcap victory.

"Uncle George says the coal Dad mines is making electricity right here, hundreds of miles from home. On the way to his house I saw lots of coal trains. I never knew . . ."

Thus the son of a coal miner acquires fresh respect for his father's work. He learns, too, that coal's value begins, not when it comes from the ground, but after it has traveled far and burns, white-hot, to provide heat, light and power for millions of individuals and industries.

Back home from his trip, he will watch Illinois Central coal trains with fresh understanding of the partnership between coal and railroads—the partnership that furnishes most of America's power.

Coal and the Illinois Central have been partners ever since mines began dotting Mid-America. This railroad has had a hand in developing many coal fields and the marketing of their output. Doing this job efficiently and economically is one of the important ways in which we serve the people of Mid-America.

AIRCRAFTS STRONG, STEEL SHARES FIRM

NEW YORK, April 26 (AP)—The stock market hit a new high for the year today in an advance headed by the aircrafts and steels. At the close, however, the market was backed away from its best.

Activity at higher prices in these two key divisions came as President Eisenhower said the outcome of the Indochinese war carried "the greatest significance for the United States."

Aircrafts were up between 1 and 4 points at times while steels added fractions to around a point at the outside in other sections of the list.

The market broadened to 1182 issues from 1169 last Friday. There were more down at close than up, 467 to 401 with 314 unchanged. There were 107 new 1954 highs and 27 new lows.

(Dow-Jones average of 30 industrial stocks closed at 314.54, up 1.17; 20 rails, 102.05, down .04, and 15 utilities, 56.32, off .02.)

Volume stepped up on the rise to an aggregate 2,150,000 shares as compared with 1,990,000 shares traded Friday when the market was ahead.

Sales in last hour and half and including day's odd-lot trades amounted to 740,000 shares.

Aside from the aircrafts and steels, many other major sections were hesitant. These included the railroads, merchandising issues, chemicals, and motion pictures.

The market started higher with the aircrafts out in front right away. Then the steels joined in the rise. However, by late afternoon price erosion in many areas began to be apparent.

Zenith Radio was off sharply after reporting first quarter earnings equal to $1.68 a share as compared with $4.28 a year ago. The stock opened late on a block of 1100 shares off 2⅝ at 68.

PERON CANDIDATE WINS, OPPONENT REPORTED JAILED

Loser and Associate Expected to Be Accused of Disrespect of President in Argentina.

BUENOS AIRES, April 26 (AP) — President Juan Peron's vice presidential candidate, R. Adm. Alberto Teissaire, headed for an overwhelming election victory today and his principal opponent was reported arrested by federal police.

A spokesman for the opposition radical party said Crisologe Larralde, the faction's standard bearer in yesterday's voting for a vice president and half the Congress, and Ricardo Balbin, Radical nominee for president in the 1951 election, were taken into custody early today. There was no official confirmation.

The Radicals previously conceded defeat in the balloting when the Peronista party piled up a lead of almost 2 to 1. Official returns from 4594 of the 38,369 election precincts gave Teissaire 669,267 votes to 342,250 for Larralde.

Radical party sources said the two leaders had been taken to the town of Eva Peron (formerly La Plata), the capital of Buenos Aires province. The sources added the men probably would be charged with disrespect of President Peron as a result of speeches made during the campaign.

Preliminary returns in contests for 80 seats in Argentinia's House of Deputies and 19 in the Senate showed the Radicals have lost at least one, probably two, seats in the lower chamber. They held 14. Santiago Nudelman, a principal Radical spokesman, was defeated by Peronista nominee in the eighth district of the federal capital.

The government party also swept provincial and most city offices. At least three city governments previously dominated by the opposition were lost in Buenos Aires province.

The outcome had conceded before the voting that the Peronistas would retain their iron grip on the Congress and win most other posts. Yesterday's vote indicated a victory possibly as big as the 1951 vote which re-elected Peron to a second six-year term. The President took 66 per cent of the ballots in that race, 4,651,976 to 2,358,860 for Racardo Balbin, Radical.

Election officials estimated more than 8,000,000 of the 9,300,000 registered voters cast ballots. Voting is compulsory.

The vice presidency became vacant on the death of Peron's 1951 running mate, Dr. Hortensio Quijano, in 1952, before he was sworn in for his second term.

MAY SOYBEAN SHORTS PAY MORE AND MORE

CHICAGO, April 26 (AP)—Old crop soybeans spurted 10 cents a bushel, the daily limit, to another new high since 1948 on the Board of Trade today.

The market closed with both May and July futures bid up the 10 cent limit and nothing offered for sale. May was at $4.15@ and July $4.09.

OBJECTS TO 'GAG' ON RECESSION TALK

Economist Says Administration Seeks a Kind of 'Fifth Amendment' on Slump.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SANTA BARBARA, Calif., April 26—Washington officials and others who want to soft-pedal talk of a recession "are claiming some kind of economic Fifth Amendment to which they are not entitled," an economist declared here today at an emergency conference on unemployment problems.

The speaker was Fred Breier, of the Department of Economics, University of San Francisco, who addressed about 100 delegates from American Federation of Labor unions throughout the state. The conference is being sponsored jointly by the AFL and the University of California.

Jobless in the state now number 305,000, according to state officials, compared with 223,000 a year ago.

Charges 'Gag' Effort.

"There is a kind of movement right now to gag us all," Breier told the delegates. "We are told talking about unemployment, about a recession, will help bring it on."

"Irresponsible talk about recession and depression can be harmful," he said, but facts are not misleading, and the figures show that there is a decline.

"No one knows for sure just how severe it is," he went on, but Federal officials from time to time seek to allay fears by saying the periodic 1954 figures are "just a little" behind those of the preceding year.

'We Must Keep Growing.'

"Actually," he continued, "we must keep growing. To remain even static is to become stagnant. If the employment total remained the same each year, it would mean that annually 2,000,000 workers would be added to the unemployment toll because more people come into the total labor force each year.

"Every year the national output of all production should increase 3 per cent, to keep pace with the growing labor force and an expanding economy."

In opening the conference last night, C. J. (Neal) Haggerty, secretary-treasurer of the California State Federation of Labor, disclosed that the state group has sent a telegram to its Washington office saying that unemployment in California is "quite critical."

BOAT ACCIDENTS TAKE THREE LIVES; RESCUER DROWNS

Girl, Man Trying to Save Her Go Under After Craft Capsizes and He Rescues Boy.

Three St. Louis area residents drowned yesterday, two as a result of boating accidents and the third while attempting to rescue one of the victims.

The Shores girl was drowned when a motor-driven flatboat in which she and seven other persons were riding capsized in Joachim Creek, near Herculaneum, 25 miles south of St. Louis, yesterday afternoon. The other passengers reached shore safely.

Rescues Boy.

Patterson, who was sitting on the bank fishing when the boat overturned, swam out and rescued an 8-year-old boy, then swam back to the boat to aid Linda Sue, who had been clinging to the side of the boat, but slipped off. Witnesses said Patterson apparently struck his head on the boat as he attempted to dive under it.

The girl had gone with her family and friends on a picnic. Her parents were at a picnic site about a half mile away from the scene of the drownings. They said Linda Sue knew little about swimming.

Roy K. Yardley of the Palm street address, who was piloting the boat, said it went under when he cut the motor after the prow began dipping water.

Boat Capsizes.

Rickard drowned when a boat in which he and two companions, with whom he had gone on a fishing trip, capsized in the Missouri river, near Monarch, as they were running a trotline.

All three men were swimmers and struck out for shore. Rickard's companions, William Pauble of Pacific and Albert Lewis of Glencoe, said they did not know Rickard was in any trouble, but when they reached the bank he had disappeared from view. His body was recovered a few hours later in 12 feet of water, 20 feet from the bank.

Okawville (Ill.) Youth Drowns Wading in Kaskaskia River.

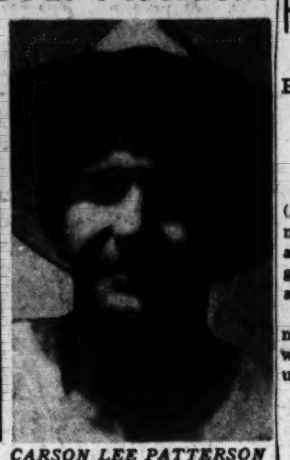

Allen Meyer, 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis D. Meyer of Okawville, Ill., about 50 miles southeast of St. Louis, drowned yesterday in the Kaskaskia river near Okawville.

The youth, who was unable to swim, was wading in shallow water with three companions when suddenly he stepped into water 12 feet deep. His companions were unable to assist him. The body was recovered a short time later.

STRICKLAND GILLILAN, HUMORIST, DIES AT 84

WARRENTON, Va., April 26 (AP) — Strickland Gillilan, humorist best known for his "off agin, on agin, gone agin, Finnigin," died here yesterday at the age of 84.

Gillilan, a onetime newspaper man, had remained active as a writer and after-dinner speaker until he broke his hip in a fall about five years ago. He had been in the hospital here for the last two years.

Gillilan

He liked to tell of Finnigin as a character he created when he was a reporter for the Richmond (Ind.) Daily Palladium at the turn of the century. He wrote the poem to take the place of the news he couldn't find.

It was the story of a railroader who had been criticized for the long reports he made of train wrecks. So after a derailment, when Finnigin's train had been put on the tracks and sent on its way, the railroad man sent his superiors the famed line as the briefest possible of reports.

Gillilan, a native of Jackson county, O., worked on a number of newspapers from 1887 to 1905 when he branched out into free lance writing and speaking. Since that time he had divided most of his time between Washington and Baltimore.

Surviving are a son and two daughters.

Funeral services will be held in Washington Wednesday.

Mrs. America of 1955 Begins Her Reign by Doing Housework

St. Louis Beauty Chosen as Nation's No. 1 Housewife Faces Busy Year of Tours, Celebrations.

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., April 26 — Mrs. Madison Jennings of St. Louis, chosen "Mrs. America of 1955," moved into a new world today—that of a celebrity—and faced it with an instinctive reaction.

As the nation's number one housewife, she did the dishes and the other housework around her vacation cottage.

"I'm still a housewife," said 28-year-old Mrs. Jennings, blond wife of a Shell Oil Co. chemist, who was chosen Mrs. America in a pageant here Saturday night. She acknowledged she was an awfully surprised housewife.

She will be a busy one, too. For one year she will tour the nation. Next fall she will make a European tour sponsored by the State Department. And she gets $15,000 worth of prizes.

Breaks Into Tears.

The attractive Missourian, who left her new six-room home at 10123 Tappan drive, Bellefontaine Neighbors, with the laughing statement to friends that she "didn't have a chance," clapped her hands to her cheeks and broke into tears of joy when she was chosen from among 50 other contestants.

The cooking, sewing and housekeeping skills which won her the Mrs. Missouri contest triumphed in the national contest. She had never entered any kind of contest before.

"It was just an impulse that prompted me to clip that coupon from a magazine and try for the Mrs. Missouri title," said Mrs. Jennings—whose first name is Wanda. She said she took a lot of joshing about it.

Her husband's kidding was rather mild, however. He said she makes the best pizza and the best Norwegian cookies in the world. He and their son, 8-year-old Michael, accompanied her here, and Jennings stepped from the crowd to kiss his wife and hand her his hankerchief when her name was called.

Young Mike, informed by his mother that she had won, asked immediately, "Where's the crown?"

Household Requirements.

Contestants were required to sew a garment; use a steam iron on blouse and a pair of the husband's trousers; cook all their meals on a gas stove; bake a pie or cake and do housecleaning. Mrs. Jennings whipped up a pumpkin pie from a favorite recipe.

The Jenningses have been married nine years. They met at a dance while he was in the Air Force in World War II. She was born in St. Paul, Minn., of Irish-Norwegian descent and is 5 feet, 9½ inches tall; weighs 135 pounds. Her measurements are 35-25-36 inches. Her hobbies are gardening and bridge.

Both she and her husband sing in the choir of the Giddings-Boyle Presbyterian Church where he is a deacon. After a two weeks rest at their Mrs. America vacation cottage, Mrs. Jennings will start her tour of America.

She said, "I don't think I'll calm down for a whole year."

'FAIR' SCHOOL BUS PROVISION URGED

Catholic Women Also Appeal for End of Discriminations.

A resolution advocating "a fair provision for all school children" in the matter of bus transportation was adopted by the St. Louis Archdiocesan Council of Catholic Women yesterday at the opening of its thirty-first annual convention.

Members were asked, as individual citizens, to urge state legislators to "seek a just solution of the problem of bus transportation for school children."

The Missouri Supreme Court held last year that public funds may not be used to pay the cost of transportation of private school pupils.

Another resolution passed by the 3000 delegates called for elimination of discriminations based on race, color or creed in employment, housing, education, health care, and "in places of public accommodation and in all phases of parish life."

An intensive citizen education program on mental health, continuance of federal low-income housing projects, participation in plans to halt decline of neighborhoods and elimination of injustices in immigration laws were also advocated by resolution.

PENTAGON HINTS OF DEAL TO SAVE M'CARTHY'S FACE

Schine was held as a "hostage" is true, then extortion might be involved.

Cohn claimed that Pvt. Schine needed to get special leave from Fort Dix in order to work on McCarthy committee reports.

If untrue, and if Pvt. Schine was seen in New York night clubs as reported, then Cohn may have violated this section, provided he made the statements in writing.

If McCarthy concurred in any false statements by Cohn regarding Pvt. Schine's leave, then he may have been guilty of violating section 371, the conspiracy section.

Or if McCarthy and Cohn conspired with Pvt. Schine to induce him to violate any articles of war, especially Article 107, dealing with false statements, such as about week-end passes, they may have violated section 371.

TREASON? — So the Senator from South Dakota may have overlooked a lot of laws. When he said that no "treason" was involved, he obviously overlooked Section 2387 of the Criminal Code, which specifically states:

"Whoever, with the intent to interfere with, impair, or influence the loyalty, morale, or discipline of the Army" . . . "in any manner, causes insubordination" shall be guilty of treason or subversive activities.

FORMER SOCIALIST CHAIRMAN PLANS WRIT TO BE CANDIDATE

Paul W. Preisler, former chairman of the Socialist City Committee of St. Louis, today was preparing a petition for a writ of mandamus which would require Secretary of State Walter H. Toberman to certify him as a candidate for Congress from the Second District on the Nonpartisan ticket in the primary election.

Preisler said he was taking the action because Toberman has held that the 1953 Hilsman bill, aimed at keeping minor parties off the ballot, disqualified him as a candidate. The law would require Preisler to obtain signatures of 2 per cent of voters in the 1952 general elections, about 4400, in order to qualify.

A previous election law, which permitted individuals to get on the primary ballot on receipt of the $50 filing fee, was not repealed by the Hilsman bill, Preisler contends. Preisler, a research associate in biochemistry at Washington University, said if the court does not uphold this position he will attack the Hilsman b111 on constitutional grounds. Preisler lives at 3709 Juniata street.

ALDERMAN LOUIS BERRA FILES FOR CONSTABLE POST

Asked why he wants to be a constable, Berra said he has been an alderman for 16 years and asked, "That's enough, don't you think?" He added that his term as alderman expires next year. If elected constable, he would be required to resign his aldermanic post Jan. 1, when the constable's term begins.

Berra, known to associates as "Midge," is part owner of a tavern-restaurant and lives at 2315 Macklind avenue. The present Eighth District constable, former Sheriff Thomas Madden, Democrat, has filed for re-election.

Europe's Lighter Side

There's Fun, Profit In Just Hunting Job

By Art Buchwald

PARIS.

AMONG the many types of Americans now making the rounds of Europe is the determined job seeker. Many young American men and women discover that Europe, in spite of rumors to the contrary, is a very pleasant place to live and know. If they can land a job, their parents can't object to them spending a year or two abroad. But there is another type of job hunter who hunts because he has nothing better to do. Since job hunting can be a full-time occupation, it keeps many of these people from getting bored and wanting to go home.

ART BUCHWALD

A friend of ours of the second type has his next two weeks filled with appointments. He explained: "Job hunting can be a lot of fun. For one thing, to be successful all you have to know is one person who is working. You make an appointment with him for lunch or a drink. Since you're not working, he'll certainly pick up the tab. But the beauty of it is you know he doesn't have a job for you, but he wants to get rid of you, so you know he will send you to someone else. The thing keeps snowballing and no one dares stop the chain for fear that if he doesn't send me on to someone else I may be on his hands for the rest of the time I'm in Paris.

★ ★ ★

"TO BE HONEST, I really don't care if I get a job or not, but this is more fun than going to museums. Besides, I've met a lot of interesting people and I've eaten in restaurants and drunk in bars that I could never afford myself.

"When I get finished with Paris, I'll call up all the people I've talked to about jobs and tell them I'm going to Rome. They'll be so grateful I'm leaving town that they'll give me letters of introduction to people down there and the cycle will start all over again.

"In two months I'll probably go home to a good job I've got waiting for me in an advertising agency and which pays about twice what these poor suckers over here are making. You'll have to admit this has been a fine way to see Europe."

YMA SUMAC, the Peruvian singer with the four-octave voice, is toying with the idea of going into opera, but she isn't sure. When we stopped to hear her rehearse at the Paris music hall where she is appearing, she said, "I want to show the world what I can do with my voice. Why not opera?"

She said that the only trouble is that she is afraid she wouldn't make enough money. "If you only appear three or four times a year, how can you live? I'd have to sing popular songs and show my legs on television in order to pay the rent."

Miss Sumac has already sung "The Magic Flute," "Lakme" and "La Traviata" in South America. She includes arias in her regular programs of Peruvian folk music and said, "The Italians liked my operatic work so much that an audience in Naples applauded for 20 minutes. If the Italians admired the arias so much, I'm sure that opera audiences everywhere would welcome me in European classical music."

★ ★ ★

WE ASKED THE VOCALIST if there is any truth in the rumor that Yma Sumac is really Amy Camus spelled backwards and that she really comes from Brooklyn. She denied it.

Miss Sumac recounted the story of how she learned to sing as a child in the mountain village of Ichocan where she performed in festivals to the Sun God. She met her husband, Meises Vivanco, who composes her music, when she was 10 years old and Vivanco, attracted by her widespread reputation among the Incas, came to hear her honor the deity for bringing a good crop of corn and potatoes. They were married when she was 14.

Miss Sumac still speaks Inca occasionally with her family even though she has lived nine years in the United States, where she plans to seek citizenship. She has taught the language to her 5-year-old son, Charles, who now is accompanying her on the tour.

"It's a very useful tongue for Peruvians," she said, "because everybody in Peru is half Inca."

Try and Stop Me

THE head of one of the biggest Hollywood studios had a most effective gambit for heading off demands for increased salaries. This head, whom we shall call L. B. because those were his initials, had an uncanny knack for knowing when a visitor was about to put the bite on him. He would rub his eyes wearily and say, "Why do I drive myself this way? I make more out of the office buildings I own than I do slaving at this studio. I stay here, I guess, because I couldn't live without my contacts with artists like yourself. Men who are interested only in money don't belong in the picture business with us." By this time the visitor was usually so overcome with emotion he not only was ashamed to demand a raise, but ended by inviting L. B. out for lunch.

How to Relax

By Glen R. Shepherd, M.D.

WE ARE often our own worst enemies, betrayed by anxieties, fears, and other emotions. Of these, tension resulting from anxiety is the commonest affliction.

For instance, in a recent oral examination of medical students, some of the men were almost tongue-tied by tension. Experienced examiners try to allow for these emotional reactions.

Everyone knows this acute kind of tension. One public speaker said he'd been able to talk since infancy until he rose before an audience to make his first speech.

That's the acute freezing-up variety of emotional tension. Much more common is the muscular and internal partial tension afflicting men and women working under pressures of speed, production lines, sales quotas, and need for accuracy in complicated tasks.

SOME FORTUNATE PEOPLE aren't afflicted by tension in such situations. Others learn how to avoid it at least after working hours. Many more need to learn how to relax, to feel better, healthier and happier.

Mrs. Martha Erickson has a responsible job as personnel manager in a large store. The conflicting pressures of all departments and of the employes' own problems converge on her daily. She built up emotional tensions each day. She couldn't shake off the job when she went home to her husband and apartment. Martha couldn't relax. She slept fitfully. Partly from this chronic emotional tension, her blood pressure went up and up until she needed medical treatment.

Martha solved the problem herself, though she doesn't quite know how. She learned to leave all the worries of the job at her desk when she went home each night. She sold herself on the idea that eight hours a day at work was enough to worry about the job problems.

Her blood pressure has fallen amazingly. It's now nearly normal.

★ ★ ★

FOR THOSE WHO HAVEN'T LEARNED how to relax, I like to use the cat as an example. When a cat stretches out for a nap, you'll notice how she stretches first and then becomes almost completely limp. It's as if the muscles were switched off. But this doesn't really happen all at once. A wave of relaxation sweeps the cat's body, starting in the extremities.

Emotional tension produces muscular tension. Learning to relax your body muscles can help relieve your emotional tension. Try the following procedure:

Take a cup of warm non-stimulating beverage, such as milk, or broth, before retiring.

Set the alarm, water the child, and do everything else that conceivably would get you out of bed.

Lie down in bed on your back with a pillow under your knees and two more on each side of your body almost up to your armpits.

Languidly stretch, just as the cat does. Then consciously "let go" in your toes, feet, and legs. One way to do this is to raise one leg and foot at a time off the bed and let it fall back, completely limp. Similarly let the muscles relax in your fingers, hands, and arms. Allow the bed to support you completely. Just lie there like a sack of flour.

If you are not already (yawn) asleep, slow your breathing to imitate the way a sleeping person breathes. Blank out your mind by thinking of a black velvet theater curtain, letting no image in it.

The next thing you know, it will be morning. Each night that you practice this, the easier it will become. Eventually you'll be able to do without the warm milk and the extra pillow supports.

Does Thumb Sucking Do Any Harm?

By Frances Ilg., M.D., and Louise Ames, Ph.D.

Of the Gesell Institute of Child Development

DOES thumb sucking actually distort the shape of the child's mouth? This problem is perhaps one which concerns the parents of thumb-suckers more than any other. Even if parents do not like to see their child sucking his thumb, many of them would have no major objection to the behavior if they were sure that it was not deforming his mouth. Conversely, even parents who do not object to the behavior as such, feel that they ought to stop it because it may be interfering with the child's later looks.

The answers given by different specialists to this question are extremely varied. The nature of the answer seems to depend largely on who is doing the answering.

MANY, though by no means all, dentists do seem to feel that thumb sucking definitely mars the shape of the mouth and is thus specifically harmful. Most psychologists and psychiatrists, and many pediatricians, consider that it is basically not a harmful habit and that it does not in most cases alter the shape of the mouth. Particularly do they feel that it is harmless in this respect if it ceases before the second teeth come in, as it usually does.

These two points of view are pretty much opposed, obviously, and thus cause parents no end of worry. If the so-called "authorities" disagree, what is a parent to do? How is he to know whether thumb sucking actually is, or is not, harmful to his child?

Dentists who really believe thumb sucking is harmful state flatly that it "directly displaces teeth" and should be stopped as quickly as possible.

★ ★ ★

MANY QUALIFIED DENTISTS agree with the psychologist and psychiatrist (and with us) that in most cases, thumb sucking does not permanently impair the shape of the mouth.

How It Started

'Behind the Eight Ball.'

TO be behind the eight ball, in common parlance today, is to be in a disadvantageous position—inextricably and inescapably in that position.

This is an American slang phrase, which has already, in the few decades of its life, given rise to more than one explanation. The late Charles C. Peterson, noted billiard expert, attributed it to a specific incident. It took place in New York City some time in 1919 or 1920, in which a certain member of a group who used to meet regularly to play Kelly pool was habitually unlucky in the preliminary shaking out of numbers, as these were marked on "pills" shaken from a leather bottle. To draw a number higher than "eight" was to relinquish any chance to win. And the player in question is said to have finally cried out in consternation that he was always "behind that doggoned eight ball."

There seems to be no doubt that it is in the game called Kelly pool that the saying had its origin. In one variety of this pastime, the balls must be pocketed in a certain order, excepting only the black ball, which is numbered eight. There is a penalty for touching the eight ball. Therefore, if the eight ball happens to be directly in front of the ball to be played, that is, if it rests between the player and the ball he must pocket, he is out of luck. Stymied is the word for this predicament on the golf course, where it occasionally happens that the player approaching his ball on the green finds himself blocked by another ball in front of it, so close to it on the line he must take to sink it that only the rarest of trick shots—or a miracle—can save him! Stymied seems to be a good one-word definition of being behind the eight ball!

Use soap or a mild detergent on your kitchen range when you are cleaning it. They're easier on the range's finish than is an abrasive-type cleaning powder.

Let's Explore Your Mind

By Dr. Albert E. Wiggam

Answer to Question 1.

YES. While the number of deaths and accidents has increased since 1935, the percentage, per miles traveled, has decreased by one half. This means, with millions more autos and billions more miles traveled, deaths and accidents have decreased relatively 50 per cent. It would be safer if the 16- to 20-year-olds could be kept off the highway.

Answer to Question 2.

Yes. A psychologist had 100 University of Wisconsin freshmen predict their probable scholastic success for the first semester. Their predictions were as accurate as the predictions made by a counselor, based on high school grades, ability tests and achievement tests. An earnest student knows pretty well what he can do and will do.

Answer to Question 3.

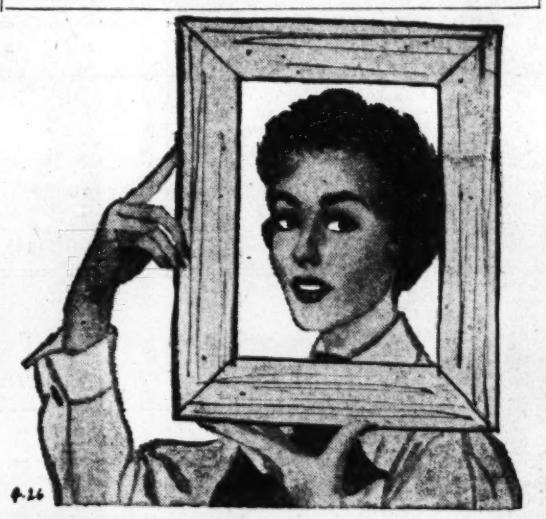

No. Several investigations show women more likely to work for individual glory rather than for the glory of the team. With boys, the team is everything, especially in school games. Whether this difference is due to inborn feminine temperament or to childhood training is unknown. Women surely do some fine team-work in clubs.

Secrets of Charm

Don't Be a Copycat

BE YOURSELF—NOT A COPY PORTRAIT OF A DOZEN OTHER PEOPLE.

ARE You Miss Somebody, or Miss Everybody? The "somebody" is the charming woman with individuality, who expresses her personal point of view intelligently, and who profits by her natural assets. The "everybody" is a carbon copy of a dozen other people.

It's awfully easy to be a copyist, in living as in the arts. It's not so easy to be original. The roots of conformity are implanted in childhood, and their outward expressions are noted even by the very young. Remember the schoolday taunts of "Copycat! Copycat!" that greeted the little girl who imitated the dress of her best friend, or who prepared her lessons by looking over her neighbor's shoulders?

Even though you are grown-up now, you still may be tempted to be the copycat, by adopting the ways of dress or manner that you admire in another. Realize, however, that what is attractive for one is not attractive for all. Better to take stock of your good and poor points, then go about accenting the one, minimizing the other—but in your very own manner.

REALIZE, TOO, that attractiveness is not a matter of physical features so much as it is a general quality about a woman. Your appearance depends primarily on what you do with all of your assets and liabilities, not just one or two.

The pretty girl may have the edge in one respect, but relying on that edge, she may fall behind in the total picture of "Miss Somebody." While she is satisfied with her own good looks, you are conscious of the fact that there is more to charm than good looks alone. You are not copying her hair style, her make-up, her fashions—or anybody else's. You are keeping a firm hand on the hair brush, a sharp eye on the calorie chart, a warm iron on the clothes and an alert mind on events. You are conscious of the importance of grooming, of posture, of a pleasant voice and bright conversation, and the complete result is more engaging than beauty alone.

IF YOU ARE "somebody" you are are independent in thought as in appearance. Your political convictions, your personal opinions, are arrived at after weighing the pros and cons. They don't merely echo or "copycat" some other person's evaluation of a new law or loyalty.

As you study fashions, you decide what is best to make you "Miss Somebody." As you read, you arrive at your own conclusions. As you consider your voice, your manners, your grooming habits, you decide if they're presenting you as an individual. You discard the copycat tendencies and develop your own personality potential.

Your Posture.

To achieve grace of the highest degree—to make yours the posture ideal — to improve stance, figure, health and the appearance of your clothes as well, read the informative, easy-to-follow booklet "Your Posture." For a copy, write to Secrets of Charm in care of the Post-Dispatch, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope and 10c in coin to help cover cost.

Best Ways Of Storing Cooked Meat

By Edith M. Barber

THE importance of storing meat in the refrigerator as soon as it comes from the market is well known. With the high cost of meat, few of us would risk spoilage that might occur at room temperature in a warm kitchen. Not all of us, however, are so careful about storing cooked meat.

One of the meat packers recently carried out a careful test of every type of meat and poultry cooked by various methods. They conducted not only laboratory tests for bacteria content, but also taste tests by a panel of experts. The results show that two methods of storing can be used safely.

The meat can either be placed in the refrigerator immediately after cooking, or left at room temperature for two hours if it is then put into the refrigerator. For practical purposes, it would be wise to form the habit of putting the meat in the refrigerator as soon as it has come from the table. Stuffing should be removed before poultry is stored.

The meat should not be covered until it is cool. Then it may either be covered or wrapped loosely in order to prevent drying. Flavor will be best if the leftover meat is used within one or two days.

Roast Lamb.

A full leg or one-half leg of lamb may be purchased. Place flat side up on rack in shallow roasting pan. Roast in a slow oven (325 degrees). Meat thermometer should register 175 degrees for medium and 180 degrees for well done. A five-pound roast will require about three hours.

Roast Lamb With Herbs.

One teaspoon rosemary, two tablespoons salad oil, one-half teaspoon dried sweet basil, one tablespoon paprika, one clove garlic, peeled and mashed; one, four to five-pound leg of lamb; one glass mint jelly.

Combine rosemary, salad oil, sweet basil, paprika and garlic. Remove fell (skin) from leg of lamb and rub lamb thoroughly with the seasoned oil. Let stand in refrigerator two to four hours. Place fat side up on a rack in shallow roasting pan. Roast in slow oven (325 degrees) two and one-half hours. Spread half the mint jelly over surface of roast. Continue roasting about one-half hour. Spread remaining jelly over roast.

Everything Going Wrong?

Just Count Your Blessings

By Mary Margaret McBride

PROBABLY you get them, too—days when it seems as if the bottom has dropped out of your world and there is no balm anywhere.

I was having such a day—the headlines were horrifying, a person I depended on had disappointed me, I had pulled a boner of gigantic proportions and I was coming down with a head cold. So I opened with listless indifference Ruth Baehr's letter from Belleville, Mich. And promptly straightened as if I had touched an electric wire. The woman was describing just such a day as I was going through.

★ ★ ★

"I AM AT MY WIT'S END," she confessed. "Everything is going wrong. The wash line breaks and dumps my clean clothes in the mud. My son is still sitting in the living room reading and the old papers are not yet carried out after 10 reminders. My young daughter has a friend over and they have strewn snibbles from their sewing and paper dolls all over the floor and not yet swept them up. Now they are giggling and scuffling all over the place.

"This is the third week in a row that our income has failed to meet the budget and I am wondering how I am going to squeeze out enough to live on. My husband has been working hard but our intake is not keeping up with the rise in prices and the increasing costs as the children grow older. He keeps asking where all the money goes. My hair stands on end to think how much comes in—but has to go right out again.

"Our big collie, excited over a new mailman, has just ripped the door curtain to shreds. But as I sit in despair with my head in my hands he senses something and comes to help in his way. I feel a nudge and a long nose is laid sympathetically in my lap. Right then and there I forgive him his moment of excitement and destruction.

"THEN I THINK of the long-legged, good, even if slightly lazy, boy reading in the next room. I compare him with some boys of his age who are hanging around corners, smoking, some even drinking or using dope or shooting out street lights with BB guns and getting into trouble with policemen. Everyone has a good word for my son and even if he is lazy with chores, his mind is not lazy and he is not lazy in his after-school job.

"I think of other girls, no older than mine, who are becoming involved with older boys and running wild. My girl's messes and giggles and noisy friends drive me crazy but she does stay at home. And sometimes she sings like an angel!

"The money that was taken out of our pay for income taxes would have balanced my budget—but thank God for a United States even if it means more taxes to keep it as it is. Soon the car payments will be finished. Then the budget will balance. And that kind good man whose children adore him, who makes me feel like a queen, who comes home each evening instead of rushing to a beer garden and staying for hours, well—that man belongs to me and to no other woman."

You're wonderful, Ruth Baehr, and I am thankful for you and all the women like you who, when things go wrong, can set them right by counting blessings. You've certainly started me counting mine this day.

Martha Carr's OPINION

REG U S PAT OFF

Dear Martha:

MY WIFE is a few years older than I and seems to think she should have the right to dictate to me. After she had allowed me to smoke for 20 years after our marriage, she suddenly said I should not do so. I work and when I get home I also do 95 per cent of the housework. Her day's work consists of preparing one meal. Every mistake I have made in the 35 years of our marriage is indelibly imprinted in her mind and she reminds me almost daily of them as we quarrel. She doesn't like movies or radio so I am denied them. I am not permitted to get away for a day of fishing or hunting. I always preferred to stay at home in the evenings except when a good movie is on, but she won't go with me and rather than take abuse for a week I don't go alone. I never do anything right. Nothing pleases her. I am still paying the bills and I won't see her cold and hungry, but I can't take this abuse any longer. What can I do? READER.

Neither the husband nor wife has the right to rule the household with the iron glove of temper and abuse, and it is no more right for one to accept such abuse than it is to dish it out. However, when I say don't accept it, I don't mean you have to run away, as much as you feel like it every time she becomes disagreeable and dictatorial. You can be gentle and kind-spirited without being a Caspar Milquetoast and letting your wife walk all over you. Don't let her draw you into those constant quarrels. And as long as you do not neglect your home, I see no reason why you can't go out for an occasional day of hunting and fishing. Go ahead. She might be disagreeable about it, but on the other hand, once she realized that she could not intimidate you, she might try to be pleasant.

Dear Martha:

I WOULD LIKE TO ANSWER the letter signed "Anxious," in which the writer stated she wanted to know all about her husband's going around with another woman, as if they would be happier. Let's hope he never tells her. I know because my husband told me. Today he is so grief-stricken that I wish for both our sakes he had denied it all. Now that he knows I know, it has taken away from us something very dear. He now thinks I am always referring to that no matter what I say. At that time I said and did things which now I can't imagine saying or doing. How I wish I could recall them. If we women could only break away from foolish pride and not put ourselves up as an example to our husbands as if we were angels, which we're not. To "Anxious" let me say: try to help your husband forget. Today I'm grief-stricken because my husband doesn't believe in me. That's the glory I won for wanting to know all. TROUBLED FOR OTHERS.

Self-Sufficiency

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

MANY creative persons like to work alone. They are able to get along without much companionship. But such an attitude is not always the most favorable to a good marriage. Anyone who is very self-sufficient ought to take special pains to give his family as much attention as it needs.

Dr. Q. is apparently such a person, for he writes me: "I am engaged in scientific work, and I suppose that anyone of that sort is likely to be an odd fish who doesn't behave like other people. It takes all sorts to make a world. But my wife can't see this, and is continually hounding me to try to make me more sociable, to force me to talk everything over with her or anybody else who happens to come along. I'm just not born that way, Dr. Popenoe."

★ ★ ★

VERY LIKELY TRUE, Dr. Q.; but don't get too far out on the end of the limb. Check up on yourself with this little scale to measure self-sufficiency:

1. I prefer to make hurried decisions alone. 0 1 2.
2. I am unconcerned if told that I am "different" or unconventional. 0 1 2.
3. I get more help from reading than from conversation, in making plans or formulating ideas. 0 1 2.
4. I am willing to take a chance alone, in any doubtful situation. 0 1 2.
5. I prefer to be alone when I receive bad news. 0 1 2.
6. I welcome an opportunity to spend a day or evening all by myself. 0 1 2.
7. I make up my mind for myself, without any difficulty. 0 1 2.
8. I can stick to a tiresome task without wanting any encouragement from others. 0 1 2.
9. I would rather travel alone than go with someone who would make all arrangements for my comfort. 0 1 2.
10. I am more gratified by a feeling of achievement, than by the admiration and praise of other persons. 0 1 2.

SCORE YOURSELF with 0 for "not at all, never"; 1 for "an average amount" and 2 for "always." If you score above 10, you should look out. Studies have shown that the self-sufficient person is likely to be less happy in marriage—mainly, no doubt, because the spouse and children do not appreciate that trait!

You are not going to change your basic pattern, and you are probably succeeding in your work through this self-sufficiency; but use your intelligence to strengthen your marriage, too. Go out of your way to share with others. Make it a point to talk some things over with your wife, even if you would rather not do so.

Go out more, socially. These changes won't hurt your work and they may save your marriage. The self-sufficient person, whether man or woman, always has to keep the success of the marriage in mind and make some sacrifices for it, if necessary. It's worth it.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

A YOUNG woman tells me: "I recently have taken a position as a stenographer with a fairly large company. I do not work for any one particular man but take dictation from several. One man from whom I have to take dictation quite frequently has a habit of dictating with a cigar stuck in the corner of his mouth, making it very difficult for me to understand what he is saying. Is there any way I can tactfully bring this to his attention without running the risk of losing my job?

Frankness is the only way out. Say, "I'm sorry, I couldn't hear that last word." If you never ask him to repeat a word except when he has the cigar in his mouth, he may understand your difficulty and remove the cigar when speaking.

'Portrait of a First Lady'

Mamie Thrills to Ike's Promotions

Eisenhower Gets His First Star in Texas; Command in Europe Brings New Separation

By Dorothy Brandon

IN THE Philippines, the Eisenhowers' apartment in Manila had slick hardwood floors which shone like a mahogany tabletop. Flowers were brought in daily and massed in bowls.

The apartment was kept shadowed all day by the closed, latticed windows composed of dozens of squares of translucent mother-of-pearl shells, typhoon-proof windows. At sundown a room boy arrived to pump clouds of spray from a flit-gun over and under the beds in preparation for unfurling the mosquito nets and tucking the hems securely under the mattresses. Sleeping inside a net was a nightly ordeal for Mamie, who had suffered from claustrophobia since childhood, but she knew there was no other way to escape Manila's winged marauders.

Unlike Jean MacArthur, the general's wife, who made a hobby of searching out fine examples of richly carved and inlaid Spanish furniture, Mamie had neither the strength nor the money to motor over the countryside ferreting out antiques. The contents of the MacArthurs' seven-room, air-conditioned, penthouse atop the hotel included fabulous furnishings. The cream-paneled living room was a jewel-like salon containing many fine examples of Louis XIV furniture and bric-a-brac. The added splendor of Gen. MacArthur's glittering decorations displayed in glass cases and cabinets emphasized the regality of the setting.

The MacArthurs were perhaps the greatest stay-at-homes in Manila. They lived much to themselves, appearing only at a limited number of state functions and confining their own hospitality to occasional dinners for dignitaries.

Ike, like other members of the staff, worked closely with Gen. MacArthur at headquarters, but in off-duty hours had practically no contact with his superior. The staff work on which they were then engaged was important, for they were training a Filipino Army to defend the 7000-island archipelago against power-hungry Japan.

There had been a dreadful wrench for Mamie one day when she learned that her husband was determined to become an aviator. One look at the light in his eyes, at the roll and tilt of his hands as he explained takeoff and landing procedures, and Mamie knew Ike was really "wing happy" and eager to solo. She knew, too, that there was nothing she could do about it.

After breakfast, Ike announced that he had made arrangements to fly to Baguio with Johnnie in a light observation plane piloted by Capt. William E. Lee, his instructor. Mamie's knees all but turned to water. But Ike's mind was made up; there was no use arguing. He contended that 13-year-old Johnnie was living in an "air age" and should start taking flying as casually as riding a bicycle. The air route to his new school, over some of the wildest and most beautiful provinces of Luzon, would provide Johnnie with an unforgettable first flight, said his father.

John was maturing rapidly, stretching toward six feet, was hardening muscularly and becoming purposeful in voice and manner. She resolved never to try again to stand between him and the world, for her days of careful mothering were over — Johnnie was going to be as independent and determined as his father. Only seven short years and Johnny would be a second lieutenant.

Ike wouldn't hear of his wife risking the sodden heat of Manila, so she stayed in Baguio until summer was nearly done, feeling very guilty in the cool comfort of the mountains, while her husband worked on through the lowland's ugliest, angriest season.

IN the spring of 1938, after months of mounting physical misery, Mrs. Eisenhower was advised by doctors to submit to a gall bladder operation as a possible cure for her distressing stomach condition. Ike would not hear of her returning alone to the Black Clinic in Pueblo, Colo., and promptly "put in" of three months State-side leave. Scarcely a month later, the surgical ordeal successfully completed, Mamie was mending at her parents' home in Denver. She was still, as she terms it, "in the tottering stage," when she started for Manila early in August with her husband and son.

This time the Eisenhowers settled in the newly opened air-conditioned wing of the Manila Hotel. Their suite was exotic as a movie set.

Morning bridge came back on Mrs. Eisenhower's engagement calendar. Either she set up a table or made the fourth for a game somewhere in the hotel. Her husband liked to wind up his day with golf or a bridge session with men. So she had the choice of sitting alone until 8 o'clock or later, or passing the time at a "hen party." As likely as not, Ike would be with the husbands of her closest friends, and it was not unusual for the couples to join for dinner and more bridge. Marge Clay and her husband were down-the-hall neighbors. Lucius Clay was then a captain attached to Gen. MacArthur's staff.

In the decade ahead, he was to become a lieutenant general and establish the American Military Government in Germany after World War II. Anne Nevins, married to Capt. Arthur S. Nevins, would one day see her husband promoted to brigadier general. Mildred Hodges, wife of Lt. Col. Courtney H. Hodges, fourth member of this group, was also destined to see her husband rise to a general, in command of the First Army that played such a valiant part in defeating the Germans.

There is notable all-around silence on why Lt. Col. Eisenhower asked, late 1939, to be transferred back to the Zone of Interior. It has been intimated that the declaration of war against Germany by France and England on Sept. 3 made him eager to return to regular duty in the United States and be available to command troops if the history of World War I was duplicated and the United States entered the conflict. It is more than likely that the European war was the pretext, rather than the reason, for his desire to transfer from Gen. MacArthur's command in the Philippines.

★ ★ ★

THE Filipinos hated to see Ike go. President Quezon awarded Ike the Philippine Distinguished Service Medal in a public ceremony. Mamie was asked to pin the decoration on her husband's blouse, and did so under a battery of news cameras. It was the first time she was photographed as a public figure.

Dwight and Mamie, after long years in far places, returned to San Antonio, Tex., on the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage. Once again they would start housekeeping at Fort Sam Houston. But now it would be a colonel's spacious house, not a lieutenant's two-room apartment.

On their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary, Ike put a small package on Mamie's breakfast tray. Tugging open the wrappings, she snapped open the lid of a jeweler's box. There it was! A platinum watch, with diamonds around a tiny dial. Ike had outdone himself. She wanted to cry. He was a man in a million—no, in a hundred million. She realized how he must have pinched the weekly cigarette and petty-cash allowance which was all he ever wanted from his pay; how he must have hoarded his checks from technical articles—all to give her this.

From that moment forward, Mrs. Eisenhower has worn the watch constantly.

The next four months at Fort Sam Houston were a blur of house-settling and nervous tension for Mamie.

Those were difficult days for every one concerned; Ike was preparing "battle plans" for the projected Louisiana maneuvers —working long hours with his chief, Lt. Gen. Walter Krueger, head of the Third Army, and Maj. Alfred M. Gruenther.

It was not long before Ike went off to Louisiana, and again Mamie was alone during long empty nights. Much worse than when she was a bride; much worse now. There was Johnnie, moving toward his father's soldier life. Because Mamie hated the echoing bigness of the house, Mrs. Florence Howie, hostess at the officers' club, allowed her two high school daughters to alternate as Eisenhower "house guests." They came after supper and used the upstairs single room.

Fort Sam was jubilant. "Well done" was passed down from Washington. The strain of maneuvers over, Ike settled down to a slightly less rigorous routine.

Then Ike's promotion came through — a star! The biggest thrill of their lives, Mrs. Eisenhower is sure. Fort Sam held a review for Brig. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. Mamie, just behind him in the reviewing stand, remembering the long-ago days when she had dreamed of her husband with a star on his shoulder, took grains of comfort. In the war that was bound to happen, Ike, as a general officer, would seldom be under fire.

On Sunday, Dec. 7, 1941, Ike was cat-napping in the bedroom; he had been up at dawn, in the office until noon, and was due back at 3 o'clock for another conference.

Mamie settled beside the radio in the upstairs sitting room and tuned in softly for a football broadcast. Working on a piece of knitting, she considered Christmas vacation plans. She listened with but half an ear to the announcer's voice barking the game's lineup. Then came what seemed to be a transmission break. The radio fell silent. Suddenly a new voice tumbled words: "Pearl Harbor—Japanese planes attacking! —— Battleships in flames!"

Mamie, having heard the news first, walked into Ike's bedroom. The bedside phone rang. Groggy with sleep, Ike rolled over and groped for the instrument. Mamie stood rigid. Her husband's eyes widened; he rose; he said, "Right away." Then he lowered the receiver slowly into its cradle. "The Japs have hit us in Hawaii. That's it—that's war," he said.

GRACE GRUENTHER, and other neighbors came in; the men had all rushed back to duty. They went to the officers' club out of a common desire not to be alone.

By midnight a few husbands, dog-tired, began to wander in. War Department orders had started coming through within an hour after the attack. Troops were already entraining for terrified West Coast cities where it was thought the Japs might strike. Rio Grande border patrols were out to block incoming spies; protection for port areas required more troops. Mamie went home—no Ike.

It was morning when Mamie heard Ike's tread on the stairs. Sleep? No, he didn't want sleep, but a bath and a change would help. While the shower swished, Mamie went to the kitchen and brewed coffee. She heard him come down, snap on the library radio. He stood a while, parade neat, checking every sentence of further attack. He told his wife the obvious. He would be very busy. She must please not bother about his meals; he'd eat at his desk, and get home some time for a little tide-over sleep.

Four more days of this. Midmorning on Friday, Mamie answered the phone. It was Ike. Gen. George C. Marshall had requested Ike's immediate air departure for Washington, so would Mamie pack plenty of everything. It might be indefinite duty, lasting months, or only a few days of conference on Philippine strategy.

"I prayed for Ike's safety and peace of mind; I dreaded having him fly on such a wicked day. He had left hurried and unhappy, and I knew he was hoping the Washington duty would be temporary — Ike wanted to stay with troops, not take on another staff job," Mamie said.

Gen. Eisenhower reported to Gen. Marshall and was assigned to assist Leonard T. Gerow, now a brigadier general and Chief of War Plans. Since West Point, Leonard Gerow and Dwight Eisenhower had been friends. Each had profound insight into the other's thinking. In Washington, Ike asked his wife to compress their belongings into crates, boxes and barrels, and get the shipment started north. Quarters at Fort Myer, on the Virginia side of the Potomac, were being allotted. Mrs. Eisenhower took the prospect of one more uprooting calmly.

By the time quarters at Fort Myer could be moved into, Gen. Eisenhower had his second star. He had been promoted to the temporary rank of major general and made chief of the newly created Operations Division of the War Department.

On June 11, his wife had no hint of what was impending, except that for several days he had been sparing of words during his brief hours of wakefulness at home. Wifely intuition made Mamie tense; she knew something had happened — or would happen. The words came slowly without personal elation, for Eisenhower knew he was in the hands of history. He told her he had been chosen by Gen. Marshall, with the approval of the President, to be commanding general of all United States Army Forces in the European Theater of Operations, as well as to exercise operation control over United States Navy forces in the theater. Fantastic! Unbelievable!

He must go to London. The separation would be hard, but she had been braced for it since Pearl Harbor Sunday. She knew he would be going away, but she had not dreamed he would go to such a pinnacle of honor and responsibility. Twenty-five years in the confines of Army rank and precedence hadn't conditioned her for such a promotion for her husband.

GREAT events followed fast. Ike, her Ike, called at the White House to confer with President Roosevelt and Britain's Prime Minister Winston Churchill. Mamie knew nothing of military strategy—she never has and she never will—and that goes for politics as well. Aside from being impressed then by what she read in the papers, she had no special knowledge of what was going on.

It was a boost to the general's spirits to come home and find Johnnie, soldierly and precise, ending his sentences with "sir." The boy was shaping up just as Ike had hoped he would. His son's just-finished term as a plebe and how it compared with his own first year at West Point was a favorite topic of talk. All weekend they lived, breathed and talked West Point. Johnnie's final leave-taking was a wrench. Johnnie saluted. His father returned his son's mark of respect.

June 24—The general was to fly overseas. He asked would she be in the yard when the plane went over for final goodby? Of course—of course!

"I stood under the flagstaff in the front yard where I knew Ike would be sure to look. The plane roared in very low. I waved and tried to tell myself I saw Ike at a window waving—but I didn't. I was crying too hard."

With her husband on duty overseas, Mrs. Eisenhower was no longer entitled to occupy the Fort Myer quarters. Her parents wanted her out in Denver, away from the congestion and confusion of war-time Washington, but she declined. By staying on, she could preserve the closest possible ties with her husband and son.

Mrs. Eisenhower found an apartment in the Wardman Park Hotel and invited Mrs. Harold Butcher, who was also waiting out the war, to share the air-conditioned apartment.

Contract Bridge

By Ely Culbertson

A CORRESPONDENT asks: "Who was to blame, North or South, for landing at the bad no-trump contract in the following hand?"

South, dealer.
North-South vulnerable.
Rubber bridge.

	♠AK632 ♥Q2 ♦AQ7 ♣984
♠J9 ♥7 ♦J8653 ♣KJ732	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠Q1075 ♥J1086 ♦94 ♣AQ5
	♠84 ♥AK9543 ♦K102 ♣106

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♥	Pass	1♠	Pass
2♥	Pass	3N.T.	Pass
Pass	Pass

Even though East got off to a diamond opening, declarer (North) was helpless when the heart suit failed to break—East shifted to clubs with great celerity.

A four-heart contract would have been ironclad — so who slipped, asks the correspondent.

The answer, clearly, is that North slipped. His jump from two hearts to three no-trump, though superficially persuasive, was extremely unwise.

The first round of bidding was of course correct, and so was South's two-heart rebid, but then North should have done one or two things: jumped to four hearts, or bid three diamonds.

Many experts use such a three-diamond bid as an absolute force, and if this is the case, that bid should be preferred, to coax further information from South. If, however, such a three-diamond bid would not be absolutely forcing—and many players follow this latter style—then North should regard his Q-2 of hearts as adequate support for the suit South has rebid, and should stake his hope for game on the heart suit itself.

Even in the actual bidding South might have taken the three no-trump bid to four hearts, but he cannot be criticized for deferring to North's judgment.

St. Louisans In East for Festival

By Frances Conant Richards

NEW YORK, April 26.

A TEN-DAY festival — Paris in New York — opened Tuesday, and Fifty-seventh street resembles a New York Rue de la Paix. Four full size kiosks spattered with colorful posters and ads mark each corner of Fifty-seventh and Park. Tri-colored strips of oilcloth blow from the top of lamp posts for four blocks and French flags are out in abundance. Former St. Louisan Mrs. Archibald Manning Brown, known professionally as Eleanor McMillen, is among the 27 decorators who have joined in the festival. Each decorator has done one room in the French manner and a master ticket entitles the visitor to stop in each exhibition during the 10 days. Proceeds from the festival go to American Aid to France Student Center in Paris, the American Library in Paris, and Relief Projects of the Committee of French-American Wives. Highlight of the show room at McMillen is the airy looking contemporary French iron bed with its delicately embroidered thin white canopy and curtains.

Col. and Mrs. Roger E. Brunschwig have been busy for weeks planning the project. Col. Brunschwig, a member of the executive committee, represents the French Chamber of Commerce in the United States. His wife, the former Zelina de Machlot Comegys, is the niece of the late Zelina de Machlot Thompson, and is related to the Benoist, Chouteau and Papin families. The Brunschwigs, Mayor and Mrs. Robert Wagner, Mme. Jacque Balsan (the one-time Consuelo Vanderbilt), and Mrs. Harrison Williams of best-dressed fame, were among the 200 New Yorkers invited by the committee to a cocktail party Tuesday afternoon on the St. Regis Roof officially to open Paris in New York. The closing party comes April 30, when the Plaza ballroom will be jammed for a luncheon and fashion show of a new Jacques Fath collection.

St. Louisans in town for all the Parisian atmosphere include Mrs. Gerald Allen, Mrs. Ferguson Butler and her daughter, Judy, and Mrs. John A. Holmes. Mary Lee Holmes arrived Thursday for a few days of shopping and going to the theater. She leaves today for Charlottesville, Va. to join Mrs. John McCloskey who was Muffie Sullivan. After a short visit in Charlottesville, she and her hostess will go on a motor tour of southern gardens. Mrs. Holmes will stop off in Washington on her way back to see her brother, Campbell Smidt.

MARIE CARR TAYLOR is currently having her second one-man show here at the Betty Parsons Gallery on East Fifty-seventh street. Her collection of 17 sculpture pieces plus three drawings and a portfolio of more have never before been shown in New York. The show opened Tuesday and friends, artists and critics have been dropping in steadily to view her work in marble and granite. Large baskets of flowers sent to the artist on opening day add colorful touches in the stark white gallery.

Among those who viewed the show last week were former St. Louisan Kajiwara, Mrs. John Harney, Timothy Hennessey, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Nessler, Mrs. George R. Wendling, Eloise Polk Bengtsson and Alice Witkof.

Marie drops into the gallery late each afternoon for a short visit but puts in most of her day in galleries looking over other sculptors' work. Last weekend she went to New Canaan, Conn., to spend Easter with Mr. and Mrs. George Harrington. Easter afternoon Christine Vieths Harrington and Marie Taylor drove to nearby Greens Farms, Conn., to have tea with the Baroness von Rebey who was formerly connected with the Guggenheim Museum in New York.

Miss von Gontard To Be Married In East May 18

THE wedding of Miss Clara Hazel von Gontard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adalbert von Gontard of Huntleigh Village, to Herman Leopold Seherr-Thoss Jr., whose engagement was announced last month, will take place Tuesday, May 18, in New York.

The date was selected to coincide with the birthday anniversary of Miss von Gontard's grandmother, Mrs. Adrian Liengme, at whose apartment, 1030 Fifth avenue, the marriage will be performed. Mrs. Liengme, who is visiting the von Gontards at present, will sail for Europe May 29. She will return to New York this week to complete plans for the wedding and her trip.

Notes are in the mail inviting only members of the two families to the ceremony and subsequent reception. Further plans will be announced later.

Mr. Seherr-Thoss and his bride will occupy his ranch home in Jackson, Wyo., after a wedding trip. He is the son of Count Herman L. Seherr-Thoss who lives in Kaernten, Western Austria.

My Day

Successful Meeting in Eau Claire

By Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK.

I FEEL that sometimes I must sound too optimistic to my readers, but I can only say that our visit at Eau Claire, Wis., seemed from beginning to end a most successful part of our trip. The morning meeting was well attended by people interested in the American Association for the United Nations and other organizations wanting to work with the association.

Mrs. Roosevelt

The luncheon was held in a church hall and attended by 428 persons, all the room would seat. Then we went over to the auditorium, where 2000 persons came to the meeting. I hope that everyone became a member of the association. Since a great many other communities were represented, I feel that we started a good deal of activity in several places.

* * *

WE DROVE from Eau Claire to St. Paul, and I thought that on arrival I would have a very short time in which to dress. But the television people had set up their equipment in my room, and I had to give them a few minutes before I even had a chance to take my dress out of the bag and see if the creases would shake out.

My friend Adele Enright, who always greets me in St. Paul, was on hand. She met us again on Friday morning at 6:40 at the train and took us to her home for breakfast before we got on the plane back to New York.

It was a pleasure to have Dr. and Mrs. Mayo come up to St. Paul for the dinner and the evening meeting. The dinner was chiefly for members of the association, but about 2000 persons came to the evening meeting, a very successful one.

* * *

ON WEDNESDAY, kindly Mr. Melamed came to have breakfast with us at 8 and took us to the plane. These short trips taken in two-engine planes are usually a good deal rougher than a long trip, when you can go to any height seeking less turbulent atmosphere. We had a fairly bumpy trip from St. Paul to Huron, S.D. We were a little late in arriving, but went straight to a luncheon where a very representative group of people from churches, colleges, schools, the Chamber of Commerce, the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Farm Bureau, the Farmers Union and the AFL were all on hand.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce invited me to return in May to judge a contest — a beard-growing contest. The man who handed me the invitation had grown the most remarkable kind of beard, branching out from his mustache in a carefully-cut curve up to his ear. It gave him a rather peculiar appearance, I must say. He himself was conscious of this, for he told me that he thought he had devised the strangest kind of beard to grow.

* * *

THERE WAS a press conference, a recording and a television kinescope, and then I attended the workshop on UNESCO for a few minutes. All of this indicates that a great deal of interest in the United Nations has developed throughout this state. I feel more and more encouraged as we travel from one state to another.

The other night, in the few minutes before I fell asleep, I read a little book by Charlotte and Dabney White of Greensboro, N. C., entitled 'Needed: A Miracle for Tomorrow—the Vanguard Plan." It is an appeal for world government to be arrived at through the United Nations by 1960, but I think you might find the little booklet interesting to look through, and certain suggestions are stimulating.

International Designer's Pattern

THE wholehearted acceptance of the American middy blouse by practically every couturier in Europe in their recent spring collections presages enormous popularity among the well dressed women in our own country. This model by Biki, one of Italy's foremost names in design, has great elegance plus a newborn chic that belies its casual cut. The V's of the neckline and the bodice detail are particularly flattering lines for shortened necks but in truth it is a line anybody can wear and wear well. The bodice front is lined and shaped so that there is figure definition fore and looseness aft. Biki showed it first in gray flannel and is suitable in any wool of that weight as it is, too, in linen, pique or any of the faille type materials.

This pattern is cut in Designer sizes.

Bust Inches	Waist Inches	Hips Inches	Size
34	24	35	10
35	25	36	12
36½	26½	37½	14
38	28	39	16
40	30	41	18

Pattern S-217. Size 12 requires three and seven-eighths yards of 36-inch material for middy blouse (short sleeves) and skirt and one-fourth yard of 25-inch material for interfacing.

To order a pattern, address International Designer's Pattern, care of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Box 993, Dept. SX-17, G.P.O., New York 1, N.Y. State size and pattern number. Send $1. Airmail handling 25 cents extra.

Grated Lemon Rind

Here's a new kind of crouton: Melt a little butter or margarine in a heavy skillet over low heat; add some bite-size shredded rice or wheat biscuits and a sprinkling of salt. Stir the tiny biscuits over low heat for several minutes to toast and coat with butter. Sprinkle over bowls of tomato or split pea soup for something good.

Savory Dish

Season cheese sauce with mustard, paprika and Worcestershire sauce and serve over sliced hard-cooked eggs and buttered toast for a savory luncheon dish.

Notes on Outdoor Painting.

IT being about the time of year when people start thinking about outside painting, we thought we'd pass on a few tips on this subject that we have picked up in one way or another.

If you have shutters on your home you'll find it a good deal faster and easier to take them down and paint them on the ground than trying to do the job while you are on a ladder.

And speaking of ladders, sometimes it's necessary to rest a ladder just where a window happens to be. The thing to do here is take a piece of lumber somewhat longer than the window is wide and tie it to the top of the ladder. The length of lumber will rest on the window frame and prevent the ladder coming in contact with the delicate sash. And you may find that even the longest ladder you can borrow isn't quite long enough to reach certain areas. In this case, try a brush extension.

Few people can paint for long without spilling some of it and if there are shrubs and bushes around your home paint is sure to get on them. For this reason, cover foundation planting with a drop cloth before you start work. If you spill paint on masonry, wipe it up at once with turpentine. If you give it a chance to soak in you never will get it out.

Outside paint is made so that it chalks away, thus keeping itself clean. This is fine for houses or fences but isn't good for outdoor furniture. For furniture, use an outdoor enamel.

Try to do your outdoor painting either in the spring or fall. In the summer it's too hot and there are too many bugs about who like to sit on freshly painted surfaces.

CHAPTER NINE.

SHELBY dropped his small suitcase on the dusty red earth bordering the highway trailing south from Gila Bend. He shifted his topcoat from one arm to the other and loosened the knot of his tie. He shoved his felt hat back and turned to look at the dribbling outskirts of the little southwest Arizona town. The mid-morning sun was beginning to assume intensity and Shelby stared absently at the few, primitive-looking sandstone houses in the Indian settlement. A big, expensive car roared past him, toward Gila Bend, scattering a fine spray of red dust in his face. He could taste the grit in his mouth, and pressed his lips firmly together.

He turned to look in the opposite direction, his eyes following the ribbon of road toward Ajo. Traffic going his way appeared almost non-existent. He thought briefly about the attendant at the combination bus and gas station in Gila Bend. He was a lean, leathery man of few words who had told Shelby the morning bus to Ajo had left an hour earlier and that there would not be another one through until late afternoon.

Shelby had told the man he would try to hitch a ride and the man had answered that Shelby did not look like the hitch-hiking type. After nearly a half-hour of walking down the highway, Shelby was ready to believe the man.

On both sides of the road were miles of flat, scrubby land, its red, sandy soil dotted with brown, dreary looking poles of cactus. Small plateaus cut the the distance he could see a monotony of the plains, and in mountain range. There were no trees nearby to break the strong heat from the sun.

SHELBY shuffled on for another quarter of a mile when he came to a small sign nailed to a post and dropped his suitcase. He took off his topcoat, opened the suitcase, and stuffed it inside. Next, he propped the suitcase on end against the post and sat down wearily, finding some shade from the sign. He took off his hat and fanned himself. Then he reached for a cigarette, lit it and glumly tasted the hot smoke as it made his mouth more dry than it was.

He looked toward Gila Bend, wishing that a miracle would occur and Fran Edward's little convertible would appear on the horizon. But there was only a dusty, hot emptiness to look at —and his predicament to think about. He either had to find Joe Garrison and get the truth from him, or else . . .

Or else what? he asked himself. Return to New York voluntarily, or let Moseby track him down? Face trial and a possible death sentence unless he could vindicate himself? He knew he couldn't yet bring himself to let that happen. If necessary, he knew, he could get across the border and gain some sort of physical, if not mental, sanctuary. He might have time enough to make an escape across the border and then someday return to continue his search for Garrison.

Perhaps Moseby would cease looking for him and think he had actually drowned, if enough time elapsed. And Garrison would naturally resume his musical career, emerge again in the limelight once he thought there was no chance he could be accused of murdering Raymer. So long as he knew Shelby was alive, he would be constantly on guard. But if Shelby were to fade out of sight for perhaps a year, Garrison might feel sure that he was no longer in any danger.

Still, Shelby reasoned, Garrison would never really be certain of his freedom until he was positive Shelby would never cause him any trouble. Proof that Garrison was dangerous was the beating he had received from Garrison's henchmen last night. Yet, why hadn't he been killed then? Perhaps the intruder thought he had killed Shelby, or perhaps he had been frightened away when Fran awoke and turned on her light to investigate the noise.

In any case, Shelby knew that he not only had to guard against Moseby apprehending him, but he had to constantly be careful that he did not allow himself to be ambushed by one of Garrison's friends, as he was last night. The next time it might be fatal.

SHELBY flicked the half-smoked cigarette away, watching it hit the highway, bounce and then get caught in a sudden swirl of dusty wind, when the idea sprang into surging life inside him. Why not make it easy for Garrison or his man to find him again? Then, perhaps, he could trace Garrison sooner. Why run to Mexico and live the life of a fugitive, for even a few months? If he allowed Garrison, or his henchman, to find him easily, it still would not be a simple matter to get Garrison, for he would constantly be in danger of being killed before he had the opportunity to clear himself of the murder charge. The man who attacked him last night might strike again when he was not expecting it.

But he would be expecting it from now on—and the easiest way to set an ambush for Garrison was to use himself as the bait. It would be more dangerous that way, but what did he have to lose . . .?

Shelby saw the puff of exhaust from the tall, upright pipe of a diesel truck. It was going his way, and his heart leaped.

Shelby heard first the bleating plaint of the truck's horn, and it was followed by the sudden hiss of air brakes. The truck crawled to a halt a few yards from him and Shelby smiled gratefully, ran back to pick up his suitcase and returned to the truck, falling into the cab wearily. The driver clutched and shifted the big truck expertly, slowly picking up speed. A horn sounded impatiently behind them and the driver waved his arm to the motorist behind the truck.

Shelby idly watched from his side of the cab as a dusty, mud-splattered big car wheeled past them. Then his eyes narrowed as he caught sight of the California license plate on the car and recognized it as the one he had seen last night, parked near his at the highway cafe. For some strange reason, as he recalled the rough oily face and evil-looking eyes of the man who had walked into the cafe as he was leaving, Shelby felt there was some connection between the driver of the California car and the attack upon him last night.

He thoughtfully watched the California car as it sped toward Ajo until it became a dark, shimmering blob under the Arizona sun, finally fading completely from sight.

Uncle Ray's Column

EVERY object is made up of atoms. The wood in my desk contains trillions of atoms. So does the metal in my typewriter.

There are atoms in every piece of bread, in every grain of salt or sugar. When we drink water, we take in countless atoms. Even the air we breathe is composed of atoms.

Some persons think of atoms as "the oldest things in the world." Perhaps that is true, but electrons may have existed before atoms.

* * *

THERE IS a question as to whether an electron can be called a "thing." While it is inside an atom, it may be a thing, but outside of an atom an electron seems to be a unit of energy, and nothing more.

Powerful instruments of modern science have brought atoms into view. We still have a great deal to learn about atoms, but we know how to split them and turn them into energy.

There was a dim knowledge of atoms during ancient times. A few men, chiefly Greeks, believed that all things were made of atoms. One of these men was Democritus (pronounced de-MOCK-rih-tus).

* * *

A ROMAN POET told about atoms in a long poem called "The Nature of Things." This poet lived during the time of Julius Caesar, and his name was Lucretius.

Lucretius spoke about the motion of atoms. He declared that atoms were combined in different ways to make various kinds of things.
